Uncle Sam—Chestnut Puller?

Dillinger Back on Page 1.

Imaginary Sherlock Holmes.

335,000 Dogs Too Many.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, May 19.

SIR JOHN SIMON, British foreign secretary, says Great Britain will not undertake to preserve China's territorial integrity or her "open door" and will not participate in any action "against Japan or any other power in other parts of the world unless the United States gives its full co-operation."

You ask yourself:

"When did Uncle Sam volunteer as world wide policeman and chief chestnut-puller-out for the British empire?"

MR. DILLINGER, or somebody with a face like his, scarred as his face is scarred, returns to the front page, with machine guns, swift "getaway" automobile, gangster retinue, "fearless blonde moll" and all.

On this latest occasion, time yesterday afternoon, place, Flint, Michigan, he holds up the Citizens Commercial and Savings Bank, driving off with a wave of the hand, taking "between $25,000 and $100,000" as a souvenir.

YOUR LOS ANGELES Examiner reporters desiring to please an older man, headed an article this morning:

"Brisbane gets credit for catching Stoddard."

Brisbane doesn't deserve any credit, and therefore does not want it. The young reporters discovered that Brisbane, Sheriff Biscailuz and Capt. Bright, chief of the homicide squad, conspired to get from the kidnapers the name "of the owner of the Ford V-eight car found in the garage of the kidnap prison at La Crescenta," and thus identify a fourth kidnaper.

BRISBANE IS supposed to have proceeded, with ten times the genius of any Sherlock Holmes, to "construct a psychological trap."

"The trap was set. Captain Bright was quick to take advantage of the moment, demanded, 'who owns that car?'" and "before he knew what he was doing, Kirk blurted out Stoddard's name."

THUS HISTORY is written. Captain Bright, a good policeman and detective, evidently did get Stoddard's name by putting his question at the right moment, but nobody had mentioned any Ford V-Eight or any "psychological trap" to Brisbane, or anything about any "fourth man Stoddard." All the Sherlock Holmes credit must go to Captain Bright and Sheriff Biscailuz.

IN NEW YORK CITY apartment houses gentlemen and ladies keep 335,000 dogs, each dog carrying germs in its fur, a majority a nuisance to neighbors, and many a menace to children.

Three hundred and thirty-five thousand dogs in New York City apartments are as completely out of place as would be 335,000 cows on New York City roofs.

General O'Ryan, New York Police Commissioner, announces, wisely:

"Owners of the 335,000 dogs will keep them muzzled and on a leash, or their masters will come to court."

You can't keep a cow in New York or drive her through the streets, although a cow would not bite anybody, and would give milk. Why keep 335,000 dogs?

POOR UNHAPPY S. J. Winner, only thirty-eight years old, living not far from here, wrote:

"Dear wife and family: (You know what is coming) I am sorry, but I have been no good to you or anyone else. Take good care of the little ones, Ada, they are wonderful."

He wrote "to Uncle Billy":

"I owe Mike eighty-four cents for gas. Please pay it as soon as you can. Get in touch with Victor. I think he will put me away."

Then he took the poison, strychnine, screamed in pain, and died apparently. Dr. A. D. Trotter injected adrenalin, gave heavy doses of sodium amytol, a heart stimulant. The discouraged heart returned to life again, and went on beating for three hours.

Then the strychnine won the fight and there was no more heart beat.

The great Socrates, dying of hemlock poisoning, said conscientiously, "we owe a cock to Aesculapius," and asked that the debt be paid.

The poor failure of 1934, about to die of strychnine poisoning, writes, "I owe 84 cents for gas" and asks that his debt be paid. They are equals now.

IN THE NOBLE world of "sport," which fills so many American pages and occupies the intellects of millions except when they are listening to the radio or sleeping, the noble red man easily adopts the white man's "sport ethics."

In New Orleans, Tommy Marvin, Indian wrestler, was wrestling with Chief Chewcki, also Indian. "Clamping a chin lock on the chief, Marvin calmly filled Chewcki's eye with tobacco juice." Chewcki, confronted by "a condition, not a theory," conceded the fall.

It is almost a pleasure to read farther on "Chewcki won the last two falls and the bout by knocking Marvin unconscious."

Cruelty to Baby Laid to Parents; Poverty Blamed

BETTY SCHECTOR

CRIES OF CHILD BRING RESCUE

NEW KENSINGTON, May 16.—A 9-month-old baby, whose pitiful crying for hours at a time finally brought help from the outside world, was in Citizens' General Hospital here today while the baby's father and mother were held on charges of cruelty.

Not in many a day has this city been as stirred as it was yesterday when the case was heard before Alderman Jacob Sakulsky.

According to testimony by Mrs. Ethel Peterson, agent for the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, and neighbors of the couple, the baby, Howard William Moesta, was strapped, face down, in his baby carriage for six hours.

His crying, which stopped only when he could no longer cry, but merely sob, finally brought Policeman E. O. Zilmer and Red Cross Nurse Elva Anstead to his rescue.

They broke into an apartment at 518 Twelfth street and found the child alone, they testified.

Struggling to keep back her tears, the baby's mother, Betty Schector, 22, denied any intentional neglect of the child.

She and the baby's father, Fred Moesta, 22, had been caught in one of life's eternal triangles and rendered helpless by their poverty, she said. Fred was married and could not marry her.

Moesta's wife in Brooklyn is only 20, he testified. He married her four years ago, and left her shortly after a son, Fred, Jr., was born, three years ago, he said.

Seek Girl in Garb Of Charitable Body

A pretty girl, dressed in the garb of a charitable organization, was being sought by Springdale police today on a charge of larceny.

The girl appeared at the home of Herman Jakemeyer, 348 Shaw avenue, Springdale, yesterday and, while a member of the family was obtaining some old clothing for her, stole $28 from a purse on a library table, police were informed.

Bank Holdup Gang Believed 'Bottled' In Flint

International News Service.

FLINT, Mich., May 19.—A line of state troopers surrounded the Flint district today in the belief that the gun mob which robbed the Citizens Commercial and Savings Bank of $33,000 yesterday is bottled within the city.

The hunt for the six gangsters and their woman accomplice, believed headed by John Dillinger, went on through the night without revealing a trace of the desperadoes who swept into the Glenwood branch of the bank, cowed customers and employes with machine guns, and left with the payroll of an auto company.

Seventy-two state policemen in 36 cruisers were dispatched immediately into the territory by Oscar G. Ollander, commissioner of public safety. Their inability to intercept the fugitives strengthens the belief of police that the gang repaired to a pre-arranged hideout in the city.

Police are not inclined to place too much faith in the jumbled descriptions of several witnesses naming Dillinger as the gang leader. A customer and an aged woman who watched the foray from a window across the street have identified one of the bandits as the notorious killer.

Police today were checking apartment houses and hotels and questioning all suspicious characters and new tenants unable to account for themselves.

A Department of Justice agent arrived in Flint late yesterday, admitting his interest in the Dillinger angle of the robbery, he declared he "just dropped in for a look around."

Two letters signed "John Dillinger" received by police and at the offices of a newspaper were branded the work of a practical joker. In each the writer said:

"It was a great thrill. It still is afternoon and I'm in town."

Police took slightly more seriously, however, the telephone warnings received by Orwell Pike and George Donaldson, both witnesses of the holdup.

The warning was received by Pike directly after his picture and that of Donaldson had been published in newspapers. The voice said:

"You and Donaldson better keep your mouths shut."

Constable Killed By Hit-Run Driver

LATROBE, Pa., May 19.—(INS.)—State police today are seeking for the "hit and run" driver who struck Constable Charles Garver, 40, Youngstown, Pa., and left him to die along a highway. Three men found Gaver's bruised and broken body—his head crushed and clothing torn as though he had been dragged some distance. Police say too many bone were broken to suspect murder.

'TEN-TEN' LABOR PLAN REVIVED

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—The National Labor Advisory Board was reported unofficially today to have rocommended that the hours of labor provisions of all NRA codes be cut 10 per cent with a compensating 10 per cent boost in wage rates.

Hugh S. Johnson, to whom the recommendations were understood to have been made, has not yet acted on them.

The board is at present actively headed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in the absence of Chairman Leo Wolman. Green is vice chairman.

Gen. Johnson some time ago suggested a 10 per cent hour cut with compensating wage rate increases. The proposals encountered opposition among industrial interests and has been allowed to rest while NRA tackled other problems of code making and revision.

MILLION LOSS IN FIRE, 100 HOMELESS

13 Cities Aid Fight On Newburyport Conflagration

International News Service.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 19.—Engulfed in flames of suspected incendiary origin, the western section of the business district of historic Newburyport suffered a million dollar loss today.

Twenty-five factories, dwellings, stores and other building were levelled in what appeared to authorities to be an attempt to raze a section of the city.

When the fire finally was under control at 8 a. m., 100 persons were homeless and more than 1,000 jobless.

QUESTION FIREBUG SUSPECT

One man was questioned as a firebug. Two others were under suspicion.

Firemen from 13 cities and towns within a radius of 25 miles were called to aid local firemen as the flames raged for more than eight hours.

The main fire started in the five-story Dodge shoe factory on Merrimack street. The factory was of wood, and had not been operated for several years. Back of the main fire, which caused a reign of terror, were three other smaller blazes of suspected incendiary origin.

Leaping from the Dodge shoe factory, the flames spread through the empty John J. Collins coal shed and swept on to the Fisher Shoe Company building.

SCORES OVERCOME

Scores of firemen were overcome by smoke.

McKay's boat yard, with several yachts and schooner rigged craft were destroyed.

As the fire attacked Merrimack street, William Canepa, young son of Louis Canepa, sick in bed with pneumonia, was carried out on a stretcher. Meanwihel, his father's store was being levelled.

A west wind sent a shower of embers for a time raising the threat of a general destruction of the city. This was when the blaze spread to Odd Fellows hall.

Five dwelling houses, deserted by their occupants, a store and restaurant, the Keefe garage and several houses near Green and Marrimack streets were among other structures destroyed.

New Chief Clerk Appointed by Bell

Walter E. Schlipp, of the Monongahela House, today was named chief clerk in the Department of Public Safety by Safety Director A. Marshall Bell. Schlipp is a brother of John Schlipp, deputy city controller. He has been connected with the F. F. Nicola interests.

Schlipp replaces Robert W. Brown, who, after 18 years service, was fired by the new difector.

Mitzi Green Wins Suit Over $5,000

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—(AP.)—Mitzi Green, 13-year-old screen actress, and her father, Joseph Green, today had won a suit brought against them by William Meiklejohn and Arthur Esberg, theatrical agents, for $5,000 which they alleged was due as commission on Mitzi's earnings.

LEAGUE TOLD OF JAP-RUSS WAR FEARS

Warning of Conflict In Far East Sounded By Litvinoff

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT

International News Service.

GENEVA, May 19.—The mysterious visit paid to Geneva by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, yesterday was to discuss with European statesmen what he fears is an imminent war in the Far East.

This much International News Service learned today after Litvinoff had gone to a rural retreat in the Savoy, where he will be close to Geneva and in position to renew his discussions next week.

Litvinoff discussed the Far Eastern situation at length with Louis Barthou, French foreign minister.

SEEKS EUROPEAN PACT

Russia, he told Barthoul, is eager to see the disarmament conference saved from collapse when diplomats gather here next week to make what may prove to be the final attempt to bring about an agreement. The Soviet government, he added, is particularly anxious that its Europea fontiers be made safe by treaty so Russia can concentrate in Siberia to face Japan.

In Moscow, he added, it is the

BORIS OUSTS PARLIAMENT

SOFIA, May 19.—(AP.)—King Boris late today signed a decree dissolving the Bulgarian Parliament.

The King's action came shortly after he had approved a new government headed by Kimon Gueorgueff, former minister of railways, as premier.

The new premier named a group of ministers, many of whom will fill two portfolios temporarily.

Even as the King dissolved Parliament, rumors were circulating outside the country that he had been assassinated.

Graft Charge Perils Japanese Cabinet

Capone Henchman Starts Prison Term

CHICAGO, May 19.—(INS.)—Hymie (Loud Mouth) Levin, former collector for the Al Capone gang, went to Leavenworth Penitentiary today to begin serving an 18 months' sentence for income tax evasion.

Convicted and sentenced on a charge of failure to report a million dollars income, Levin surrendered last night and was started on his way to prison two hours later.

Star Witness

ROBERT K. BOYER

Mr. Boyer, Mt. Lebanon Township commissioner who told as a government witness in the Steedle trial of how an election steal had been proposed to him in 1932.

PHANTOM X'S ON BALLOTS CHARGED

Government Witness Tells of Wholesale Vote Markings

The tricks which government prosecutors contend were played with ballots cast in the November election of 1932 were exposed today in Federal Court to a jury whic his hearing charges that Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, the McKees Rocks assemblyman, and 11 other politicians conspired to steal votes.

Maurice A. Nernberg, handwriting expert and witness for the government, laid before the jury ballots cast in Carnegie and Scott and Stowe townships and explained in detail just how the election-stealing plot charged by the government was operated.

Prosecutors James I. Marsh and Louis E. Graham first took up ballots cast in the First Ward of Carnegie in the election which marked the downfall of the Regular Republican Organization. Nernberg testified:

"It is my judgment that a number of ballots for federal and state offices were marked by more than one person."

Nernberg then exhibited ballots which he contended were marked with two pencils and in the handwriting of two persons.

PHANTOM X's

He led the jury to the windows of the courtroom, where the light shone down on what the witness described as phantom X's on the ballots.

These were described as imprints caused by X's marked on earlier ballots in the same pack.

The government prosecutors sought to prove that one person had marked ballots in wholesale lots with Nernberg's testimony that the same person's mark was apparent on more than one ballot, that many of the ballots for state offices were so alike as to suggest carbon copies.

U. S. TO REST CASE

With Nernberg's testimony the government was all but ready to rest its case.

Yesterday they put Robert K. Boyer, Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioner, on the stand, and the echo of his amazing testimony was still banging against the ears of the defendants.

PLOT CHARGED

The testimony of Boyer crackled above the silence of a crowded courtroom.

He testified that two days after the November (1932) election, in

$100,000 BALM FOR DIVORCEE

International News Service.

CHICAGO, May 19.—An out-of-court settlement of the $1,500,000 breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, of New York, against Harold F. McCormick, Chicago harvester millionaire, was announced today.

The suit will be dismissed some time next week, according to Attorney Henry K. Urion, representing the New York divorcee. Urion confirmed reports that a settlement was reached while Mrs. Doubleday was visiting here last month.

What sum was involved in the settlement Urion refused to disclose, but reports were that the consideration was approximately $100,000.

Mrs. Doubleday, prominent in New York society, filed suit against McCormick here last October 24, charging that the wealthy manufacturer had proposed marriage to her in November of 1932. The proposal, according to the suit, was made during an automobile ride here and came as the climax of a courtship of 11 months.

Unknown Man Dies When Hit by Train

The body of an unidentified white man, aged between 30 and 35, was found today along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets, McKeesport. He had been killed by a train.

The body had been so mangled that the clothing was the only hope of identification. The man wore a red sweater, dark trousers and black shoes.

Roosevelt Calls for War on Crime

Appeals to Public To Face Facts of Lawlessness

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt called on all American citizens to marshal support today for the federal government's war on crime.

While the Department of Justice girded itself with new weapons to wield against criminals, the President said:

"I ask citizens, individually and as organized groups, to recognize the facts and meet them with courage and determination"

Public intolerance of the evildoer, the President asserted, is needed to bolster th nation's drive on inter-state crime.

In signing six bills yesterday to strengthen the forces of the Department of Justice, President Roosevelt signalized the action as "an event of the first importance," adding:

"So far as the federal government is concerned, there will be no relenting.

"But there is one thing more. Law enforcement and gangster extermination cannot be made completely effective so long as a substantial part of the public looks with tolerance upon known criminals, permits public officers to be corrupted or intimidated by them, or applauds efforts to romanticize crime."

Six Bills Approved Give New Strength To Enforcers

Conversations between Justice Department officials and Lewis H. Douglas, director of the budget, about the money needed to tighten the grip of the law were scheduled for the next few days.

Attorney General Cummings was said to believe about $3,000,000 is needed to get men and equipment for the extended war on the underworld.

Skullduggery in Air As Frog Leapers Vie

International News Service.

ANGELS CAMP, Cal., May 19.—Rubber bands were being removed from wallets here today as the rubbery-legged frogs of the Mark Twain country prepared to leap off in all directions as the climax of the annual frog jubilee.

Owners of jumping frogs are wont to compare their entries with such leapers as Walter Marty, hence the general unbuckling of wallets for the purposes of putting down a wager.

Skull duggery is afoot today just as it was when Mark Twain's "jumping frog of Calaveras" was compelled to gargle one-way buckshot, and the frog, Daniel Webster by name, brought anguish and pauperism to his backer.

Daniel Webster was a prodigious jumper but with his stomach filled with leaden pellets he was just a good "anchor man."

The natives know their Mark Twain and the wiles of man, particularly when he is the owner of a frog whose hind legs may bring both fame and glory—and a smelling of the "poke."

Each frog will be allowed three jumps. The first two constitute a sort of warm-up. The tape comes out for the third leap. One minute is allowed for the take-off. Firecrackers are not allowed to overcome the initial inertia.

ROOSEVELT URGES CURB ON SALE, SHIPMENT OF MUNITIONS

PRESIDENT ACTS TO END ARMS RACE PERIL

Opens Way for U. S. to 'Steal March' in Chaco Crisis

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—A triple play against war through curbing of sale and shipment of munitions, began at the Capitol today with President Roosevelt on the coaching line.

The President urged speedy Senate action on:

1—A nine-year-old Geneva treaty to limit international shipment of war implements.

2—A special resolution to prohibit the sale of arms in the United States to the Gran Chaco belligerents.

3—A resolution authorizing $50,000 to fund the special Senate investigation looking toward new legislation to curb "abuses" in the munitions traffi..

Chairman Pittman, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, reported he would press steadily for early Senate ratification of the 1925 Geneva arms treaty. The President called yesterday for this action to halt the "mad race in armaments which if permitted to continue may well result in war."

Early Senate approval was predicted also for the special resolution, transmitted by the State Department at the President's request, to prevent the sale of arms in this country to either Bolivia or Paraguay for use in their 50-year-old war over the Gran Chaco.

An identic resolution will be introduced Monday in the House by Chairman McReynolds, of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Under its provisions the President is authorized to issue a proclamation making it "unlawful to sell any arms or munitions of war in any place in the United States to the countries now engaged in that armed conflict, or to any person, company or association acting in the interest of either country."

Passage of the resolution will make possible direct action by the United States regardless of any action which may or may not be taken by other nations.

general belief that both Japan and Germany are preparing for war.

Unless the disarmament conference can be saved, the Soviet Commissar told Barthou, the world will witness an arms race that will crush all hopes of world peace.

LLitvinoff proposed to Barthou and to Arthur Henderson president of the arms conference, that the discussions be concentrated on two points:

First, the definition of an aggressor state.

Second, regional mutual assistanec pacts which would make possible limitation of military establishments.

He declared the proposal by some powers to abandon the conference for the time being and send the whole question back to the League of Nations Council for a new start was dangerous. He expressed the hope that the conference would adopt unanimously Russia's definition of an aggressor which would outlaw automatically any nation invadnig another's territory and refusing arbitration.

Britain Feared as Jap Ally by Chinese Official

LONDON, May 19.—Sir John Simon's declaration that Great Britain is not pledged to preserve the integrity of China "constitutes an open invitation to Japanese militarists to bite off another chunk of China," an official in high Chinese quarters charged today.

Fully agreeing with Sir Stafford Cripp's assertion that "Japan is converting Manchuria and Jehol into a vast military base," the official told the Associated Press:

"China now is in the direst danger as a result of Great Britain's statement of policy.

"It looks as though Britain is moving in the direction of an ally of Japan to counter-balance the Russo-American rapproachment. However, the Chinese hope this really is not true, for Britain should line up with the United States and thus hold the balance of power against Japan."

M'NAIR SEEKING STARR OUSTER

A campaign among the boroughs to oust David L. Starr, their representative on the Traction Conference Board, is the latest activity in regard to that body announced by Mayor McNair.

With former Safety Director Ralph E. Smith now a member of the Board, the Mayor faces the possibility of having taken away from him by an ordinance proposed by William A. Magee, the power to appoint the city's Traction Board members.

As an alternative the Mayor proposes a campaign against Starr, declaring that Council cannot regulate what happens to the representative of the boroughs. As to Starr, the Mayor said:

"He's been there for years and never did anything. He's like (Charles A.) Finley."

The Mayor and Chairman Finley had a friendly chat yesterday at the board, the Mayor appearing there to introduce the new member.

REDS ACCUSED BY WOLL

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A charge that the Communist party of the United States received instructions from the Communist International in Moscow regarding methods to be followed in America subsequent to the pledge given by Maxim M. Litvinoff to President Roosevelt as a condition of Soviet recognition has been made by Matthew Woll.

The charge was contained in a letter written by Woll, who is acting president of the National Civic Federation, to Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, chairman of the House committee to investigate Nazi and other foreign propaganda in the United States.

Among Woll's charges were these:

"The objective of the Communist party is the establishment of a Soviet regime in place of the present government of the United States.

"This change in the form of government is not to be effected by constitutional means, but by the use of force and violence."

DARROW REPORT UNDER GUARD

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The long-awaited report of the Darrow Recovery Review Board denouncing the Blue Eagle, and the reply of the NRA, were mimeographed yesterday in a closely guarded room for publication today.

The document, consisting of 323 pages, contains approximately 100,000 words.

All workers were searched on leaving the room after long shifts, and the "gag" was clamped on all who had access to the statements.

Complaint concerning the overtime work was registered at a meeting of the NRA section of the Federation of Government Employes.

For the last week Recovery Administrator Johnson, chief NRA counsel Donald Richberg and the divisional administrators have dropped most of their activity to concentrate on the report.

Each divisional chief was assigned to one of the eight codes assailed by the Darrow board as permitting monopoly and oppressing the "little fellow."

MENACE OF WAR TO CITIES TOLD

The Indians and the Hill Billies of the Ozarks are coming into their own, David Gibson, Lorain, O., newspaper editor, told members of the Henry George Club in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. But they'll have to wait until after the next war. Editor Gibson said:

"Populations in the congested areas will be wiped out. Only those living in the open country can hope to survive the rain and hail of poison gas, bombs and disease germs which will be dropped by the enemy. Only the Hill Billies and the Indians will survive."

The next great war is not far distant, he predicted, due to "economic greed." Of depressions he said:

"We will continue to have depressions until the nation and the world are placed on a sound economic basis."

RETURN BOARD CALLS FOUR

Members of four election boards appeared before the Return Board this morning to account for discrepancies in Tuesday's primary election tabulations.

Boards in which the differences were discovered were the Third and Fourth Districts, Aspinwall; Second District, Sixteenth Ward, and the Fourth District, Sixteenth Ward.

John Henry, director of the elections bureau, said there was no evidence of fraud uncovered in the first 20 districts now being tabulated.

The Return Board will sit today from 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

LONG IN REVOLT ON TARIFF POWERS

Democratic Support Cut as Senator Scores Bill

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—A break in the solid Democratic support of the bill giving President Roosevelt broad tariff-slashing powers to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements, today failed to shake administration plans to enact it by the end of next week.

Senator Huey P. Long (Dem.), of Louisiana, a thorn in the administration's side, led the break. He assailed the Democrats for violating their 1932 party platform by supporting the bill. His attack annoyed administration leaders but failed to win sufficient support to endanger the bill, despite almost solid Republican opposition.

Huey got under Democratic skins by reading the Democratic pledge on the tariff. It read:

"We advocate a competitive tariff for revenue, with a fact-finding tariff commission free from executive interference."

Long charged the bill, giving the President power to raise or lower tariffs, was a plain violation of this pledge. He also quoted speeches by Secretary of State Hull and Senator Pat Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, assailing a Republican proposal to give former President Hoover tariff-changing powers.

He quoted Hull in 1932, as saying a delegation of taxing powers, such as giving the President power to fix tariff duties, was "clearly unconstitutional" and a "violation of the functions of the American Congress."

A flood of amendments were offered. Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, offered two, one to exempt agricultural products, the other to force Senate ratification of any completed treaty. Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, also proposed to make the proposed agreements subject to Senate approval. Other amendments placed different restrictions on the President's proposed powers.

JUDGE STUDIES 2-JOB CASE

Whether Councilman Louis Ebner, of Millvale, is guilty of holding two jobs is up for decision by Visiting Judge S. John Morrow in Criminal Court.

Assistant District Attorney Russell Adams yesterday completed the case against Ebner, presenting evidence to show that while a member of the Millvale Council, Ebner also was employed by the Duquesne Light Company.

The law prohibits borough officials from being employed by firms from which the borough purchases equipment or supplies.

The light company sells electric power to the borough.

J. I. Simon, counsel for the councilman, demurred to the charges, arguing Ebner was guilty of no crime even if the facts are true.

The attorneys were instructed to prepare written briefs.

Motorists Cautioned On Safety Week Eve

Motorists were urged to exercise caution by the Better Traffic Committee yesterday, warning that people are being killed at the rate of 150 a year in Pittsburgh and 2,500 in Pennsylvania. The warning was sounded in calling attention to the observance next week of "Pennsylvania Highway Safety Week."

NRA STEEL CODE REVISION NEAR FINAL ACTION

Mellon Group, Others Argue Over Price at Aluminum Parley

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—Revision of the steel code, NRA trouble spot since the beginning, is substantially completed and will be announced within a week or 10 days. Within the same time codes for aluminum and for the electrical industry may be finished and ready for final action.

This news was given yesterday by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson just as his aides completed the first hearing on imposition of a code upon the telegraph industry.

The steel code, criticized by the Federal Trade Commission and by the Darrow review board, came up for revision because in its present form the pact was approved only until May 31.

HELD DEFECTIVE

Deciding it was defective in major respects, Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, its general counsel, held a series of conferences with steel leaders. Johnson said that only a minor point remained to be settled and that this awaited collection of statistical data.

The aluminum code, revised for the sixth or seventh time, was finally ready for Johnson's inspection and report to President Roosevelt. Richberg expected to complete the electric light and power code within a few hours.

Steel code changes were expected to modify the present "basing point" system of establishing prices so as to put a basing point at every important mill; besides that it was expected that the provision for including transportation from basing point to destination would be so modified that customers would not have to pay tolls not actually expended in getting the freight to them. No flat f. o. b. mill arrangement for steel is expected, however.

ALUMINUM TRUCE NEAR

The revision is expected to reduce materially advantages still held by some big companies.

Controversy in the aluminum field had narrowed down to dispute over language to prevent aluminum company subsidiaries from getting better prices for their metal than are available to independents.

The latter demanded a declaration for identical prices; the Mellon group, with allied companies, proposed that there should be no discrimination between the prices for the two groups, and provided that regardless of control of the domestic supply of virgin metal the Mellon companies should be free to meet any price for foreign aluminum.

MRS. PINCHOT RAPS JOHNSON

STROUDSBURG, May 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of Pennsylvania's Governor, yesterday criticized Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's administration of NRA, and termed the administrator:

"As much a traitor as Benedict Arnold."

Mrs. Pinchot spoke at a labor meeting in protest against a week-long shutdown of silk mills ordered by the code authority.

She described the NRA as a wonderful piece of legislation for the benefit of the workers, and said it can be used to advantage only through labor unions.

She said Johnson was allied with big business against the workers.

Mrs. Pinchot advised her hearers to organize for their own benefit, and declared that labor has a right to have a say in hours, wages and working conditions.

Weather Conditions

High pressure is centered over the Great Lakes region this morning, and extends southward over the Atlantic states, and another high is located off the Pacific Coast. A low is centered over South Dakota (Huron, 29.76 inches), and pressure is relatively low over the entire central and eastern sections of the country. The Dakotas low produced light thunderstorms in North Dakota during last night, and scattered light showers occurred in Western Montana. There was light rain also in New Orleans and Miami during yesterday and last night. There is some cloudiness over these sections this morning, elsewhere the skies are clear. Warm weather prevails over the entire country this morning, and high maximum temperatures occurred yesterday in the plains states. In the Canadian Northwest the weather continues cool.

River Conditions

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 1.0 foot; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.0; Pittsburgh, 10.1; Dam No. 4, 9.2; No. 6, 7.4; No. 10, 9.5; No. 12, 8.2. The dams are up.

ROOSEVELT SHIP AID TOLD

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—A lump-sum agreement the Shipping Board had with the Roosevelt Steamship Company for operation of three routes was scrutinized yesterday by the special Senate committee investigating ocean mail contracts.

The amounts paid were reduced a few months ago. Under the questioning of the committee chairman, Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, Kermit Roosevelt, official of the line, now owned by the International Mercantile Marine, testified that where one line was receiving a lump figure as high as $38,000 a round trip a ship in 1931, the cut the administration made last February brought that down to $10,000.

The investment of Vincent Astor, wealthy young friend of Roosevelt and a member of the directorate of the I. M. M., in the Roosevelt Line also was inquired into by Black.

Black introduced figures he said showed Astor had paid $227 a share for Roosevelt Steamship Company stock which had a book value at about that time of $48.60.

HOPES FOR MINE CODE FADE

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—The possibility that the anthracite industry may remain without a code is suggested by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, accompanied by the assertion that imposition of one by the NRA at this time probably would "work out a miniature revolution." He said yesterday:

"The anthracite situation is just as it has been for the last six months. It doesn't look as though we will get a code any time soon and I don't know whether there will be one or not.

"It is an extremely tough problem. The miners get a high rate of daily wage. Most of them do not want to spread the work by shortening their time and others go parading around, demanding the work be divided."

The chief stumbling block in the negotiations, as Johnson pointed out, is the length of the work week. The United Mine Workers of America, fighting for a 32-hour week, and the operators, clinging to 48 hours as fixed in their contract with the union, are deadlocked.

STEEDLE TRIAL TOLD OF VOTE 'TRICK'

U. S. Witness Charges Phantom Markings On Ballots

which he was defeated for the Legislature, Dr. Steedle, the McKees Rocks Assemblyman, proposed a plot to steal the election by altering ballots already counted.

This proposition was put to him in the washroom of Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood's office in McKees Rocks in Westwood's presence, Boyer related.

TELLS OF 'OFFER'

Steedle said Boyer's share of the expenses would be $200, and he offered to lend Boyer the money, the witness added. Boyer testified that when he turned down the plan because of "the principle of the thing," Steedle urged:

"Forget that conscientious stuff. You can't use it in Harrisburg. You would save the money on railroad fares alone to Harrisburg."

And there was no chance of being "caught" because Attorney B. Robert Averbach already had been consulted. Boyer quoted Steedle.

Boyer said the plan outlined by Steedle was to bring in for recount a number of boxes whose ballots had been changed "so we would all be elected."

DEFENSE OVER-RULED

At the same time some ballot boxes from McKees Rocks, apparently with untampered ballots, would be brought in to offset suspicion, Boyer explained.

And Boyer's $200 assessment was his share of the expenses incurred in doctoring the ballots before they were recounted, the witness testified.

Much of Boyer's testimony was recited over the strenuous objections of defense counsel, who were overruled by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

CAMPBELL ON STAND

Boyer was preceded on the stand by former Congressman Guy E. Campbell, who was defeated in that 1932 election.

Campbell told of a very interesting visit he received at 2:30 o'clock on the morning after Election Day. He had been up all night, in his home in Crafton, when Attorney John J. McGrath and Burton J. McKee, two of the defendants who had campaigned for him, arrived. Even then the returns showed Campbell trailing by 3,800 votes and he had conceded defeat. When he told his visitors this, he testified they replied:

"Well, could not someone get them for you?"

Campbell testified he answered:

"I am not interested; wouldn't have it that way."

Campbell said that at 10 o'clock on election night Steedle telephoned him and said:

"It looks like we are all done."

On trial with Steedle are Attorney B. Robert Averbach, counsel for the Republican county organization; Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks; Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, of Scott Township; Wallace Ray, clerk in the county delinquent tax office; Attorney John J. McGrath, Republican chairman of the Thirty-second Ward; Burton J. McKee, real estate dealer; Robert S. S. Haus, and four members of the Stowe Township police department, Frank Miller, captain; Thomas Saunders, chief; William Schwartz and August Weisser, patrolmen.

SUN HURTS EYES M'NAIR TO SUE

Mayor McNair does not like the shiny new white wall of the Allegheny County Courthouse, which reflects the glare of the afternoon sun into his fifth floor offices in the City-County Building.

The Mayor drew the curtains in his outer office yesterday and addressed the group which daily waits there as follows:

"The sun on that building hurts my eyes. I'll have to sue McGovern."

Workmen have now completed the cleansing of the greater part of the wall of the Courthouse facing Diamond street and are touching up the job with a sand blast.

McLeod Backers Fight House Adjournment

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—A determined fight against adjourning Congress without action on the McLeod bank payoff bill has been launched.

Resentful of tactics employed by the majority leadership to smother the measure, its supporters have begun circulation of a petition binding the House membership to vote against adjournment until the bill reaches the floor.

Except for early adjournment, maneuvered by House leaders yesterday, the McLeod bloc probably would have forced a vote on the bill May 28. A petition to discharge the Rules Committee from further consideration of the measure lacked only 18 of the 145 signatures required to force a vote on that day.

McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, said today he hopes to complete the petition Monday, thus forcing the measure to the floor June 11. Present plans, however, are for final adjournment around that date.

The fight for the McLeod bill, which would pay in full the depositors of closed national banks, has borne fruit even in the Banking and Currency Committee, a leader in the fight against it. Chairman Steagall is expected to bring out a bill providing for partial payment early next week.

Tied, Senator Suggests To Rival That Both Quit

Senator Chauncey W. Parkinson, of the Washington-Greene County district, yesterday suggested to D. Glenn Moore, Washington editor, his opponent in Tuesday's primary, that both withdraw and permit Republican party officials to name a candidate for the November election.

Moore and Parkinson were tied in the primary battle, each receiving 7,397 votes.

The vote in Greene County was: Parkinson, 1,583; Moore, 1,064. In Washington County the result was: Moore, 6,333; Parkinson, 5,814. Each carried his home county by 519 votes.

Parkinson, in his unusual offer, wrote:

"Our candidacies were submitted to the voters in the belief that one of us would best exemplify what they desired in the matter of representation in the State Senate.

"Since they have made no choice, I would suggest that we hand our joint resignations and withdrawals to the proper Republican authorities and allow some one to be selected as the Republican nominee who would remove from the election any of the disappointment and bitterness that might arise by the selection of either of us.

"I am suggesting this before the official count has brought any changes in the unofficial count of the Washington Reporter."

LEOPOLD AND LOEB COMPLETING 10TH YEAR IN PEN

THRILL SLAYERS PROVE 'MODEL PRISONERS'

Both Resigned to Fate After Decade Since 'Perfect Crime'

By COPELAND C. BURG,
International News Service.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Ten years ago, on May 21, two brilliant young college students tapped a boy on the head with a chisel. They stuffed his body under a South Side culvert and walked away, confident they had executed "the perfect crime."

But today 10 bitter years of tragedy streak after that cold chisel blow that killed little Bobby Franks.

A tell-tale pair of glasses found near the boy's body was traced to one of the youths and they were sentenced to spend the rest of their lives in prison. In September of this year, Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, will finish their first 10 years behind stone and steel—10 years unfolding dynamited happiness, wrecked homes and fortunes, death.

MODEL PRISONERS

Young Franks' father, a Chicago millionaire, is dead—victim of a broken heart. The fathers of both Leopold and Loeb are in their graves. Allan Loeb, a brother of Richard, is a Chicago broker. Several other relatives of the killers reside in Chicago and once in a while visit Stateville Prison, Joliet, where Loeb and Leopold are prisoners.

Leopold will be 30 years old in November. Loeb will be 29 next month.

Their future?

Well, the most that can be said for them is that they are rather brave; they don't complain, yet across their faces are the lines of deep sorrow, despite their youth.

Loeb is happier, less vindictive. He's still vain about his clothes and to an interviewer he often says:

"Please don't describe my clothes . . . Don't tell how I looked."

He wears the prison blue denim. He is still handsome with dark hair and skin without the usual prison pallor.

Leopold is more morose. He broods at times. He has been put in solitary confinement several times for small infractions of rules, such as failing to deliver a message—sometimes he acts as a prison messenger—at the proper time and for attempting to cook in his cell.

Both are considered model prisoners.

No one has the faintest idea Leopold and Loeb will ever have their sentences reduced, that they will ever be paroled from prison.

They are most carefully watched and guards go out of their way to see that they obey all rules just as other prisoners do. Not the slightest favoritism is shown them.

Richard is in charge of the prison correspondence school, said to have been originated by him. Through correspondence prisoners are taught languages, history and literature. Leopold is Loeb's assistant in the school and is also assigned to the prison library.

LEOPOLD 'ASSISTANT'

The correspondence school has been a "life-saver" to the condemned men, particularly Loeb. He has shown much enthusiasm about the school and won the admiration of Warden Whipp, who believes it one of the most important advancements made in years in prison work.

Leopold in recent months has been a faithful assistant to Loeb. More worldly than Richard, he has not been as enthusiastic over the school. He finds some pleasure in extra candy, tobacco and newspapers he is permitted to buy. He has ample funds for such purchases, having been left a $50,000 trust fund by his father. It is estimated that when he is 50 the trust fund will have grown to more than $250,000.

Their Crime Just Ten Years Old

NATHAN LEOPOLD, JR. RICHARD LOEB

OWNER OF CAFE LOSES FIGHT FOR BALM

'Flower of Old South' Doesn't Have to Pay Suitor $250,000

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A Supreme Court jury decided last night that the broken heart of Stanley Vulgaris wasn't worth $250,000, even if he were a descendant of Antony and Cleopatra.

The jilted Greek restaurant proprietor had testified that he lost his business because of his love for Mrs. Olive Spencer, 47-year-old flower of the Old South, that he spent $25,000 in courting her, and that his heart was shattered to the extent of a quarter of a million dollars.

Mrs. Spencer, buxom, red-haired and shrill voiced, spent some time on the witness stand, explaining:

"I never loved him, I just liked him very, very much."

Up to the end the 37-year-old Vulgaris pleaded that if his one time light o' love would only relent and marry him he would drop the whole suit then and there. He even had a minister in the courtroom.

WROTE HIM POEMS

But it took the jury only 40 minutes to decide that this time the woman needn't pay, and it took Mrs. Spencer less time than that to refuse her sorrowing suitor's final proposal.

Mrs. Spencer admitted writing poems to Stanley—poems which she forgot to credit to Elizabeth Barrett Brown, who wrote them first.

Mrs. Spencer, widow of a Charlotte (N. C.) financier, was asked:

"Didn't you write him letters?"

"I may have."

"Didn't you write him 50 or 60 letters, discussing the good times you had together? Didn't you tell him to cut down on his bread and starches, and didn't you promise him a change of some kind?"

SPAGHETTI DINNERS

Mrs. Spencer giggled and said:

"Oh, I was reducing. That was the change I meant."

She admitted meeting Vulgaris in a hotel flirtation, but she denied the $25,000 courtship, saying all she got out of her suitor was a few spaghetti dinners and some trips to the movies.

Recuperating June

JUNE ROBLES, 6 . . . MAYBE SHE'LL GO BACK TO SCHOOL

TWO DETAINED IN ROBLES KIDNAPING

June Fails to See Abductor in 'Most Promising' Suspect

TUCSON, Ariz., May 19.—(AP.)—Two unnamed suspects in the kidnaping of June Robles were detained by authorities for further questioning today, despite failure of the 6-year-old girl to identify either.

One of the men, taken into custody this morning, had been sought since June was found last Monday entombed in a sheet iron box buried in the desert. Officers described him as the "most promising" suspect they had rounded up. The girl studied his face calmly, but was unable to recognize him.

The other man, who had been questioned and released yesterday when June could not establish his identity, was brought in again for further examination.

TO CONTINUE EXAMINATION

Officers said they would continue examining the man confronted this morning by the girl, in an effort to check up on circumstantial evidence indicating he might have participated in the case without ever having been seen by the little victim.

June's failure to "put the finger" on the latest suspect climaxed a long series of official disappointments. She had recognized none of numerous persons viewed. Some theories of investigators partially collapsed as a result.

Information the little girl has given authorities led them to believe she would know at least one of three men she has said she saw during the 19 days she was in the desert pit nine and one-half miles southeast of Tucson.

Neither of the men examined was held in custody, and investigating officers afterward said they could be reached if wanted again.

TRACE LETTER

Authorities had not been able to establish as yet whether a mysterious anonymous letter from Chicago revealing the location of June's desert tomb had been carried by one of the conspirators from Tucson to the Illinois city for mailing, or had been sent to some one there for re-mailing, or whether it reached Gov. B. B. Moeur's office in Phoenix last Monday by accident or design.

One theory of investigators was that the abductors had decided to accept the $10,000 ransom offered by Fernando Robles—$5,000 less than the original demand—and arranged for mailing the letter on the assumption the contact, collection of the money and the escape of their negotiator would have been accomplished before arrival of the missive in Arizona.

Officers suggested the contact plans then might have gone astray and the conspirators had been unable to retrieve the letter.

MOVIE 'BOMBED,' 2 BURNED

An aged man and a boy suffered burns and other patrons, many of them women and children, rushed for the exits when a phosphorus bomb, placed on a seat in the Strand Theater, 1604 Carson street, last night was discharged, police said. The victims, seared by the flame, were John Bliss, 71, of 2328 Sarah street, and Nick Cosmides, 7, of 1916 Sarah street. They were treated at South Side Hospital and taken to their homes.

Four theaters were dynamited early April 30 in what police said they believe is a war between rival unions of motion picture operators. Investigators of the city and county detective bureaus united in their investigation of the outrages which followed a series of phosphorus bombings of theaters in the city and county in the last few months.

More than a score of patrons were burned by the latter depredations and heavy property damage resulted from the dynamite blasts which occurred while the theaters were unoccupied.

The theaters damaged by dynamite bombs were the New Oakland, 213-15 Atwood street; the Atlas, 2603 Perrysville avenue; the Arcadia, 823-25 East Ohio street, and the Colony, 720 Broadway, Stowe Township.

CLARION, Pa., May 19.—(AP.)—Students of Dubois, Ridgway and Knox high schools captured first places in Classes A, B and C, respectively in the eleventh annual musical festival at Clarion State Teachers College.

New Castle and Bradford won second and third places in Class A and B. Brookville took second and Clarion third, while St. Petersburg won second place in Class C.

Love Killer Tells Of Family in Ohio

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—(INS.)—Held on charges of killing his pretty sweetheart, Dorothy Smith, last April 15, when she refused to kiss him, Charles Johnson, 22, of Pasadena, Cal., today admitted to authorities that he had a wife and two children in Columbus, O.

Johnson said he was 16 years old and a high school student when he married Virginia Kuhlman in Columbus.

Ben Avon Student Wins at Allegheny

Fred Mair, senior at Ben Avon High School, today had been adjudged the winner of a competitive examination at Allegheny College, Meadville, and was awarded a four-year scholarship at Allegheny, amounting to $100 a year.

Virginia Derr, of Dormont High School, was among 10 other prize winners. Her award was $100 and one year of study.

Noted War Chaplain Visits Legion Here

In Pittsburgh to attend a conference of the Italian Legion, the Rev. Father James Salza, noted war chaplain, today was making his first visit here. He is the guest of Dr. Leone Sircana, Italian vice consul. Father Salza was wounded seven times and lost his left arm during the World War. He will preach tomorrow at St. Peter's Church, 120 Fernando street, and will speak to the Italian Legion at Carnegie Lecture Hall.

Turkey to Increase War Fund Millions

ISTANBUL, May 19.—Turkey's Turkey's war budget will be increased $20,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

Among measures to reinforce the country's defenses, the government decided also today to speed up railway construction in Anatolia and the Aegean Littoral.

Pair Take Movie To Prove Wedding License O. K.

Sterling S. Parker, attorney, and Evelyn N. Atkinson, stenographer, of Cleveland, O., wanted more than the usual form as proof that they got their marriage license in the City-County Building yesterday.

They brought along their moving picture camera and recorded the procedure in all its important details.

If any of their friends want to know just how and by whom the necessary step to marriage was accomplished, all they'll have to do is put up a screen, turn the handle and, presto, there will be the story in pictures.

PITT OBSERVING OPEN HOUSE

While volunteers work in an effort to raise the $1,650,000 necessary for completion of the Cathedral of Learning by the end of this month, Open House Week will be observed at the edifice next week.

The week of public inspection will open tomorrow at 2 p. m., with the following hours set aside for visitors: Sunday, 2 to 6 p. m.; week days, 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m.; Saturday, from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

As volunteers set out today to complete the fund, Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, announced that the name of every donor to construction of the edifice, from the 1925 campaign, when more than $8,100,000 was given, and including the present one, will be inscribed in a great book which is to be kept in the completed building. A similar book will be placed in the cornerstone of the 42-story building, he said.

WOMAN DRIVER, 2 MEN HURT

An auto accident on Jacks Run Bridge last night resulted in injuries to a young woman driver and two men.

Charlotte Hanna, 25, 408 Hiland avenue, Aliquippa, and a passenger, James Ramsey, 23, of 1320 Main street, were treated for shock and bruises. She was held under $1,000 bond, Bellevue police reported.

John Riley, 25, of 241 Allegheny avenue, Emsworth, the other driver, suffered a possible brain concussion.

Floyd Cooke, 31, of 709 Gearing avenue, was injured last night when his auto overturned in a collision with a truck at Castlegate and Berkshire avenues, Brookline. He was treated at South Side Hospital. The truck was driven by Wade McLaughlin, 2304 Palm Beach avenue, police said.

BEATS HIS SON, DIES IN CELL

Lodged in Woods Run Police Station last night after hitting his son over the head with a baseball bat, police said, Thomas Belking, 70, of 1513 Hanlon street, hanged himself with his belt in his cell 20 minutes later, the morgue reported.

The son, Charles Belking, 48, of 1314 Adams street, was struck with the bat when he told the father, who had been drinking, to go to bed, according to police.

Mrs. Belking called neighbors and police were summoned. Both were arrested, the son treated for a head laceration and the elder Belking placed in a cell.

HITCHCOCK SON DIVORCED

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Atwell Hitchcock had an interlocutory decree of divorce today from Francis C. E. Hitchcock, brother of Tommy Hitchcock, famous polo player, and youngest son of Thomas Hitchcock, horseman and poloist.

Supreme Court Justice Graham handed down the decree at a private hearing yesterday, giving Mrs. Hitchcock $8 a week alimony from Hitchcock's $16 a week salary as a Wall street clerk and custody of their child, 2-year-old Francis C. E. Hitchcock, Jr.

Evidence in the case was not made public.

The decree permits Mrs. Hitchcock to remarry after three months if she chooses, but prohibits Hitchcock from remarrying unless permission is obtained from the court.

Their wedding on September 21, 1930, in Manhasset, L. I., was one of the most brilliant of the season. She was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Atwell, of Mayfair House and Long Shadows, Manhasset.

30 Operas Slated By Phila. Orchestra

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—(AP.)—In order to meet changing conditions the Philadelphia Orchestra next season will give 30 performances of opera in 30 weeks in addition to 20 weeks of symphony concerts.

In announcing its activities for next winter the Philadelphia Orchestra Association referred to the financial difficulties in rearranging the concert season and keeping its organization intact.

LYNCHING MOB FOILED BY RUSE

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 19.—(AP.)—Removal of a young Negro accused of attacking a 13-year-old white girl to an unnamed prison today was credited with having prevented a charge upon the county jail here by a mob which at one time numbered around 1,000 persons.

Apparently convinced of officers' statements that the prisoner had been whisked away some 12 hours earlier, the remnants of a mob which clamored for the Negro's life during the night, finally dispersed shortly after 3 a. m.

The armed crowd gave up its vigil only after a group had dashed in automobiles to Gaffney, a town 50 miles away, to find that the Negro had not been taken there.

The girl victim was attacked Wednesday as she was returning from school. Twenty Negroes were jailed. The next day all except one, whose name officers have refused to divulge, were released.

FATE OF DAVIS UP TO PINCHOT

Hearing on the application of Illinois for the extradition of 19-year-old Thomas Davis, Jr., where he is wanted to answer to charges of assault with intent to kill and robbery at gun's point, will be held Monday before Gov. Pinchot at 11:30 a. m.

Davis, tried in Criminal Court here recently, was acquitted on a charge of having murdered State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger.

Davis will be represented in the hearing by Attorney Robert Ivory, Jr., who yesterday filed habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Thomas M. Marshall to prevent an attempt by Illinois authorities to "rush" the boy to their state. Hearing on the plea was set for Friday. Until that hearing, Davis cannot be removed legally from the state.

ARREST ENDS LONG JOY RIDE

Two boys whose 24-hour joy ride in six allegedly stolen automobiles was ended by Claysville police yesterday, were to be returned today to the Juvenile Detention Home, Oakland, from which they escaped Thursday, according to police.

Arrested on the outskirts of Claysville, the boys, 14 and 16, told police they were on their way to their homes in Pittsburgh and Homestead Park. They escaped from the Home after stealing clothing from the laundry, police said.

Then they began their joy ride throughout the Tri-State district in stolen automobiles, police said. In the first car they drove to Swissvale where they took another and started for Wheeling. They tried out three cars in West Virginia before driving to Claysville, where they took another, according to police. The cars were recovered.

Man Held Up by Woman With Knife

A $5 gold piece and a wallet were taken from Dominick Mineo, 45, of 1715 Watson street, by a Negro woman, armed with a knife, as he walked in Colwell street early today, Mineo reported to police.

Held by police in connection with the holdup are Peggy Robinson, 26, of 1227 Wylie avenue, and Percy Brown, 25, of 1511 Colwell street. Mineo's pocketbook and the gold piece were recovered from a mail box in Wylie avenue early today by a mail carrier.

HINT FIFTH MAN IN GETTLE CASE

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—(AP.)—After questioning Clyde Stoddard, 27, federal agents said today he would be held as a material witness in the William F. Gettle kidnaping case in which three other men have started life terms in San Quentin prison.

Stoddard was arrested Wednesday night on a technical charge of suspicion of kidnaping. It was found he was part owner of the automobile in which the Beverly Hills millionaire was abducted the night of May 9, but Stoddard insisted he knew nothing of the case and that he merely loaned the car to James F. Kirk, so-called "brains" of the plot, without knowing what Kirk planned to do.

Authorities continued investigation of the possibility another man was involved in the case. They believed a fifth man may have placed the ransom instruction note on the Beverly Hills Community Church steps, which Ernest E. Noon, Gettle family intermediary, was instructed to pick up.

Printing Official Dies in W. Va.

GRAFTON, W. Va., May 19.—(AP.)—Raymond L. Newlon, manager of the Grafton Printing Company and a former business manager of the Grafton Sentinel, died at his home today.

Newlon, who was 44, had been in ill health several weeks, but his death was caused by an unexpected heart attack. His widow and three children survive.

'Human Target' Shot, Goes On With Show

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 19.—(AP.)—Alda May Cole, 19-year-old performer with the Gorman Brothers Circus and wife of Rex Cole, motion picture star, carried on through an exhibition sharp shooting act yesterday afternoon in Hamden, after she was shot between the right eye and the nose with a .22-caliber slug. She collapsed later in her husband's arms.

The wounded girl went on with her act again last night, after the bullet had been removed at Grace Hospital. Lou Morphy, the circus crack shot, told how the accident happened.

It was during that part of the act when Morphy, firing rapidly, snuffs out three candles lighted atop Mrs. Cole's head. Morphy said that one of the slugs split after leaving his gun, half of it snuffing the candle flame and the other half lodging in the head of the "human target."

Although wounded Mrs. Cole stood in front of the blazing gun until the candles had been snuffed and then walked calmly from the tent, collapsing as soon as she was outside.

Man Dead and Revived Lives for Three Hours

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—Medical science fought desperately with death and won—but death struck back and claimed anew the victim once snatched from its grasp.

S. J. Winner, 38, who swallowed poison in his room, died four minutes after he was carried into Emergency Hospital yesterday.

But Dr. A. D. Trotter refused to admit death's victory despite the fact there was no pulse, no heart action and the man's pupils had dilated.

Dr. Trotter called for the most powerful heart stimulants. He injected seven and a half grains of one, intravenously, and repeated the injection at five-minute intervals, until 30 grains had been administered.

Meantime he injected other compounds. Anxiously he watched. Presently the doctor and the nurses hovering near were thrilled to observe a faint heart action. It grew stronger. The pulse beat slowly at first and then sought to find the rhythm of life.

After his "death," the poison victim again lived for three hours. Finally, the poison he had chosen as a means of suicide proved too great. He died again. And this time nothing could be done.

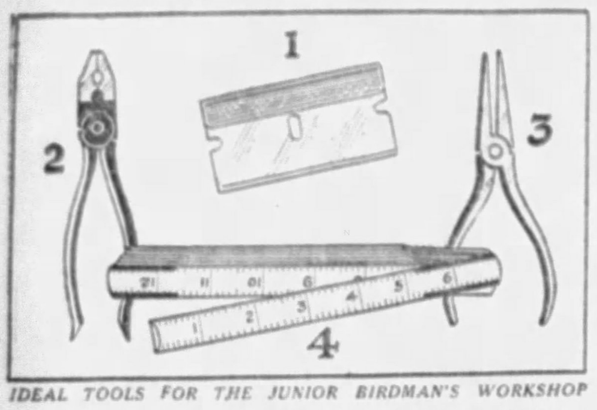
Second Lesson in Model Building Lists Necessary Tools That Are Used

By LAWRENCE SHAW

(Editor's Note—This is the second lesson in the Junior Birdmen Model Builders' Course for Beginners. It deals with the necessary tools required for the construction of model planes. While these first lessons are merely a preparatory series of articles for actual model building work, they are, nevertheless, an important part of our course. A proper bench to work on, the right tools to work with and the choice of the best materials to build your craft of, are all important. The actual details and directions for building and constructing your first model will start in a few lessons—and in time enough for members to build models to enter in the forthcoming Junior Birdmen Model Plane Contests which were announced in this column yesterday.)

JUNIOR BIRDMEN
MODEL BUILDERS' COURSE FOR BEGINNERS
Lesson II—The Tools

The most expert of model builders, as well as the beginner in model aircraft construction, need but few and inexpensive tools to work with. Many authorities at this point seem to feel that this is the reason model building has become so popular. However, my opinion differs. No boy or girl would give up this splendid sport and constructive hobby even if many tools were necessary, and their expense was something to trouble them. But the fact that only three or four tools are needed and they may all be bought with a dollar bill, and then some change left over, does help the situation, nevertheless.



IDEAL TOOLS FOR THE JUNIOR BIRDMAN'S WORKSHOP

Many model builders use no more than a razor blade, a pair of scissors and a piece of sandpaper. Yet the boy and girl who wants to turn out models that represent fine workmanship and have good flying qualities will use a few more tools than this.

Cutting Tools

The most essential tool is the most reasonable tool! It is a common safety razor blade. Not the razor blade with two cutting edges but the type blade that has one cutting edge and a heavy metal bar across the top. This is necessary in order that you may get a proper grip on the blade for cutting your Balsa wood, for that is just what this tool is used for.

Since I have told you nothing about Balsa, and won't until our next lesson which will deal with materials, you probably are all awonder as to how a small razor blade can cut wood. Well, the Balsa that we will buy in our local department store or model aircraft store will almost be cut to measure. All we will have to do is trim it. Besides Balsa is just as soft as the proverbial "butter," yet has enough tensil strength to permit us to use it exclusively for our model work. It is the lightest wood in the world. But more about that in our next lesson.

You may prefer a jackknife instead of a razon blade for cutting your sheets of Balsa wood into strips, and cutting out wing ribs, motor stick, etc., but you will find that your jackknife blade is much thicker than a razor blade, and you will find, too, that your razor blade is much sharper than your knife usually will be.

So you see our most necessary tool is the most reasonable. As a matter of fact, dad's old castoff blades will do, providing they are of the proper type as shown in figure one (1) in the illustration accompanying today's lesson.

Wire Bending Tools

While our first all-Balsa glider will have no wire fittings, our second model will and so we might just as well get our wire bending tools at once. These wire fittings are small clips, which we bend out of common ordinary piano wire, for holding our wings on, for making our propeller shaft, etc.

For bending this wire into squares, curves and angles we need two separate pair of pliers. One is a flat nose plier as shown in figure two (2) in the illustration accompanying this column, and the other is a round nose plier as shown in figure three (3). The flat nose plier is used for making square and angular fittings and straightening out the wire when necessary. It also has a little notch near the nose for cutting wire, and this is handy. The round nose plier is used for making curves and circles in our wire fittings.

When the time comes for making our first fittings I will publish illustrations showing you just how to use these tools.

Your next requisite in the way of model builder's tools is a pair of scissors. Any pair of scissors will do as long as they are sharp. The scissors are used for cutting tissue paper (Japanese tissue) for your wings and tail unit covering.

Folding Ruler Necessary

A wooden folding ruler, such as is shown in figure four (4) in today's illustration, is of great help. Not the tape measure type, but the wooden type which can be unfolded to a length of 48 or 60 inches. The tape measure is not used because it requirs two hands to hold it when opened out, and should it become knotted or slack you will have an untrue measurement.

The only other tools that are necessary are a sharp pencil and several pieces of sandpaper. I don't know whether we can call sandpaper a tool, but to make classification simple, I include it here. You should have several grades of sandpaper, fine, medium and coarse. Sandpaper is used to finish off the wings of an all-Balsa plane, and other wood parts, and finish off propellers and round ends where necessary. I told you that but few tools would be necessary and that they were inexpensive.

Well, you have the entire list necessary for a beginner. Let's go over them once more so as to be sure you don't miss any when buying them. First, a single edge razor blade, then flat-nose plier, a round-nose plier, a pair of scissors, a pencil and sandpaper.

Now go out and buy these necessary tools and, after our next lesson Tuesday which will deal with material and tell you just what to buy in the way of Balsa wood, cement, etc., we will be ready to start on our beginner's glider.

No Nails Are Used

Let us get one important thing straight right now. At no time are nails and hammer used in model plane work. Never! Nails would make a model heavy and hamper the flying qualities of the craft. Model planes must be kept light and so we use a special grade of cement to hold our wood members together.

Of course, later on, when you build more advanced models, there will be several other tools that you will want to have. Among them will be a coping saw to cut the bigger Balsa planks which you will use at that time, a knife for carving your own propellers, a small benzine lamp for heating bamboo when wishing to bend it, a small drill and perhaps a small vice for your work bench. But it will be many planes before you will even consider needing these extra tools.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

South Sea Island Lecture Downtown

Paul C. Bragg, recently returned from a visit to the South Sea Islands, will open a week's series of public health lectures at the Moose Temple, Penn avenue, at 8 p. m. Monday.

Bragg, a teacher, lecturer, and exponent of good health, lived as a native on the islands in order to get the first-hand secrets of a race of people not burdened with 4,000 diseases. In his lectures he will tell of the method followed by those people in remaining free from ill health.

NEWS ABOUT PITTSBURGH CHURCH ACTIVITIES

SPECIAL RITES WILL MARK PENTECOST

Pentecost will be observed in Pittsburgh churches tomorrow with special services in many of the churches.

Elaborate ceremonies will mark the observance of the day in Epiphany Catholic Church at 11 a. m. Torch boys, acolytes, thurifers, choir boys and priests will all take part in the service at which the Rev. L. A. O'Connell will deliver the sermon.

Churches of the Pittsburgh Synod, United Lutheran Church in America, will observe the festival of Pentecost with the receipt of an offering for the extension of the Home Mission activity of the church. The Rev. Dr. Henry H. Bagger, president of the synod, and Dr. John J. Myers, missionary superintendent will be in charge.

All mission churches in the Diocese of Pittsburgh will send their choirs to take part in the Whitsunday Diocesan missionary service to be held in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, at 8 p. m. Bishop Alexander Mann is to be the speaker.

The Little Flower Club will hold its annual corporal communion in the Little Flower Convent, Arch street, at the 9 a. m. mass tomorrow. Immediately after mass the annual communion breakfast will take place in the clubrooms.

In the afternoon the girls of the club will honor the Blessed Virgin by crowning her Queen of May. Miss Gertrude Strahler, club president, will be the May Queen.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING IN MT. LEBANON

Conventions play an important part in church schedules during the coming week, for meetings are being held in Pittsburgh and in other cities in which members of churches of the district will participate.

Tuesday at 6:15 p. m. the Protestant Sunday schools of the Thirty-seventh District will meet for dinner and discussion at the Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, Washington road. The evening, divided into three periods, will be devoted to the study of up-to-date methods for carrying on religious instruction through the Sunday school.

The Rev. T. Leroy Hooper will make the evening's main address. He will speak on "Our Responsibility in the Newer Emphasis in Character Education."

A delegation of members from the First Baptist Church, Bellefield avenue, will leave Monday for Rochester, N. Y., for participation in the Northern Baptist convention. Delegates, elected at a church meeting this week, include Dr. and Mrs. B. C. Clausen, Dr. and Mrs. Lester W. Bumpus, Mrs. W. E. Askin, Miss Florance M. Rehbeck, W. E. Clark, Leslie T. Phillips, Mrs. A. E. Gray, W. I. King, Mrs. C. J. Stout, O. R. Morgan, Mrs. W. L. Gable, Mrs. A. N. Greenlee, Mrs. F. L. Swanberg and David Gustafson.

The Rev. and Mrs. Frank Edwin Smith, of the First Unitarian Church, Ellsworth avenue, are the guests this week of the American Unitarian Association at its annual May meetings in Boston. Mrs. Edward B. Lee is also representing the church at the meetings.

The Story of Jezebel — CHAPTER V — Told in Pictures By DAN SMITH

When Jehoram, king of Israel, with the kings of Judah and Edom, went to make war on the Moabites, there was no water for their armies; but the prophet Elisha bade them dig ditches, and water filled the valley.

And when the battle was sore against him and he could not break through to the King of Edom, the King of Moabites took his eldest son and offered him for a burnt offering upon the wall.

Then it came to pass that Jehu, son of Jehoshaphat, by order of the prophet Elisha was anointed king over Israel in place of Jehoram. And Jehu rode in his chariot to Jezreel, where Jehoram lay ill.

When the watchman on the tower in Jezreel saw a company approaching he told Jehoram, who ordered a messenger sent on horseback to ask whether they came in peace. But the messenger did not return.

PITTSBURGH SYMPHONY -:- Floyd Gibbons, Byrd, Beatrice Fairfax -:- BROADCASTS TONIGHT

Concerts on Two Local Stations

The entire Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra is heard over the air for the first time tonight in a full-hour concert over WCAE.

Playing in the Italian room of the William Penn Hotel, a section of the orchestra, under the direction of Antonio Modarelli, plays for the KDKA audience from 8:30 until 9 o'clock, and the entire ensemble entertains WCAE listeners from 10:30 until 11:30.

Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the Symphony Society, makes a brief address during the first concert, and David I. McCahill, vice chairman of the men's division, speaks on the WCAE program.

The two performances are given as part of the symphony's drive to raise $100,000 toward the furtherance of fine music in Pittsburgh.

* * *

Outstanding figures of the sports world take part in a special one-hour program over the CBS-WJAS network tonight from 8 to 9 o'clock.

Primo Carnera, Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross represent the prize ring, Joe McCarthy, New York Yankees' manager, is baseball's representative. Benny Friedman, Gene Sarazen and Ellsworth Vines appear on the program as leaders in the realms of football, golf and tennis.

Gus Haenschen's orchestra furnishes the music.

* * *

WAGGIN' TONGUE

Beatrice Fairfax chides the village gossips on her WCAE broadcast tonight at 9:30, asserting malicious tongue-wagging is the cause of much of the world's woe.

* * *

"Home On the Range" may sound like a pot boiling over on the kitchen stove when Yoichi Hiraoka, Japanese xylophonist, plays it over NBC-KDKA tonight at 7:30.

* * *

Hark, hark, the dogs do bark on the Byrd broadcast tonight. The Antarctic explorers set up a string of microphones among the huskies as a feature of the Little America program, on WJAS at 10.

* * *

Floyd Gibbons makes his second appearance of the season over WCAE at 8:30 p. m.

* * *

Glib Joe Cook, who made his debut at the WCAE Saturday Night House Party, as a guest, has been engaged for the entire series. He is heard over the Sun-Telegraph station tonight at 9.

* * *

We suggested it two years ago, and again two weeks ago, but the local stations have left it for the San Francisco and Chicago hustlers to bring the Junior League into radio. CBS-WJAS stages a drama, with Junior Leaguers as actresses, this afternoon.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Harold from Harrison City accuses the Globe Trotter of being stingy with aviation talks because we put them on usually at 12:15.

Harold points out that that is 1:15 at Harrison City, Harrison City not observing Daylight Saving Time, at which time the youngsters are at school.

All I can say Harold, is thank you for your letter and ask you to be patient. School will soon recess for the summer vacation and then you can listen at the regular time; but by then I suppose you'll be out in the ole swimmin' hole.

* * *

W. Edgar Galbreath, Birkey avenue, a lighter-than-air enthusiast, wants to thank Arthur Brisbane for his defense of the dirigible. Mr. Brisbane can be reached by mail, if a letter is sent promptly, in care of the Los Angeles Examiner, otherwise in care of the New York Journal.

* * *

Ann Frost, Overbrook—I did not make an announcement about sending in a dollar for plants. If you sent in a dollar, tell me to whom you sent it and I will check up on it.

* * *

Mrs. Charles Stubert, New Kensington, writes of an ancient volume in her and her family's possession for some 55 years. The title of the volume is "A History of the World Ancient and Modern" by Evert A. Duyckinck."

Picnic Plans Cause Strife in Family

When "Pa" in "Our Family" buys a straw hat, summer and the time for a picnic is nigh. Both he and "Ma" want to go, but they are in the minority!

That's the plot in tonight's episode in the series of dramatizations broadcast Saturdays at 7 from WCAE.

At 10:30 WCAE brings the audience an hour's program by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Council Gets New Cab Proposition

City Council Monday will consider a letter sent to that body, Mayor McNair and the City Law Department by the Zone Cab Corporation of Cleveland, seeking support of the city to place on the streets of Pittsburgh 300 cabs which will result in a lowering of the taxicab fares. The letters promise employment to 1,000 Pittsburghers. The incorporators of the new company are Harry W. Dolton, Daniel Sherby, Sylvester V. McMahon and David Gibson, of Cleveland; Harry Sherby, of Washington, and Hergert Jacobson, of Pittsburgh.

Sand Company Here Files Tax Appeal

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—The Keystone Sand and Supply Company of Pittsburgh has petitioned the Board of Tax Appeals for a redetermination of income tax claims of $18,599 for 1929 and $10,700 for the period from January 1 to September 30, 1930. Its petition claimed the Bureau of Internal Revenue disallowed adequate reductions from taxable income for depreciation, obsolescence of equipment, and bond discount and retirement costs.

Kidnapers Threaten Air Stars

By AIRCASTER

The drastic treatment of the Gettle kidnapers as an object lesson to would-be abductors has brought easier breathing among a dozen or more radio celebrities who have spent many sleepless nights due to threats against themselves or families.

If all the money expended by famous microphoners for safety against criminals were pooled, it would make up a vast fortune. Some of the topliners of the radio business have been employing bodyguards for as long as six years.

Few of the big names ever travel about without bodyguards and few of the families of the artists "in the money" are left unprotected.

Both Bing Crosby and Morton Downey have worried considerably over their children, who are kept constantly guarded.

Rudy Vallee is never abroad alone.

Until several weeks ago Kate Smith had cherished the idea that she was too heavy a proposition for snatchers, but she found out otherwise. In Milwaukee where she was playing, the "pilot" of a Chicago ring of kidnapers was spotted on her trail.

Ted Collins, her manager tipped the cops and the bad boy was "told off."

WAS IT BEETLE?

Jack Benny is still wondering who those thugs were who tried to nab him after his show last Friday night. He was decoyed to the Bronx by a phoney call, supposedly from a columnist friend. There his cab was surrounded by hoodlums and only the deft manipulation of the taxi by its driver made it possible for the comedian to light out in time.

Kidnaping is no novelty to radio headliners. Few people, however, know about their experiences.

It wasn't long ago that Phil Baker was snatched in Chicago, but a gangster whom he had once befriended turned it into a gag by making Baker entertain his way out of a roadhouse that would ordinarily, have become his prison.

The squeeze was said to have been put on Fanny Brice the same year. Lou Holtz, too, had trouble.

Russ Columbo was held captive two days by a mob in Philadelphia. He was rescued by another gang.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

Audacious little Pekingese yapping at the heels of haughty Great Danes and big bulldogs leaping at each others throats and a mixed chorus of barking of little dogs and big dogs were the sights and sounds on the usually quiet and peaceful lawns of the Winchester School yesterday. The students were holding their annual dog show.

They had a flower show, too, in the school building and one in the made out of doors. Marie McCahan had her Great Dane there as did Mary Louise Warrick. Mary Edwards was exhibiting her showy poodle. Marion and Peggy McCague were showing a noble Irish setter and little Jessie Butler had entered her collie, Pa.

Different Breeds On Exhibition

Kitty Lou Taylor and Martha Jane Hankey had their ferocious bull dogs in the show and Roberta Martin had a lovely white collie. Jean and Phyllis Kreyer had their graceful Russian wolfhound entered.

Other young exhibitors were Emily Burroughs, Nancy Laughlin, Nancy Landon, Henrietta and Peggy Gould, Susy Hays.

Fredericka Berger was chairman of this thrilling show. Kate Curry was chairman of flowers; Mary Cooper, of handcrafts; Molly Hays, of the dogs; Virginia Witherow, prizes and tickets; Stuart Hart, refreshments.

Socialites Gather At Benefit Event

Socialites gathered at the William Penn's Urban room last night for a most festive benefit—the supper-dance the social service committee of the Homeopathic Hospital gave for the hospital, of course.

Mrs. Henry Clay Adams, who is president of the social service department, was chairman of last night's successful party. Mrs. Sidney Hammond was treasurer.

Mrs. Gordon A. Fisher, Jr., did the publicity and Mrs. Richard E. Clemson, Mrs. Aiken Fisher, Jr., Mrs. George C. Stephenson and Mrs. Frank B. Edmundson secured the lengthy list of patronesses.

For a patroness list always ensures the success of any benefit or performance.

Drama Unit Of Congress Closes

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A rather formidable array of talent was assembled for the closing session of the drama department at the Congress of Clubs yesterday. It was a luncheon meeting, of course, and was marked by particularly lovely decorations of gay spring flowers gracefully arranged in a number of vases and bowls.

With Mrs. Joseph R. Bradley as announcer, Mrs. J. Charles Wilson started the program ball a-rolling by giving some of those exquisite poems which she knows so well how to choose and to interpret. Mrs. Stewart McFarland followed with some of her own and then Mrs. J. H. Dickson did child impersonations.

Mrs. Aden L. Fillmore's contribution was a group of poems including the old "Battle of the Kegs." Mrs. Reymer L. Mowry, in her offering, included an impersonation, a song, for which Mrs. R. K. Millward was accompanist, and an act from "Taming of the Shrew." Mrs. Richard Giese described the League of American Pen Women's tea at the White House and the program was concluded with Mrs. Frank R. Corby's impersonations and a group of readings by Mrs. John H. Bragdon.

A summer schedule has been announced for the Congress clubhouse effective from June 18 to September 4. Luncheon will be served each day except Sunday from 11:30 until 2:30, but dinners will be served for special parties only. And, as in former years, members of affiliated clubs may enjoy the privileges of the dining room during the summer. Special summer parties and meetings may, of course, be arranged for any time.

Society to Give Prizes for Poems

In connection with the observance of National Poetry Week, (May 20 to 26), the Pittsburgh Poetry Society and Bookfellows Library Guild are sponsoring a contest for the three best poems by Pittsburgh high school students. Each high school is asked to select the five best poems submitted. These will be turned over to the Poetry Society officials, who in turn will submit the 10 best poems to the judges, Miss Lillie Jordan, Mrs. Galen C. Hartman and Mrs. May T. Neff. The judges will then select the three best poems for which suitable prizes will be awarded.

The prize-winning poems are to be announced and read at the salon of the Poetry Society and Library Guild, to be held Monday evening at the home of national president, Marie Tello Phillips, Darlington road.

Bakerstown Girl Married Today

At 11o'clock this morning in the home of the Rev. H. J. Killmeyer, of Allison Park, the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth McNaughton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McNaughton, of Bakerstown, to William George Keil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keil, of Bakerstown, was solemnized by the Rev. Killmeyer.

Miss Betty Jane Keil, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and James H. McNaughton, the bride's brother, was best man. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Keil will be at home about June 1.

Miss Ethel Eger Chooses May 26 As Date for Marriage

Miss Ethel Eger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Eger, of Franklin avenue, Aliquippa, has chosen May 26 as the date for her marriage to Leon Stein, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Stein, of Conway, Pa.

The ceremony will take place that evening in the Masonic Temple in Aliquippa. Dr. Rose E. Stein, sister of the bridegroom-elect, will be maid of honor and Morris Kershner will be best man. There will be a reception later. An eastern wedding trip is planned after which Mr. Stein and his bride will be at home in Leishman avenue, New Kensington.

Miss Eger and her fiance both attended the University of Pittsburgh.

Bridgeville Club Plans Luncheon

In place of its annual picnic, the Bridgeville Woman's Club has planned a covered dish luncheon at the clubhouse on Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock.

Indiana Benefit Arranged for Tuesday

Miss Helen and Miss Rose Brennen, of North Negley avenue, will be hostesses at a bridge party in their home Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Jane Leonard Memorial Student Loan Fund of Indiana State Teachers' College.

Arranging the party are Miss Brennen as chairman; Mrs. Paul Murray, president of the Pittsburgh unit of Indiana alumni; Miss Helen Brennen, vice president; Miss Jennie Munro, secretary, and Miss Helen R. MacWilliams, treasurer.

Units of Women Voters to Close Seasons Next Week

Several units of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters are closing their seasons next week, among them the Twenty-fifth Ward unit, which will meet Tuesday evening in the North Side Y. M. C. A. Husbands of members have been invited to hear John M. Henry, of the Bureau of Elections, give a talk.

Another unit which is bringing its year to a close is the Twentieth Ward League, members of which will be Mrs. H. E. Huck's guests at tea in her home, Allendale street, on Tuesday. The speaker for the afternoon is Miss Helen Mason, supervisor of field work and student training for the Children's Service Bureau. This unit, by the way, has doubled its membership this year.

Instead of having separate committee meetings, the county league will have a general meeting for its final session on Thursday in the Congress of Clubs. Reports, election, luncheon and a program are listed for the day with Mrs. Jennie Bradley Roessing as luncheon speaker.

The child welfare committee of the Allegheny County League will visit the Children's Home Society in South Aiken avenue on Friday.

Alumni to Honor Rabbi Glazer

Rodef Shalom Temple Alumni will give its annual dinner and dance Wednesday at the Commodore restaurant, at which Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, who will leave shortly for New York to be assistant to Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson at the Temple Ammu El, New York, will be guest of honor. Until recently Dr. Goldenson was rabbi of Rodef Shalom Temple.

Juniors to Hold Last Meeting Of Season

An especially attractive program has been arranged for the final meeting of the Wilkinsburg Junior Woman's Club Monday night in the Y. W. C. A. Miss Louise Thorn will read original child poems and Miss Eva Lindbaum, supervisor of music in Pittsburgh schools, with the assistance of a group of children, will demonstrate creative songs. Miss Ruth Orth will add a book review and Martin P. Chworowsky, of the Falk School, will speak on "Methods of Teaching Small Children."

An informal reception for the new officers, who are headed by Mrs. T. M. Schuckman as president, will conclude the evening.

Wilkinsburg B. P. W. To Have Outing

Wilkinsburg Business and Professional Women are planning a nature hike through North Park for their spring outing on Tuesday evening. The hike will be made all the more interesting by the leadership of Attorney Edmund Arthur, "The Country Rambler." A picnic dinner will complete the evening. Hostesses are Miss Anna Myers, Miss Lizzie Fisher, Miss Elizabeth Hovis, Miss Margaret Rogers and Miss Jane Downton.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS -:- By PAUL MALLON

Political Seers Say Pinchot Voters Have Gone Democratic

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The secret of the Pennsylvania primary lies not in the way people voted, but in the way they didn't.

There were 2,742,327 persons who took the trouble to register themselves as Republicans.

Last Tuesday, more than half of those people would not take the trouble to vote in their party primary, although it was supposed to be a hot contest between Square Deal Reed and New Deal Pinchot. The final Reed-Pinchot vote will not add up to more than 1,200,000.

The excuse policy made by politicians is the rain. They say the ladies did not vote because they did not want to get their spring dresses wet. That may be a logical excuse, but it may not be broad enough to cover a million and a half stay-at-homes. The roads and streets of Pennsylvania are well paved and there are about as many automobiles in the state as there were voters in the Republican primary.

PUZZLE

What the real answer is, the politicians would like to know. Whatever the expenses of the Reed and Pinchot campaigns may have been, the amounts were chicken feed compared with the historic Vare-Pinchot-Pepper primary several years ago.

Another possible explanation is that Pinchot has run so often in Pennsylvania that he is no longer a novelty at the ballot box, while Reed is the sort of person who does not move crowds to go out in the rain.

At any rate, the Democrats will have to look hard to find anything cheerful in the situation. Their vote did not come rushing to the polls, although that was hardly to be expected, because their contest did not awaken any interest whatever.

WALK-OUT

Those who follow the inside of the Pennsylvania game think they know what happened among those who did not go to the polls.

Their explanation is that too many of the old Pinchot supporters registered Democratic this time and walked out on the Republican primary. The Reed followers were the staunch old Republicans who are skeptical about the New Deal, who stuck to the G. O. P. The stickers outnumbered the walk-outs.

Registration figures tend to substantiate this explanation. Normal Democratic registration in Pennsylvania is between 850,000 and 900,000 (pre-New Deal). Since it has jumped to 1,087,890.

How many ex-Republicans of the Pinchot stripe were among these jumpers no one can tell, but certainly more than half probably were ex-Pinchot Republicans.

When you consider that Reed defeated Pinchot by only 115,000 or less, the point becomes important.

CERTAINTY

Only one basic result of the Pennsylvania primaries is certain.

It was a pat on the back for a good conservative Republican who voted against the NRA, AAA, et al. It bucked up the Republicans here from other states at a time when they needed it most. It will give them a new lease on life and encourage resistance among them to the New Deal phases which Reed opposed.

DEMOCRATS

What worries the Democrats is that they will have to rely on past Republican votes for Democratic success.

The question is whether they will get enough Republican votes, and the answer is, probably not in Pennsylvania.

SOCIAL AGENCY UNITY URGED

Privately operated social agencies were scored as costly, inefficient and often standing in the way of real reform by Harry Lurie, director of the Bureau of Jewish Social Research, of New York, before members of the Federation of Social Agencies of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County at a luncheon in Kaufmann's auditorium yesterday.

Announced at the luncheon was the list of the federation's new officers. These include R. Templeton Smith, president; Frank J. Chesterman and Herbert Spencer, vice presidents; John W. Lawrence, treasurer, and Mrs. Mary Clarke Burnett, secretary.

Others to serve on the federation's board are Miss Eleanor Hanson, Dr. Marion Hathway, Harry W. Shepard, Joseph P. Tufts, Miss Eleanor Gillespie, Miss Mabel Gillespie, David M. Martin, Pressley H. McCance and Mrs. John McKelvey.

The Rev. Dr. Bernard Clausen, Alexander H. Colwell, Horace F. Baker, Miss Martha A. Jamison, Dr. C. Howard Marcy, A. M. Oppenheimer, Mrs. Natanial Spear and Irwin D. Wolfe were made delegates-at-large.

Anniversary To Be Marked

The Pittsburgh City Club and Alpha Iota active group from the University of Pittsburgh will celebrate the anniversary of the founding of Alpha Delta Pi, national sorority, with a banquet in Webster Hall tonight. The sorority is 83 years old and was founded at Wesleyan Female College, Macon, Ga. The biennial convention will be held July 1 to 6 in Swampscott, Mass., followed by a tour of Europe.

Mrs. H. G. Samson To Entertain

Mrs. Harry G. Samson, chairman of the Women's Division of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches, will entertain with a luncheon at the Pines on Monday, her guests including members of the division. Annual reports will be given by department heads and officers will be elected.

A telephone in the home quickly and easily gets things done.

Minutes count when you need the doctor. No time's lost when you telephone.

A telephone takes you visiting and brings your friends to you.

A prescription to fill? The telephone brings the druggist to you.

ASK YOUR FRIENDS

Lots of your friends have telephones — let them tell you how much their telephones mean to them.

They'll all say that telephone service is one thing they wouldn't do without.

They'll tell you how convenient it is—how it helps them keep house and get things done.

They'll tell you how they wouldn't feel safe without it—how it has helped them in times of sickness and mishap.

They'll tell you how much pleasure it affords—how they call up friends when they're lonely—how it brings them news, keeps them in touch and makes life interesting.

But none of your friends can quite describe the satisfaction you can get from a telephone. Once you get a telephone you'll discover a dozen ways in which it is indispensable. It's such an intimate, personal convenience.

Try it for yourself. In Pittsburgh you can have a telephone in your home for as little as $2.50 a month (and for even less in the suburbs).

BRAM BARS

Part 1—
One-half cup butter.
One-half cup brown sugar.
One cup flour.
Mix together to a crumbly mass and put into a large flat pan, covering the bottom. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 15 minutes, and allow to cool while preparing.
Part 2—
Two eggs.
One cup brown sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One and one-half cups uncooked oats.
One cup chopped nuts.
One cup dates.
Beat eggs, add sugar together with flour, salt and baking powder and sift over the coconut and nuts, then add to the egg mixture. Pour onto the baked crust previously prepared, spreading evenly, and bake about 20 minutes (375 degrees). Cool and cut into bars.

Five $1 Prize Winners

KATHERINE DALM,
541 South Graham street,
HAM AND CHEESE PUFFIT
One cup left-over cooked ham.
One teaspoon mixed mustard.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two egg yolks.
Two half thick slices soft bread.
One-fourth pound fresh sharp yellow cheese.
Two eggs, separated.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
One and one-third cups hot milk.
One tablespoon minced parsley.
Put ham and cheese through grinder. Pan-fry onion three minutes in one tablespoon butter. Arrange in a layer in deep baking dish that has been well greased. Break bread crust and all into small pieces. Cut cheese into small thin slices. Combine bread, cheese, beaten egg yolks and heated milk. Add tablespoon of melted butter, salt and paprika. Let stand 30 minutes. Add parsley. Then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into the baking dish containing the ham. Bake in a slow oven 45 minutes. This souffle does not collapse if kept in a warm oven for a short time.

BARBARA KLEIN,
6000 Butler street,
LEMON CREAM ICE BOX CAKE.
One tablespoon gelatine.
Three egg yolks.
Three egg whites beaten stiff.
One cup whole milk.
Cooking time, 6 to 8 minutes.
Three egg whites, beaten stiff.
Juice one-half large lemon.
Two or three dozen lady fingers.
Chilling time, 12-24 hours.
One-half pint cream (optional).
Blend flour, sugar, butter, egg yolks in double boiler, add milk; stir until mixture thickens over hot water. Take from heat, pour over stiff egg whites, let cool, add lemon juice. Line mold with lady fingers (separated crosswise and cut), pour in cooled custard; cover with lady fingers. Chill. At serving time unmold on plate, garnish with whipped cream or serve plain.

MRS. F. E. DOUGLAS,
Box 149, New Brighton.
EPICUREAN SANDWICHES
Cream four tablespoons butter with one teaspoon prepared mustard. Mash the yolks of four hard cooked eggs with butter. Mix with this four sardines. Add a canned pimento rubbed to a paste. Cut sandwich bread into thin slices, spread with the butter and put together in pairs. Cut in strips.

MRS. M. MEDVED,
3 Ewing avenue, Bridgeville,
CHOCOLATE BLACKBIRDS
One-half cup melted butter.
Two cups granulated sugar.
Two eggs.
Six tablespoons cocoa or three ounces baking chocolate.
One cup seeded raisins.
One cup English walnuts.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup thin cream.
One cup flour.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Cream the butter and sugar together, adding the salt. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, then the chocolate melted over hot water, or the cocoa and the vanilla. Chop the raisins and the walnuts rather fine and mix them with the flour, and add to the other ingredients. Beat well. Line a shallow baking pan with buttered paper and pour in the mixture. Bake in a slow oven for 45 minutes. Turn out, remove the paper and mark into squares for serving. This cake is very soft and must be eaten with a fork. Serve with whipped or plain cream.

MRS. JOSEPH D. IRONS,
223 Main street, Leechburg,
WEDDING CAKE
One cup shortening.
Two cups sugar.
Four and one-half cups pastry flour.
Five teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One and one-fourth cups sweet milk.
Eight egg whites.
One teaspoon almond extract.
One and one-half teaspoons vanilla extract.
Cream shortening and sugar together well. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together five times; add alternately a little at a time with the milk and beat thoroughly. Add egg whites, which have been beaten stiff, folding in carefully. Add flavoring; pour into four greased layer cake tins or one large heart-shaped pan and bake in a moderate (325° F.) oven until firm to the touch, the time depending on the size of the pans used. When cool ice with the following Divinity Frosting:
Two cups sugar.
One-fourth cup white corn syrup.
Two-thirds cup hot water.
Two egg whites.
One teaspoon vanilla extract.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Mix sugar, syrup and water; cook to 238° F. or soft ball stage. Pour slowly over beaten egg whites and continue beating until mixture will hold its shape. Add salt and flavoring and use at once.

SHOES TO SET OFF NAVY BLUE STYLES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT'S A BATTLE to get into the shoe departments these days; every one is going foot first into costumes that can skip along attractively into summer after a long, hard winter.

If Cinderella were to lose her slipper right now, it is 10 to 1 it would be blue kid. That is the way the style is running, in every thing from sandals to business-like oxfords. Lots of the models reflect the extreme feminity of our new navy blue clothes, showing petal and tear drop designs in thei. cut-outs, allying themselves but lightly with reptile appliques, quite in the dressmaker manner.

* * *

PREDICTIONS for kid shoes later on point to white models which will be trimmed austerely with pastel tints. They sound a bit tricky, but they are not. It is a cotton summer we are facing, even on the boiling asphalt, and it is only reasonable to go into shoes that match our country cousins' frocks when we take over those frocks as city costumes in the name of common sense.

* * *

IT IS AMAZING how wel lthe navy blue stockings begin to look, now that they are out of the novelty class and just another stocking shade. At a recent showing of summer styles a pretty model wore a blue and white tie silk pattern frock with a white coat and navy blue hose and shoes which looked swell.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Below, a step-in blue kid pump for stepping out in a tailleur; note the tear drop cut-out. Next below, a one-strap brown kid with delicate lizard trim. Bottom, the classic oxford in perforated blue kid with a built-up heel.

SOCIAL DISEASE SURVEY ASKED

Co-operation in the fight against social diseases being launched by the General Health Council was pledged by city and county health officials and educational and health officials at a meeting in the Bell Telephone Building yesterday.

The appalling increase in social diseases was told by Dr. R. R. Jones, president of the council, who asked the aid of various governmental agencies in making a survey to estimate the extent of communicable diseases in Allegheny County.

Dr. Ray P. Mover, city health director, urged an educational campaign in the home to combat the spread of the disease.

Others attending the meeting were Dr. H. J. Benz, also of the city health department; Southard Hay, director of the department of welfare; Mrs. Villia F. Henderson, of the County Poor Board; Isabel Kennedy, executive secretary of the Federation of Social Agencies; Anna J. Haines, acting director of the Public Health Nursing Association; Dr. Eugen Conti, Allegheny County medical director; D. Howard, of the Chamber of Commerce, and Miss Minnie Birk, a staff nurse of the Public Health Nursing Association.

Central American Hero Dies at 130

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, May 19.—(AP.)—Capt. Angel Lopez Rivas, who claimed to be 130 years old, is dead.

He was a stepson of Jose Matias Delgado, a leader in the independence movement of Central America about a century ago. Rivas fought under Gen. Morazan and Gen. Cabanas, national heroes of bygone decades.

Step Taken To Aid All On Texts

Tomorrow is an important day for participants starting the preparation of their texts and those who are completing their entries in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Inscription competition.

Despite repeated warnings sounded through the past two months almost daily, in the Sun-Telegraph, inquiries reveal the failure of many contestants to watch the paper for helpful pointers and assistance. Questions that have been answered almost continuously during the past two weeks are being submitted in the mail. The very nature of the questions reveals the failure to read the competition news each day.

Many of the questions will be answered tomorrow. It will be helpful for those who have just learned of the competition. They can begin their texts with complete working knowledge of the "musts" and "don'ts." Those who are completing their entries will be able to check for mistakes before submitting their texts. Participants who already have submitted their texts will recognize if they were guilty of any mistakes and, with the closing date not until midnight, May 30, will have sufficient time to rewrite their entries and submit a second copy.

The rules and list of awards will be published for the last time tomorrow. It would be wise for late contestants to clip them from the paper for future reference. All men, women and youth interested in the competition should read tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph for the benefit of learning what they might have overlooked.

THIEVES LEAVE THEIR OWN LOCK

Thieves who had an idea of making an ordinary robbery look complex last night broke a lock off the door of a garage in the rear of the home of J. R. Robbins, 5434 Avondale place, looted the garage, and then put their own lock on the door.

Robbins had to summon police to get in the garage. They discovered that two vacuum sweepers valued at $119 and two small furniture cleaners valued at $51 had been stolen.

Silver Seems To Be Going On Rest Cure

By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER

Wonder if silver is going places with gold?

Western miners used to say that gold is where you find it. Then the government put it some place where you couldn't.

Now, there's a well-boiled rumor that silver is in for a rest cure. If the white metal gets too precious it will bust China like a soused dish-washer. It will also harm India plenty.

Strange thing about America. We can't do a thing without hurting the world. Our bunions seem to be in everybody's shoes.

If apron strings guide the universe, it's time we started wearing the apron.

THE THIN MAN :-: Modern, Smashing, Mystery Thriller :-: Who Killed Julia Wolf, Racketeer's Sweetheart? By Dashiell Hammett

Nick and Nora Leave Jorgensens' After Unpleasantness

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

(Soon to appear on the screen at Loew's Penn Theater as a thrilling motion picture made by Cosmopolitan Production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Dorothy asks where her father is and Nick refers her to Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney. Macaulay, calls on Nick and tells him Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting him.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

It is learned Julia was a former sweetheart of a racketeer.

Dorothy appears at Nick's apartment and flashes a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. She is drunk and Nora puts her to bed. Morelli, a gangster, is suspected in Julia's murder.

Nick is shot by Morelli. Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Dorothy, beaten by Mimi, seeks shelter at Nick's, and tells new story about gun. Nick and Nora visit Jorgensens'.

Now go on with Charles' narrative.

Mimi smiled again and said: "I'm sorry she's bothering you and your wife, but it's a relief to know she's there instead of off the Lord only knows where. She'll have finished her pouting by the time you get back. Send her along home, will you?" She poured me a cocktail. "You've been awfully nice to her."

I did not say anything.

Gilbert began: "Mr. Charles, do criminals—I mean professional criminals—usually—"

"Don't interrupt, Gil," Mimi said. "You will send her along home, won't you?" She was pleasant, but she was Dorothy's Queen of France.

"She can stay if she wants. Nora likes her."

She shook a crooked finger at me. "But I won't have you spoiling her like that. I suppose she told you all sorts of nonsense about me."

"She did say something about a beating."

"There you are," Mimi said complacently, as if that proved her point. "No, you'll have to send her home, Nick."

I finished my cocktail.

"Well?" she asked.

"She can stay with use if she wants, Mimi. We like having her."

"That's ridiculous. Her place is at home. I want her here." Her voice was a little sharp. "She's only a baby. You shouldn't encourage her foolish notions."

Mimi Threatens

"I'm not doing anything. If she wants to stay, she stays."

Anger was a very pretty thing in Mimi's blue eyes. "She's my child and she's a minor. You've been very kind to her, but this isn't being kind to her or to me, and I won't have it. If you won't send her home, I'll take steps to bring her home. I'd rather not be disagreeable about it, but"—she leaned forward and deliberately spaced her words—"she's coming home."

I said: "You don't want to pick a fight with me, Mimi."

She looked at me as if she were going to say I love you, and asked: "Is that a threat?"

"All right," I said, "have me arrested for kidnaping, contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and mopery."

She said suddenly in a harsh enraged voice: "And tell your wife to stop pawing my husband."

Nora, looking for another phonograph record with Jorgensen, had a hand on his sleeve. They turned to look at Mimi in surprise.

I said: "Nora, Mrs. Jorgensen wants you to keep your hands off Mr. Jorgensen."

Leave Jorgensens'

"I'm awfully sorry," Nora smiled at Mimi, then looked at me, put a very artificial expression of concern on her face, and in a somewhat singsong voice, as if she were a schoolchild reciting a piece, said: "Oh, Nick, you're pale. I'm sure you have exceeded your strength and will have a relapse. I'm sorry, Mrs. Jorgensen, but I think I should get him home and to bed right away. You will forgive us, won't you?"

Mimi said she would. Everybody was the soul of politeness to everybody else. We went downstairs and got a taxicab.

"Well," Nora said, "so you talked yourself out of a dinner. What do you want to do now? Go home and eat with Dorothy?"

I shook my head. "I can do without Wynants for a little while. Let's go to Max's: I'd like some snails."

"Right. Did you find out anything?"

"Nothing."

She said meditatively: "It's a shame that guy's so handsome."

"What's he like?"

"Just a big doll. It's a shame."

We had dinner and went back to the Normandie. Dorothy was not there. I felt as if I had expected that.

Nora went through the rooms, called up the desk. No note, no message had been left for us.

"So what?" she asked.

It was not quite 10 o'clock. "Maybe nothing," I said. "Maybe anything. My guess is she'll show up about 3 in the morning, tight, with a machine-gun she bought in Childs'."

Guild Calls

My side felt a lot better when Nora called me at noon the next day. "My nice policeman wants to see you," she said. "How do you feel?"

"Terrible. I must've gone to bed sober." I pushed Asta out of the way and got up.

Guild rose with a drink in his hand when I entered the living-room, and smiled all across his broad sandy face. "Well, well, Mr. Charles, you look spry enough this morning."

I shook hands with him and said yes I felt pretty good, and we sat down.

He frowned good-naturedly. "Just the same, you oughtn't've played that trick on me."

"Trick?"

"Sure, running off to see people when I'd put off asking you questions to give you a chance to rest up. I kind of figured that ought to give me first call on you, as you might say."

"I didn't think," I said. "I'm sorry. See that wire I got from Wynant?"

"Uh-huh. We're running it out in Philly."

"Now about that gun," I began, "I—"

He stopped me. "What gun? That ain't a gun any more. The firing pin's busted off, the guts are rusted and jammed. If anybody's fired it in six months—or could—I'm Napoleon. Don't let's waste any time talking about that piece of junk."

I laughed. "That explains a lot. I took it away from a drunk who said he'd bought it in a speakeasy for twelve bucks. I believe him now."

Merely Interested

"Somebody'll sell him the City Hall one of these days. Man to man, Mr. Charles, are you working on the Wolf job or ain't you?"

"You saw the wire from Wynant."

"I did. Then you ain't working for him. I'm still asking you."

"I'm not a private detective any more. I'm not any kind of a detective."

"I heard that. I'm still asking you."

"All right. No."

He thought for a moment, said. "Then let me put it another way: Are you interested in the job?"

"I know the people, naturally I'm interested."

"And that's all?"

"Yes."

"And you don't expect to be working on it?"

The telephone rang and Nora went to answer it.

"To be honest with you, I don't know. If people keep on pushing me into it, I don't know how far they'll carry me."

Guild wagged his head up and down. "I can see that. I don't mind telling you I'd like to have you in on it—on the right side."

"You mean not on Wynant's side. Did he do it?"

"That I couldn't say, Mr. Charles, but I don't have to tell you he ain't helping us any to find out who did it."

Nora appeared in the doorway. "Telephone, Nick."

Herbert Macaulay was on the wire. "Hello, Charles. How's the wounded?"

"I'm all right, thanks."

"Did you hear from Wyant?"

"Yes."

"I got a letter from him saying he had wired you. Are you too sick to—"

"No, I'm up and around. If you'll be in your office late this afternoon I'll drop in."

"Swell," he said. "I'll be here till six."

I returned to the living-room. Nora was inviting Guild to have lunch while we had breakfast. He said it was mighty kind of her. I said I ought to have a drink before breakfast. Nora went to order meals and pour drinks.

Guild shook his head and said: "She's a mighty fine woman, Mr. Charles."

I nodded solemnly.

He said: "Suppose you should get pushed into this thing, as you say, I'd like it a lot more to feel you were working with us than against" us.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Old-Fashioned Parents Spoil Fun for Girl

OLD-FASHIONED PARENTS who think the first man who pays attention to their daughter, intends marrying her » » , that is what troubles Lonesome J.

These parents of hers believe in the QUIET LIFE, where everything is purposeful. They see no use in going around and playing some, DATES should always lead straight to the altar.

And so Lonesome J., who would like a little bit of a fling is up against it.

For she has found it necessary if she wants any kind of a time at all, to play truant and meet the boy friend at the street corner.

Miss Brunot

Sunday night is especially irksome to her. For she is expected to sit at home and chew her fingers. I presume when she would like to be out enjoying the moonlight in a roadster.

NOT FOR HER

There she sits, unless she deceives, and hears other people go by . . . auto horns honk. But they are not for her. Bright lights come and go, but never even a "Howdy" for her.

And there she is with the light o' desire in her eye, and her hands tied behind her back.

It's just too bad, I say. For youth is the time for fun, and we only learn how to appreciate the one great love through comparison with the many lesser little flames which have lighted quickly and have gone out even more rapidly.

TIMES CHANGED

It was back in the gay nineties that the bicycle came along and made the first inroads on the front porch swing. It was early in the present century the automobile began beckoning us, in our trailing veils and our picture hats. The week-end became a heyday of merriment. The richer folk had house parties, and the ones less fortunate where shekels were, took to the out-of-door picnic, going in the flivver.

And somehow before we knew it, and entirely too quickly for many of the more slowly moving of us, we were a rollicking set with plenty to do and many places to go.

Raymond Hitchcock immortalized this very thing with his song hit, "All Dressed Up and No Place to Go."

That's the trouble with your parents, Lonesome J. They're sitting around the home porch. And don't know that everybody else is going somewhere.

TRY AGAIN

Maybe there is no use talking to them, either. For some of those old folk who have stuck to the old ways like flies to glue, can't be argued with. For they don't want to see reason. It would spoil things for them.

For they're old jogging buggy horses.

They don't even know a 12-cylinder car from a buckboard, and they aren't going to, either.

Even so, sister, try again. Have another round with your parents. Tell them exactly what you are doing. That you're playing truant. That sitting at home Sunday night is driving you crazy. That there is a boy friend waiting for you at the arc-light just as father used to stand waiting at the stile for your mother.

QUIT SPEAKING

Dear Miss Brunot:

R. and I have known each other since we were children. Our families are close friends and so were he and I until about two years ago, and at that time he quit speaking to me. We were always as sister and brother and he confided in me, and I in him. We understood each other as if each was an open book to the other.

There wasn't the slightest hint of a quarrel. I cannot honestly think of one reason why he should act as he has.

Now my problem is this: He and his family are about to move from here, and they will be 400 miles distant. I would hate for them to go away, without having a talk with R. L. I haven't spoken to him since he refused to speak to me. I couldn't bring myself to do so. It all seemed so queer in him. Yet what should I do? Tell me if I should talk with him before he leaves permanently. What shall I say?

HELEN.

By all means speak to him before he goes away. Go directly up to him and hold out your hand and say you would like to be friendly with him. And if he seems a little distant, don't notice it. Surely he must have had some reason for his actions. Just make up your mind, Helen, that the many years you did know him and were friendly, are worth the two short years of lack of friendship.

BOY 'ALWAYS RIGHT'

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 17, and my boy friend is 25. We have been going together for five years. Do you think him old for me? There is one thing I don't like about him, when he is speaking, he always is right. He has not mentioned taking me to see his people, which I think he should do. He comes to see me twice a week. I don't care so much for him, for we just can't get along. I don't know whether to keep on going with him, or not. He treats me nice, in spite of other things. What shall I do, Miss Brunot?

VICTORIA.

Since you say you don't like this fellow, Victoria, why not let him go? You are young and can easily get someone else. Quarreling is never pleasant, and the quality he has of always being right is bound to cause you much trouble. A girl of 17 is young for a man of 25, don't you think? When not engaged to him, there is no special reason of his taking you to his own home.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Removal of Thyroid Gland

"Thyroidectomy" is a harsh-sounding medical term. It means removal of the thyroid gland.

Many victims of thyroid disease are advised to undergo this operation, but delay it because they fear the "knife." Unfortunately, many of them become chronic invalids and are unable to lead normal and useful lives.

It is true that in former times the removal of the thyroid gland was a serious undertaking and, indeed, hazardous. Within the past decade improvements in anesthesia and surgical technique and skill have minimized the dangers of this formerly dreaded operation. It is no longer looked upon as a dangerous procedure. With proper care and treatment the patient has a rapid and successful recovery.

And now comes an encouraging report from a group of Boston surgeons. They report that removal of the thyroid gland in certain selected cases benefits the heart, in many instances relieving distressing and disabling heart disorders. It restores strength to the heart and enables it to function better.

I do not wish to imply that a thyroid operation is a cure for heart disease. Nor do I mean to assert that the operation is indicated in all forms of heart disease. But it is probable an enlarged thyroid gland exerts a damaging influence on the heart. When the gland is removed, the burden is taken off the heart and it is more capable of performing its work.

Not all forms of thyroid disease require operation. In many instances, the enlargement or "goitre," as it is commonly called, can be traced to a deficiency of iodine in the diet. When this important mineral substance is given, the goitre disappears and the gland resumes its normal function.

At one time, goitre was a common disorder in many sections of the world. For example, it is now a common ailment in Switzerland, where the water supply is deficient in iodine. In this country, it is often found in the Great Lakes region, where there is a similar deficiency.

Modern science overcomes this menace by adding a cerain amount of iodine to the city reservoirs in the districts where goitre is prevalent. This is attended to by state and federal health auhorities. When necessary, additional iodine medication should be taken under the supervision of a physician. Careful supervision of the diet is important.

Do not neglect goitre or any other form of thyroid disease. Follow the instructions and advice of your physician. If he recommends operation, do not delay.

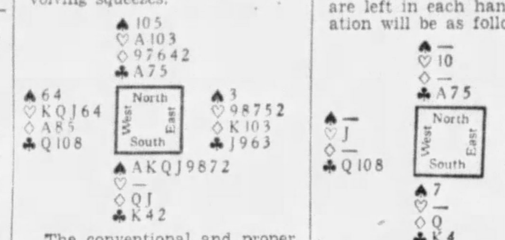
Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Squeeze

No other plays in Bridge hold as much fascination for the great majority of players as the various types of squeezes. I am often asked to explain the technique of the squeeze; to point out how the opportunity for it can be recognized and how to put it into execution. Unfortunately this subject holds so many ramifications that it can hardly be discussed in a column of this nature. The best I can do is give numerous examples from day to day of hands involving squeezes.



The conventional and proper Opening lead against the game contract in spades is the King of hearts, which Declarer should win with the Ace in Dummy and upon which he should discard a low club from his hand. Most Declarers would now simply run 10 more tricks and gladly concede the last two, feeling they had done well to make the contract with an overtrick. Admittedly, 30 points in a Rubber Bridge game are not very important, but the immense popularity of Howell or match-point play makes it well worth while to master a technique which might be valuable under such circumstances.

After Declarer wins the heart Ace, he should lead a small diamond from the Dummy and play the Knave from his own hand. If this is won by West's Ace, unless the diamond is returned on the spot, a double squeeze will become automatic. He wins the next trick regardless of what is led other than a diamond, and runs his entire trump suit. When four cards are left in each hand the situation will be as follows:

It is certainly easy to see that the lead of the spade seven now creates a double squeeze. West cannot let go the heart knave and East cannot let go the diamond King; therefore both are forced to discard a club, which, with Declarer's King, makes the Dummy's three clubs good.

The prime consideration in exercising a squeeze play is visualizing and anticipating the end position to be attained. Once this is done the squeeze play is no longer a bugaboo.

How Katie Prevented Escape

My father's quizzical smile flashed out again at my query concerning the reason for Katie's shriek for aid while she was helping Jim to guard Lee Chow.

"I suppose I ought to 'make the punishment fit the crime'," he quoted, "and refuse to gratify your curiosity because it led you to disobey our injunction to lock your door. But as I do not care to be a violator of the constitutional guarantee against 'cruel and unusual punishment' to any inhabitant of the United States of America, I shan't inflict this particular torture upon you."

Lillian pushed forward a chair and my father, punctiliously waiting until we were both seated, lowered himself into it.

"I can't give you full particulars," he said. "For those, you'll have to wait until you see Katie, who when she disappeared around the corner of the corridor was volubly explaining to Jim just how Lee Chow had 'put it over on champion dumb bell of world.' I regret to say that I am quoting her exact words, but it is needless to say that I took no cognizance of her tirade."

He settled back in his chair, not slouching as so many men do when they sit down for a chat, but with his hands resting on its arms and his fingers beating a slow tattoo upon them.

"I am afraid I cannot give you much light upon the real question, that of Lee Chow's sanity," he began. "From Katie's incoherent exclamations, I gathered that Lee Chow must have diverted Jim's attention in some way—ask for a drink, I gather—and then when Jim came up, the Chinese seized him."

"Harry's knots did not hold?" Lillian interrupted with a query filled with bewilderment and chagrin.

"The knots held all right," my father rejoined. "I saw one set of loops intact. But Lee Chow evidently has the Houdini-like ability to expand and contract his muscles abnormally. He must have expanded them while Harry was tying him up, and then contracted them so that he could get at least one hand free while he was engaging Jim's attention elsewhere. The rest would be easy."

"I'll wager he did his contracting before Katie's sharp eyes came into that room," Lillian said.

My father nodded.

"I agree with you," he said. "When she did discover his ruse it was too late for her to do anything save scream, and throw herself tooth and nail upon the Chinese. We had a hard time pulling her away from him. Jim was also holding him, of course, but it was due to Katie's quickness that he did not get out into the hall."

"But, Father," I said slowly, "doesn't all this cunning manipulation of his bonds prove that he was shamming those seeming bursts of mania, and that he is plotting some diabolic thing in a brain as unclouded as yours or mine?"

Lillian nodded her head emphatically.

"That's the way it looks to me, too," she said. "But"—she shot a keen look at my father—"I can see the 'Chief' does not altogether agree with us."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Why do pretty girls twine their legs around chair legs in restaurants? Terrible. One sees such spectacles now and then.

Why do they sit in public conveyances with feet resting on the sides. Feet should be placed squarely on the floor.

Why do they wriggle their hips when they walk? Nobody knows. Perhaps it is to attract attention. But it is not a pretty habit, believe it of the beauty preacher.

Until a woman is 100 years old she should not lose interest in her appearance—and even not then. When she doesn't care how she looks she doesn't care very much about anything.

Because birthdays have accumulated is no reason why one should not sport the latest coiffure, touch lips and cheeks lightly with color, step pretty, and keep up with the beauty gang.

Correct Manners

Invitation to His Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What sort of answer should one write in reply to an invitation to visit the home of one's boy friend . . . written by his mother?

2—How long a time should elapse before answering?

3—Would it be proper to send a graduation invitation to this friend? He lives a great distance from the city in which I live. A READER.

1—Your answer might read something like this:

Dear Mrs. Woodson:

How very kind and hospitable you were to invite me to come to visit you. I was so happy at receiving your beautiful invitation, and am delighted to accept. I have heard such extremely delightful things about you and your family from Tom, and I am looking forward with special pleasure to knowing you all and to being in your home.

Friday, May tenth, is very convenient for me, and, as you suggested in your letter, I shall take the four o'clock train from here, arriving at ..... at half after five. Please don't bother to meet me . . . I will take a taxi from the station, and I am sure that I can find my way.

Mother adds her greetings to mine, and thank you again, most heartily, for your invitation.

Very sincerely yours,

2—Answer this kind invitation at once.

3—Yes, send an invitation to this friend. And, if your visit is before your graduation, send an invitation to the mother and father, your hostess and host.

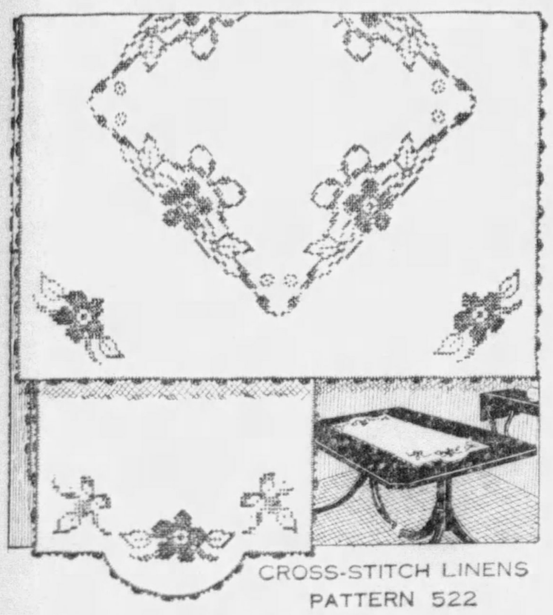
LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



With warm weather just around the corner, the housewife feels the need of a variety of linens to add charm to her home and her entertaining. Cross stitch on linens fills this need for it gives them beauty and color and is quickly done. These motifs done in five to the inch crosses should meet with instant approval for aside from the handsome cloth that they make, they can be used on scarfs, towels, pillow cases, vanity and buffet sets, cushions and other articles. The design is easy to do in color because of the distinct color markings on the pattern and can be carried out in a variety of colors on a light or dark background. The motifs can be effectively combined with those of Pattern 523 and together with them form a large collection of linens.

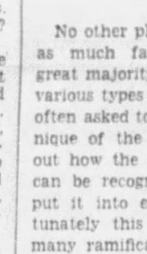
Pattern 522 contains a transfer pattern of four motifs 5 x 15¾ inches, four motifs 3 x 8 inches and eight 3½-inch corner motifs; suggestions for arrangement of motifs, yardage requirements and color schemes.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

JUNIOR PATROL MAIL BOX

Plant a tree, fellows.

Once, fellows when we went into another county of this state, we saw a great tree growing that had been a twig 60 years ago. A little boy, they told us, had stuck the twig into the ground without even thinking about it.



And for many years the twig grew and became a tree and then a still bigger tree, until now it is a giant tree with branches spreading over big houses and with leaves waving a hundred feet in the air.

Would you get a thrill out of seeing a twig become a tree? Get a small tree today, one that is just a little bigger than a twig, and plant it in a good place. Almost before you know it—before you grow up to be a man or a woman—the twig will be a fine big tree.

They tell the story about "Johnny Appleseed." He was a queer old fellow who always carried a bag of apple seeds. And he traveled all over this country. Wherever he went he planted apple trees. With a stick he would punch a little hole in the ground, drop in a seed and cover it up. Now, many many years after he had been dead and gone, his apple trees are still living. Their beautiful blossoms perfume the air in the spring, and their green leaves are pretty during the summer, and they bear fine apples in the fall.

We know some clubs who plant trees until they have a whole grove—one for each of the members. Wouldn't that be a good idea for your club? When you plant a tree, name it for one of your Junior Patrol members.

Trees, you know, are good things for other reasons besides making lumber. Their roots form a strong mat in the soil, much like a sponge, and their leaves a soft carpet in the forest, that holds the rain water so that it trickles into the streams and rivers slowly.

But if all the trees are cut down, and the soil is bare, the water rushes right off the ground and into the rivers and there are big floods. The trees store up the water just like the sponge you use to wash the windows. And then let it flow slowly into the rivers on its way to the big oceans.

Do all you can to protect the forests, fellows. Plant as many trees as you can.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Hurlers Still Uncertain.
Bue Staff Not Yet Set.
Giants Kick On New Ball.

Double Trade Planned.
Carnegie Honors Sayles.
Nusslein Well Qualified.

If it isn't one thing it's another to keep local fandom on the anxious seat about the Pirate pitching staff. As soon as Red Lucas was ready to start, a finger injury took Hal Smith out of the picture. When Bill Swift finally got going, an attack of illness deprived the club of Heinie Meine's services. And now, just as Larry French at last begins to show some signs of life, the other left-hander, Ralph Birkofer, starts to wobble. After being the staff standout for a time, Birkofer has been lifted twice in succession. It's to be hoped the double derricking doesn't presage a prolonged loss of effectiveness on his part, as if Birkofer were to continue to bog down it would offset what the clubs gains in French's apparent arrival at form.

Ralph Birkofer

The Bucs need not only one of the left-handers, but both of them, and can ill afford to have any of their regular mound starters out of stride right now. It would make a lot of difference in the Buccaneer defense if Manager Gibson could get a group of four pitchers working smoothly in turn, but so far, he has not been able to get more than half way in that direction before being forced to shuffle his hurlers all over again. Only four times since the season opened have two Pittsburgh pitchers in succession gone the distance, and Gibby has yet to get through three games in a row without being forced to lift his starting hurler.

NEW BALL BLAMED FOR FREAKISH THROWS

When the National League race was getting under way the Giants scoffed at suggestions that the new and livelier ball might make both their pitching and their infielding less effective than in 1933. When they had won 11 of their first 13 games they laughed loudly. But since skidding on the western trip they have changed their tune, and now, admitting that the critics were right in the first place, they are condemning the uniform pellet and assert it is not a good ball, at least for their type of game. The sphere is being blamed by them for even freakish throws. Bill Terry says the new ball is causing infielders to throw unintentional curves around the diamond. One of Blondy Ryan's throws, on which Terry was charged with a costly error, took a dart just before reaching him, Bill says, and instead of landing in his glove, hit his bare hand and jumped away.

The Giant pitchers were not opposed to the ball at first, but now that they are getting bruised shins from cannon-like returns and finding themselves less effective in holding down the enemy scoring, they are joining the infielders in criticism of the rocket. The ball has too much shine, they allege, and when delivered to the batter it "takes off" so abruptly in funny dips that the hurlers cannot control it.

WANTS HERMAN ONLY FOR SECOND TRADE

In spite of any handicap that the new ball may mean to the Giants, however, Manager Terry is as confident as ever of repeating for the pennant if he can make a trade for another infielder before the time limit expires next month. In this connection, the New York pilot denies Chicago reports that he made an offer for Outfielder Babe Herman. He says it was the Cubs who made the overtures; that they offered to trade Herman for Pitcher Joe Bowman.

Babe Herman

While he would like to keep Bowman, Terry admits he has considered the proposal, not that he wants Herman for Giant service, which he does not, but because he thinks that if he had Herman he would be able to pass Babe along to another club in a second trade for an infielder. On account of Johnny Vergez's general slump, the Giants want a third baseman. Terry thinks he could convert either Tony Piet or Tony Cuccinello into a good third sacker if he could obtain one or the other. He is still trying to interest the Reds or Dodgers in taking Herman in exchange for Piet or Cuccinello, and if he sees an opening for a second trade he will go through with the Cub deal.

HIGH HONOR WON BY CARNEGIE GRIDDER

An athlete at Carnegie Tech has received perhaps the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a student. John E. Sayles, who will graduate in June, has been selected by the faculty of the College of Engineering as the most promising representative of the graduating class and the student most likely to bring honor to himself and Carnegie. Sayles played fullback on the football team for the last three seasons, and has ranked consistently near the top of his classes in the department of mechanical engineering. President Thomas S. Baker made the presentation of a plaque, honoring Sayles, at the Call Day exercises on the campus.

Sayles was selected for character, scholarship, personality and activities. Qualifications taken into consideration in this award are leadership and ability to organize men, unselfish activity, distinguished scholarship, resourcefulness, dependability, regularity, neatness in appearance, mode of speech and thought, health, vigor and fraternity relations, including social, honorary and professional organizations.

Sayles entered Carnegie from Wheeling (W. Va.) High School, where he graduated as valedictorian of his class. At present he is president of the Carnegie senior class, member of Kappa Sigma social fraternity, Dragons, Phi Kappa Phi, and president of the Y. M. C. A. The athletic department at Carnegie Tech is especially gratified that an athlete has been selected for this outstanding honor.

COACH OF CUP TEAM TENNIS WAR HORSE

Most tennis followers are unable to figure why the United States Davis Cup Committee declined the offer of Bill Tilden to coach the American team without charge and then went out and hired a German, Hans Nusslein, for the same post. In event the cup is captured, it won't be a complete American victory, and it can be contended by outsiders that Uncle Sam's players owed their success to foreign help.

Hans Nusslein

Yet nobody disputes that Nusslein has the necessary qualifications. Though only 24, he is a tennis war horse and has played all over Europe, the United States and South America. When only 16, Hans was professionalized by the German Tennis Association for accepting as a prize a pair of tennis trousers. He won the professional championship of Germany three straight years, starting in 1931, and in 1933 he captured the world pro title. For two years he toured Europe and America with Tilden, and last year he played through South America with Karel Kozeluh.

SMITH TO FACE DODGERS IN THIRD FRAY

NEW YORK, May 19.—As the Pirates prepared to tackle the Dodgers this afternoon in the rubber fight of the three-game series, rabid fans of the Flatbush were convinced the Pittsburghers "could take it."

The behavior of the Buccos yesterday in pounding out a victory over the Caseys on top of their painful experience of the previous afternoon was proof enough for the Brooklyn rooters that George Gibson's club is not one to be trifled with.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

The second contest of the series was scarcely under way before the Buccos were throwing everything but the planks of their dugout at Lefty Perkins and they did not let up until they had secured a commanding lead. In other words, the Pirates showed they were not

CRAWFORDS STAGE FORMAL OPENING

By TOM BIRKS

Followers of the National Negro Baseball League get an opportunity to watch the Pittsburgh Crawfords in action this afternoon when the local aggregation meets the Philadelphia Stars in the formal home opener at Greenlee Field.

The usual trimmings that precede opening day ball games have been arranged including a parade under the auspices of the Center Avenue Y. M. C. A., which will start on the North Side and finish at the ball park. Satchel Paige and Gibson will make up the battery for the Crawfords.

The other local member of the league, the Homestead Grays, clash with the Cleveland Stars at Midland, Pa., where the Grays are big favorites. Tomorrow, the Grays go to Clearfield to meet the Independents. Lefty Williams and Strong will form the battery for the Sunday game.

Tomorrow afternoon at the newly built Frederick street park, Mt. Oliver meets the J. J. Vaughans in a City League tussle. Plans have been laid for a parade to precede the game.

Books, Mt. Oliver and Dormont turned in triumphs in the City League last evening. The Books, defending champions, won a slugfest from Homewood, 12 to 7. Mt. Oliver pounded out a 10-to-3 victory over the J. J. Vaughans and Dormont walloped Beltzhoover, 15 to 3.

Two City League engagements are listed for today, Mt. Oliver meeting the Vaughans and Parmelee tackling the Books.

The Crawfords were defeated by the Philly Stars in a league contest last evening at Greenlee Field, 4 to 2. The Stars scored all four of their runs in the eighth inning. At Ingomar, the Homestead Grays and Ingomar nines battled to a 12-12 tie.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Clarksburg, W. Va.—Teddy Yarosz defeated Fritz Heinz, 10 rounds; Max Elling defeated Jimmy Colombo, six rounds; Sammy Paris won by a technical knockout over Kid McCoy, four rounds; Jim Smith knocked out Roy Mulligan, 1 round.

At Hollywood—Frankie Wallace defeated Johnny Pena, 10 rounds.

At Fort Worth, Tex.—Joe Marius and Cowboy Eddie Anderson drew, 10 rounds; Dutch Weiner knocked out Bob Brown, two rounds.

At Pismo Beach, Cal.—Pablo Dano defeated Lew Farber, 10 rounds.

At San Diego, Cal.—Swede Berglund defeated Solly Kreiger, 10 rounds.

Ziggy Kahn Softball Chief For the Hill District

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

Joseph (Ziggy) Kahn, athletic director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, and former star local athlete, has been named deputy commissioner in charge of the Hill District eliminations in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament, which gets under way on June 10.

Kahn will assist the teams in organizing singly and in leagues and will direct the handling of their games at the McKelvey, Ammon, Schenley High School and Washington Park fields. His appointment was announced today by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, who is the commissioner for the district.

Many teams already are in the process of formation in the Hill District, where the game has caught the fancy of the young players, and Kahn is confident he will have one of the largest representations of any section of the city in the tournament.

Daily more teams are flocking into the tournament. Among the latest entries received are those of the Cecil A. C., of Cecil, Dan De Angeli, manager; the Rangers, of Minersville, Milton White, manager; the Wilmores, of Wilmore, Cambria County, L. P. Ramsey, manager, and the O. K. Girls, of McKees Rocks, A. W. Porta, manager.

Official team and individual application cards will be sent out to the managers early next week. Send in your entry blank now to receive your forms early.

YAROSZ VICTOR OVER HEINZ

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 19.—(AP.)—Teddy Yarosz, 157, of Pittsburgh, won a 10-round decision over Fritz Heinz, 163, of Saginaw, Mich., rugged veteran, here last night. Yarosz won every one of the 10 rounds.

Heinz gave a remarkable exhibition of ability to stand up under punishment, Yarosz raining rapier like blows off the Saginaw boy's face in every round. Heinz was knocked down in the third round but was firmly on his feet in the late rounds as he absorbed the Pittsburgher's swarm of blows with little apparent concern.

In a six-round semi-final, Max Elling, 151, of Pittsburgh, won a judges' decision over Jimmy Colombo, 149, of Clarksburg.

DUAL CARNIVALS SCHEDULED IN PITT STADIUM

By JESS CARVER

The local intercollegiate dual track and field campaign winds up today in the Pitt Stadium as the crack squads of Pitt and Notre Dame match strength. The meet, which promises to furnish the unbeaten Panthers with their sternest test of the campaign, will be run off simultaneously with the annual W. P. I. A. L. championships.

Mike Layden

The scholastic carnival gets under way at noon, with the varsity engagement slated for 1:30 o'clock.

Having taken Temple, Penn State and West Virginia in stride, and what a stride, the Panthers find themselves established as favorites to continue on their victorious path against the Irish, whether they, the Panthers, like it or not. It's a cinch that their coach, Carl (Gloomy Gus) Olson, doesn't. If there is anything Coach Olson likes better than being the underdog it has not been discovered up until the present writing.

TOUGH FIGHT LOOMS

Pitt won't beat the Irish with the ease and aplomb that attended the previous triumphs this spring. Temple, State and West Virginia hardly gave the Pitts a good workout. There'll be no 40 or 50 point margin today, however.

At least four and possibly five university records will be on the spot. The boys are going after new marks in the mile, the half mile and the high and low hurdles and there's a chance that the javelin standard may topple. The 880, hurdle and spear records have been shaken up once this year, but the times and distances still do not seem to satisfy the boys.

Capt. Bill Keller, of Pitt, is after a new record for the half-mile; Ken Wagonhouser hopes to do 4:20 in the mile; Jim Guay will be seeking to lower the high hurdle standard; Arvil Fleming is to go after a mark in the lows, and

Examiners Named For Life Guards

Nathan H. Kaufmann, swimming instructor at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement; John T. Taylor, of the A. A. U., and Walter O. Beyer have been named by H. B. Carlos, chief examiner of the Civil Service, of the city, to handle all applications for positions as life savers at the public pools. They will conduct examinations in the Oliver High School pool next week.

A two weeks' course in swimming instructions for grade school pupils will be conducted at the Allegheny Y. M. C. A., beginning Monday, under the direction of O. L. Catt, associate physical director of the Y. The boys will be taught in classes of 20, from 3:30 to 7 p. m., daily, classes alternating on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturday.

CHUCK KLEIN CONTINUES HEAVY SLUGGING FOR CHICAGO

BRUINS' STAR GETS TWELFTH HOME RUN

Associated Press.

The Phillies forgot something when they sold Chuck Klein to the Chicago Cubs. The bill of sale should have contained a clause making it a high crime for him to visit Baker Field again.

For the second day in a row the great slugger annoyed his former buddies no end as the Cubs, National League pace-setters, bombed their way to a 8-5 decision over the Phils yesterday.

HITS TWELFTH HOMER

Klein had contributed two home runs and a single to the Cubs' one-sided victory Thursday and yesterday he sailed his twelfth homer out of the park with two on in the first inning and later added a single to help the cause along. His batting average for two days in his old stamping grounds was .714. Klein's activities hurt, of course, but it was homers to Tut Stainback and Gabby Hartnett that featured the Cubs' six-run drive in the third inning when Ed Holley was driven to cover. With all this hitting behind him, Guy Bush easily won his seventh successive pitching victory.

Pittsburgh maintained its hold on second place, driving young Charley Perkins to the showers with a five-run attack in the first inning and winding up with an 8-3 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The New York Giants found the fourth starting pitcher they've been looking for in the young and lefthanded Al Smith, although he failed to win. Poor support by his teammates and the gilt-edged pitching of Ben Frey sent Smith down to a 2-1 beating by the Cincinnati Reds although the youngster allowed only five hits. The Boston Braves belted Jim Winford for three runs in the first two innings and turned back the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-2.

YANKS BOW AGAIN

Meanwhile, the western clubs of the American League, led by Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers, were giving the East a fine shellacking. The Tigers slugged Red Ruffing and Harry Smythe for 15 hits, including five doubles and a triple, smacked down the proud New York Yankees for the second day in a row, 10-8, and cut the New Yorkers' lead to three games.

The St. Louis Browns moved into a virtual tie with Washington and Philadelphia for fourth place as they tripped the Boston Red Sox again, 11-3, battering out 17 hits, while Buck Newsome stopped the Red Sox with eight hits and fanned eight.

Joe Cascarella, unbeaten in four games, gave five bases on balls in the first inning, forced three runs across the plate and paved the way for a 5-4 victory for the Chicago White Sox, despite Jimmy Foxx's seventh homer, first drive ever hit into the center field bleachers at Comiskey Park.

Washington chalked up the only Eastern victory, beating Cleveland 3-1, behind Southpaw Walter Stewart's neat pitching.

PITT TRACKERS FACE IRISH

Gongloff hopes to beat his own present record in the javelin.

Opposing Guay in the hurdles will be Mike Layden, brother of the famous Elmer, a timber topper of parts. Moose Krause, who has opposed Pitt football and basketball teams during the past three years, will be one of Gongloff's opponents. Capt. Joe Young, of Notre Dame, weighs less than 125 pounds, but he's a fine distance man. He'll test Wagonhouser in the mile.

SCHOOL MEET OPEN

The W. P. I. A. L. meet is a wide open affair, as wide open as an Indiana jail. Not a single league school boasts any particular strength or balance this year, and it will not take many points to assure victory. Oliver High School, of Pittsburgh, looks to have about as good a chance as any to cop, what with the speedy Art Thomas almost a cinch to win both the 100 and 220-yard events, thus assuring his school of 10 big points.

Bridgeville offers a potential record smasher in Bennett, its star high jumper. Bennett does six feet without any trouble and with any jumping luck at all, should clear six-three.

So as to be in the best possible condition for the Pitt meet, the Irish squad arrived here last night and enjoyed a swell night's rest at the Hotel Schenley.

While Pitt and Notre Dame and the W. P. I. A. L. stars are competing in the stadium, the annual championship meet of the National Athletic Association of Schools for the Blind will be held at the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind. The meet is scheduled to get under way at 9 o'clock a. m.

The annual junior W. P. I. A. L. meet is scheduled for the Elizabeth High School field this afternoon.

Believe It Or Not By Ripley

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: 60,528 GODFATHERS—Princess Catherine, of Greece, daughter of King Constantine and Queen Sophie (who was a sister of the Kaiser), was born on May 3, 1912, only a few weeks after her father succeeded to the throne. As a grand gesture the King directed that the entire army and the navy of Greece, then numbering 60,528 officers and men, be constituted as collective godfathers for the child. As a result, and in accordance with an orthodox custom, every member of the army and the navy was required to address the King as "koumbaros" (co-father) and in turn was addressed in the same manner by his sovereign.

TOMORROW: THE MAN WHO GETS $25,000 A MONTH FOR DOING NOTHING

"front runners" or "fair-weather" athletes.

Hal Smith will unwind his long slants from the mound today in an effort to get the odd game into the Pittsburgh sack. Red Lucas is due on the slab, but the sorrel-top is bothered with some sort of ailment. Ray Benge is likely to pitch for the Caseys.

Ralph Birkofer recorded another Pittsburgh success, but once again, the sturdy Cincinnati boy had to call for help, and who should go to his rescue but his brother lefthander, Larry French. Larry proceeded to reel off more than three innings of nifty pitching as he held the enemy scoreless, and the Buccos copped the battle, 8 to 3.

FRENCH HURLS WELL

French went to the slab in the sixth with the bases jammed and two out. It was the second time in the game that Birky had loaded up the sacks through lack of control.

The swift attack on Perkins was started by Lloyd Waner who came to the bat for a second trick in the opening round before the Pirates could be retired. Meantime, a single by the lead-off batter, Lindstrom's double, a pitched ball striking Vaughn, Suhr's double, an error putting Lavagetto on base, a walk to Thevenow and Padden's single produced five runs.

Three singles and a walk gave the Dodgers two runs in their half of the first, and Pittsburgh picked up another in the third on a walk to Lavagetto, his steal of second and Padden's double.

P. Waner worked his way around in the fourth on his hit, Lindy's safe bunt, a walk to Suhr and Lavagetto's fly.

Dublinsky Here Tomorrow for Bout

Harry Dublinsky and Solly Dukelsky, of Chicago, who box Dominic Mancini and Billy Holt, local battlers, in the feature bouts at Hickey Park, Millvale, Monday night, are due to arrive here tomorrow from Memphis, where they battled earlier in the week.

Dublinsky is a leading lightweight and Dukelsky, his stablemate, is an up-and-coming middleweight.

Schneider Draws Suspension By AAA

INDIANAPOLIS, May 19.—(AP.)—Lou Schneider, winner of the 500-mile race here in 1931 and national auto racing champion of that year, has been temporarily suspended by the contest board of the American Automobile Association. The suspension makes Schneider ineligible for this year's speedway classic.

DAVIS PITCHES ONE-HIT WIN

Red Davis, lanky Springfield hurler, narrowly missed entering the no-run, no-hit hall of fame yesterday as he hurled a one-hit shutout for Springfield over Wheeling in the Mid-Atlantic League.

Savio, Stogie shortstop, was credited with the lone hit made off Davis, his hard hit smash glancing off Second Baseman Madura's arm. Lamier, Springfield outfielder, connected for four hits in as many trips to the plate. Springfield won the game, 6 to 0.

The Beckley Black Knights finally put the kibosh on the Huntington Boosters, serving the latter their first setback of the season at Huntington, 12 to 4. Cozad kept Huntington's 10 hits well scattered.

Dayton tallied six runs in the last inning against the Johnstown Johnnies at Johnstown, but fell three runs short of tying the score and lost out, 9 to 6. The victory was the fourth in a row for the Johnnies.

At Zanesville, the Charleston Senators defeated the home nine, 4 to 1, both teams collecting 10 safe hits.

In the newly formed Pennsylvania State Association, Greensburg made it two in a row and two out of as many starts by defeating Charleroi, 5 to 3. Charleroi outhit the Trojans, 8 to 6.

Monessen bowed to Jeannette, 10 to 5, Jeannette slugging two Monessen hurlers for 16 safe hits, twice as many as were collected by Monessen.

Pitt and Tartan Golfers Face Tests

Two college matches top the golf card today. At the St. Clair Country Club, the undefeated Pitt Panthers take on the Mountaineers from West Virginia, while at the Field Club, Tech clashes with Western Reserve, of Cleveland.

Sports Shorts

The Japan track and field team won the Far-Eastern olympic games title yesterday at Manila, P. I., piling up 101 points against 57 for the Philippines and seven for China. Four Oriental records were broken and one equalled.

Wash-Jeff's varsity tennis team was defeated by the George Washington University netters at Washington, D. C., yesterday, 5 to 4.

The Yale, Princeton and Cornell varsity crews clash today at Derby, Conn., for the spring rowing championship of the East.

Harold Murphy, star quarter-miler of the Waynesburg College track team, suffered an ankle injury while playing baseball yesterday which terminated his varsity career. The Jacks meet Geneva in a dual meet at Waynesburg today.

Christian Boussus, of France, defeated Franz Matejka, of Austria, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4 at Paris yesterday in the initial singles match of the first round of European zone Davis Cup play.

Switzerland today held a lead of two matches to one over India in the first round Davis Cup play in the European zone. The matches are being played at Lucerne, Switzerland.

With William T. Tilden seeded No. 1 player in the Eastern Professional Tennis championships gets under way today on the courts of the Park Avenue Tennis Club, New York City.

The Rainbow, potential America's cup defender, built for the New York syndicate headed by Harold S. Vanderbilt, showed good speed in a trial trip down Narragansett Bay yesterday.

WESTINGHOUSE TITLE HOPES GET SHOCK

By JULIUS LEVIN

Westinghouse High School's hopes of sewing up the section 1 City Scholastic Baseball League pennant were dealt a severe blow yesterday when an aroused Schenley nine pounded out a surprise 11 to 6 victory on the Bellefielder's diamond.

Hitting at timely moments behind Hank Greenberg's steady hurling, the Schenley nine made 13 hits account for 11 runs. Westinghouse was limited to eight blows by Greenberg.

OLIVER VICTOR

Over in Section II, Oliver won its fifth game in a row, defeating Allegheny Vocational, 18 to 1. South Hills took over Carrick, 7 to 4 in a third city league engagement.

Wilkinsburg blanked McKeesport, 3 to 0; Edgewood trimmed Elizabeth, 6 to 1; Crafton took Dormont, 3 to 1; Burgettstown walloped Hickory, 11 to 0, and Waynesburg defeated Avella 16 to 7 in W. P. I. A. L. tussles.

In the Golf Conference, Connelley downed Oliver, 10½ to 4½; Sewickley crushed Springdale, 14½ to ½; Shady Side downed the University School, 11 to 4; Aspinwall defeated Wilkinsburg, 8 to 7; Brentwood took Dormont and Central Catholic defeated Mt. Lebanon by the same count and Greensburg won over Norwin, 10 to 5.

Carrick's tennis team blanked Oliver, 3 to 0; Wilkinsburg won from Swissvale, 4 to 1; Allderdice toppled Allegheny, 4 to 1, and Arnold School blanked Crafton, 5 to 0.

ELIZABETH AHEAD

In the annual Allegheny County track and field championship meet, held yesterday, Elizabeth carried off top honors with 56 points. Pitcairn and Turtle Creek wound up in a deadlock for second with 36 points each, and East McKeesport and Etna tied with 33. Bridgeville had 30 and Brentwood, Leetsdale, Glassport, Stowe and Shaler brought up the rear.

In the junior competition, East Deer Township led with 60 points. Ingram counted 55 and West View took 35. Twenty-nine of the 55 points scored by Ingram were won by the girls.

In dual meets, Mt. Lebanon nosed out Shady Side, 59½ to 52½ and Knoxville defeated Carrick, 43 to 25.

The Peabody High School novice track and field team took down top honors in the district novice meet staged on the Westinghouse field yesterday, scoring 71 points. Westinghouse was second with 69.

HOOSIER STAR SETS RECORD

EVANSTON, Ill., May 19.—(AP.)—Illinois, a darkhorse, has galloped into the contention for the Western Conference outdoor track and field championship, but the real galloping was done by Charles Hornbostel, Indiana University's brilliant middle distance star.

The tall bespectacled Hoosier, ignoring the rest of the field in his heat in the half-mile run yesterday, swept to a new Big Ten record of 1 minute, 52.9 seconds. The performance brushed away the old mark of 1 minute 53.2 seconds established by Don Scott, of the Mississippi Aggies in 1916, one of the two records held by non-conference stars.

Illinois, not expected to figure as a championship threat, uncorked power in the dashes and the shot put, it lead the qualifying for today's finals with 16 places. Hellmich, best of the Illini sprinters last year but suffering an injury most of this season, was back in form and qualified in the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

THREE SHARE HONORS

LINCOLN, Neb., May 19.—(AP.)—Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma emerged from the 1934 Big Six Conference track and field preliminaries yesterday in a three-way race for leadership and to Elwyn Dees, of Kansas, went the day's only Conference record, a new shot put mark.

WORLD MARK SET

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 19.—(AP.)—Jack Torrance, 275-pound Louisiana State ace, broke the world record for the shot put here yesterday afternoon in the preliminaries of the Southeastern Conference track meet with a throw of 53 feet 6½ inches.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

Next winter if I get a chance I'm going to drive down South and watch them build that new Norris Dam in Tennessee. That must be quite a sight. Think of it, when the dam is finished it will make a reservoir 80 square miles with a shore line 800 miles long. They tell me there will be plenty of fishing in it. That's what you call doing things in a big way.

Honus Wagner

When these dams are finished, according to what I read, many of those terrible floods will be things of the past, and that means a lot of human suffering will be ended. I don't pretend to know a lot about how they go about building one of these big things, but it must be tougher than connecting with one of Matty's sizzlers when he was in his prime.

Regards, HONUS WAGNER.

MINOR TENNIS LOOPS MAY BE FORMED HERE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

While crack performers of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League hustle through their paces today and tomorrow in the final week-end of practice preparatory to inauguration of circuit play next Saturday, there are well advanced plans in the wind for even further extension of organized racquetting here.

According to word from Gilbert Keisling, East Liberty enthusiast, an excellent prospect exists for the formation of a system of minor leagues, the first of which, to be known as the East End Tennis League, already is more than a mere nebulous possibility.

Keisling, who originally brought his idea of a small, twilight wheel into being about a year ago when an eight-club group was rounded up under the supervision of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., is of the opinion that such leagues can be set up in several sections of the city. Whether or not these outfits could be aligned at once with the P.

One of those digest mags—always full of readable material, revives one of the better newspaper quips . . Horace Greeley, it appears, always insisted that the word "news" was plural . . He once wired to a reporter: "Are there any news?" . . . The reply came back, "Not a new!" . . . Little quirks of fate always intrigue me—and you, too, I suspect . . Take Preston Sturges, the play writer . . It was a ten-dollar bill that turned him from a self-confessed ham into an ace writer . . He was assistant stage manager and an actor in the ill-fated "Frankie and Johnny" which played a few weeks in Chicago several seasons ago . . Before the company left New York, it was understood that he was to get $85 a week . . . The manager in Chicago, however, had another idea . . He paid Preston $75 . . . Sturges was so insistent that he get the extra tenner that he finally got it—as well as his two-weeks' notice . . That summer with no job in view—he while away his time penning a play . . It was "Strictly Dishonorable" . . And what a hit! . . . Today Sturges has more yachts than you have troubles.

In all the time I've been in New York—I can't recall ever going to a cocktail party . . . chiefly because at cocktail time—I prefer breakfast . . No wonder I was flustered in Detroit when the society editor of the Detroit Times (and what eyes!) threw two of them in as many days . . At the first—it was a cinch—the guests were the reporters and editors of the various gazettes . . But at the second! . . . Veddy, veddy social—but in spite of it—they seemed like human beings . . It was delightful meeting Anastasia Reilly, again . . Anastasia was once one of the Ziegfeld decorations—and now she has too much money . . And a sensayuma—which is better . . I also met for the first time—the gentleman—who obviously inspired Peter Arno's cartoons . . A chomming Britisher—and a dead ringer for the guy with the mustache in the Arno howls . . . The debs looked like debs . . . And some of them were as pretty as magazine front covers . . . And all of them were as pleasant as my favorite person in New York society—Whitney Bourne . . It was nice meeting them all, at any rate . . Bernie probably would have said: "Fancy the social lions meeting the wolf!"

Telegraph companies were made a little richer the other day—all because I listed a girl over at the Jack McInernys—and failed to add that it wasn't the Macs of the Paramount, New York . . . So soddy . . . There are 11 movie theaters here open 24 hours daily—and New York is supposed to be an all-night burg! . . . Seems to me that not one of the papers observed this fact—that in the Communist May Day parade—the marchers were a lot better dressed than they were last year . . . What a thrill it is knowing that a certain counterfeiter has finally been trapped . . . My thanks to those he "clipped," who have taken it up with the District Attorney . . . The first thing I'll do when I step off the train is try to see District Attorney Dodge to make sure that the moron is confronted by the gullibles he frightened via my name.

Very comical the other night . . . A national broadcast which was promoting better speech was on—and the speaker concluded by giving the proper method of pronouncing "tune" . . . He said it should be spoken to rhyme with "hewn" . . . And so what happened? . . . So this happened . . . Immediately following was the station announcer, who chirped: "Don't forget to toon in on this program next week at this time" . . . Heheheh . . . It's little things like that—that make big columns like this easier to do . . . Well, I see by the papers (gosh, there I go thefting Will Rogers, by golly) that Mrs. Jules Glaenzer is in Reno—or that she's already been there, and not to see the scenery . . . There isn't a more personable guy in New York than Jules—but I wonder why on earth he nailed me, and argued at length one night at the Casino de Paree, because the reports of an impending break were jotted down? . . . I'll keep filling columns this way whenever the mood asserts itself—I mean chronicling about those deniers, who actually weep how wrong you are . . . When, that is, the news you relate about them months before, is finally made a matter of record . . . Even at the risk of boring the reader stiff . . . After all, my friends, it's the only fun I have!

Beery Great As Villa In Penn Film

By MICHAEL SHAW

A roaring melodrama, full of sweep and movement, color and drama, and boasting the most magnificent acting Wallace Beery has ever done—that's "Viva Villa," the Penn's new attraction.

It's a cruel picture and a lusty one, a picture that could only have come out of the sun-baked cactus fields of Mexico, a picture that shocks and amuses and moves you, and altogether the most exciting screen fare provided in many months.

Without pretending to stick to historical facts, "Viva Villa" has the ring of authenticity insofar as its central character, the almost legendary bandit-patriot, is concerned. Pancho Villa is portrayed pretty much as he must have been—a brutal, illiterate peon, with an immense gusto for life; a prodigious warrior and a magnetic leader of men, with the mind of a child.

The story carries Villa from the moment when, as a boy, he sees his father flogged to death by the tyrant Diaz's men, to his assassination in a grocery store after he has retired to a life of peace in his native Chihuahua.

In the course of the picture we see Villa's rise to fame as the Robin Hood-like leader of a band of marauders. We see some of the frequent "marriages" which follow his raids; "I like to get married often; I am religious," he explains.

We see him fall under the spell of Madero, champion of the peon, and conquer all northern Mexico to send that "bearded little fellow" to the president's palace. We see him take one city just to make good the false news of its capture which an American reporter friend has wired, while inebriated, to his paper.

After triumph comes a "small trouble," the more or less accidental killing of a bank clerk. Madero saves his old captain from execution, exiles him instead. But when Madero is slain, Villa crosses the border, rouses his peon followers, and advances on Mexico City.

On his way he captures Madero's assassin, smears him with honey and feeds him to the ants. He also whips to death a lovely girl of the aristocracy, not because she tries to shoot him but because she gloats over the sufferings the peons have undergone. It is this girl's brother who later kills Pancho.

Villa rules as president for a day and completes Madero's project, the return of the land to the people. He is a comic and an uncomfortable president, and a happy man when he gets back into the saddle and away from the capital.

As he lies dying, his reporter friend, by request, composes some eloquent last words. Villa repeats after him, "Forgive me—," then stares blankly about and asks, "But what wrong have I ever done?"

If ever there was a one hundred per cent good job of screen acting, it is Wallace Beery's performance in this role. He IS Villa; no one who sees the picture will ever disassociate the two names in his mind.

And Mr. Beery has the able assistance of a cast which includes the veteran, Henry B. Walthall, as Madero; Joseph Schildkraut, as the villain; Fay Wray, as Villa's victim; Leo Carrillo, as his second in command; Stuart Erwin, as the drunken reporter, and, among the second generation of movie people, Cecil B. DeMille's daughter, Katherine, she of the ample charms, and Francis X. Bushman, Jr. Ben Hecht wrote the script, which is no handicap, either.

The Mexican government and the Mexican army cooperated in the filming of the picture, contributing mightily to the rousing battle and mob scenes. Altogether, "Viva Villa" is something not to be missed, and not soon to be forgotten.

There is a new Silly Symphony, "Grasshopper and the Ants," among the short subjects completing the bill.

Lanny Ross On Stanley Screen

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

There probably are enough Lanny Ross radio fans to make his debut in "Melody in Spring," now playing in the Stanley, a Lanny Ross success. And there probably are enough Charlie Ruggles-Mary Boland movie fans to dispute that rating with a well-taken point of order to the effect that without these two comedy artists there would not be much reward for the faithful except Lanny's pleasing tenor singing voice. He has nothing else to offer—and you don't have to go to the theater to hear that, providing you are a dial twister.

However, in being endowed as a good singer, Mr. Ross has a gift enough, and there is scarce reason to complain if he is not a Barrymore in addition. With that voice he doesn't have to be the greatest in the world, and when we accept him in that spirit, as we should, we can find little on which to base any criticism, hence nothing of the kind will be attempted here. Besides, he is good-looking, and the gals will like that.

"Melody in Spring" is a most artificial story, built entirely around a singer's personality. He wants to get a job on a dog biscuit program, sponsored by Charles Ruggles, maker of the pup food. Charlie, whose fad is collecting, doesn't like him. But Lanny likes the biscuit maker's daughter, Ann Sothern, and puts it up to Chas., as one collector to another, that if he can "collect" her, his reward ought to be a job. Strictly on a collecting basis, Ruggles agrees, and then off he goes to Europe with his family.

Lanny wins, after adventures and song in Switzerland, a collected cowbell landing first Ruggles and then himself, in the hoosegow, to which Miss Sothern finds a way to acquire a 10-days' residence also, just as her parents are leaving for Paris.

As indicated previously, the thing would be lacking rather sadly were it not for Mr. Ruggles and Miss Boland, who again do that Mr. and Mrs. combination as well as they usually do—that is, with that innocent dumbness that is so appealing. Herman Bing and he Gale triplets are among the efficient help.

Most pleasing among the songs are "Melody in Spring," with a pastoral background, and "The Open Road," in a prison atmosphere.

More Plays Are Being Written

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel.

While "The Skin Game" by Galsworthy is on the boards at Tech Little Theater next Tuesday, playing against "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Irene Kaufman Settlement, with James Cato as Uncle Tom, two Pittsburgh playwrights are putting the finishing touches upon new dramas that soon will have initial production by local groups.

Madeline Skelly Foust is working at "Two People," which the Newman Players will present May 27, 28 and 29, at the Cathedral High School auditorium in Craig street. Helen Veresky and Martin Fallon are the "two people," while others in the cast include Mary Clancy, Michael Healy, Viola Brooky, John McQuade, Margaret Kelly, Roy Henry, Clarissa Gailliet, Charles Brookey, Regis Bryson, Betty Succop, Don Sanker, Alice Wright and Robert Preker.

About the same time the Y Playhouse will produce a new satiric comedy by one of its members David Cornman. "Don't Go Forth Naked" is called a comedy of almost no manners, dealing with the delightful lunacies of the Bohemian coast along East 57th street, New York City.

The seniors of Carrick High School have become dramatically ambitious enough to put on "The Perfect Alibi," May 31 and June 1. George Barenbregge, Rita Graham and Grace Closs have the leads.

The Hill Top Community playhouse was formally opened on Thursday evening at the Knoxville Y, and will be under direction of D. M. Hall.

Virginians Feature At Kennywood

Jess Hawkins' Virginians will play for the dancing today at Kennywood Park. Jess Hawkins, the leader, began his professional work singing on a boat between Los Angeles and Catalina Island, and later sang in vaudeville. "Red" Evans is the comedy singer in the organization. The Virginians will play for the dancing this afternoon and tonight and all next week. Sunday they will give two concerts.

Hot From Hollywood

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 19.—Hello! To option or not to option—was the question, but Paramount finally wrote out a nice check to Damon Runyon and acquired the movie rights to "The Lemon Drop Kid" after doing a "on-again-off-again" routine for several weeks: Lee Tracy, who is always slated for more films than he ever makes, is set to star, while Dorothy Dell, contract player, gets another boost as the leading lady.

Movieland musings—T. Roy Barnes, who once quit the movies 'cause they interfered with his golf, is back in grease paint—this time for a role in "The Kansas City Princess," a Warner celluloid . . . Julius Klein, Universal story advisor, pulled his first official gesture. He suggested a yarn to be called "My Mother." Oddly enough he thought of the idea on Mother's day . . . Leslie Howard dented his bank account for an all-wave radio just so he could listen to the chimes of Big Ben in London.

* * *

Silly moments—Joe Morrison backed by W. C. Fields into a corner during a galloping tintype at Paramount, and insisted upon recounting a recent fishing expedition.

Joe—I was using worms. You know what fishworms are?

W. C.—Sure, Caterpillars gone nudist!

* * *

Richard Thorpe, the rapidly-becoming-important young megaphonist, who won distinction as a speedy and sure-fire director for several independent outfits, is starting his long-term contract with Universal. His first yarn will be "Walking on Air," the Bian James-supervised ditty which is really Ward Morehouse's story, "Bagdad on the Hudson," dusted off. There's a deal pending to borrow Pat O'Brien from Warners, for the stellar spot.

* * *

Wanderings Around Hollywood—Paramount has unshelved (if that's a good word) "Funny Page" . . . Brown Holmes, Warner writer, is home with a sore throat. Probably from yelling at too many story conferences . . . Jack Oakie and Joe Penner will split stellar honors for "The Big Broadcast for 1934," for Paramount . . . "The Shim Sham Revue" has been "tightened," which means, in professional circles, that the laughs are closer together! . . . Wynne Gibson balked at doing that RKO flicker. She wants rest—and lots of it!

Movieland meanderings—Don't tell me Frank Lawton, that swell New York actor, is a water boy. He has just finished the footlight ditty, "Wind and the Rain," and is now slated for "One More River," his movie debut for Universal . . . Jackie Searle has refused to enact any more mean kids on the screen . . . The Helen Morgan show, "Memory," lasted but a week at the Biltmore

All in a Day

Buddy Smith Becomes a Lawyer

FRANK SMITH, known as Buddy to his friends and associates, recently became a full-fledged member of the New York bar. May I present you with a few reactions?

* * *

HIS FATHER: Yes, my son is a lawyer now. And doing pretty well for a beginner, too, they tell me. I always thought he'd go into my business some day, but he didn't want it that way. Well, he made his choice—and I was never the one to interfere.

I hear from all sides that Buddy is a very smart lad. Why shouldn't he be? Lord knows, I've paid out enough money to make him smart! . . .

* * *

HIS MOTHER: Isn't it all just too wonderful? Buddy's an attorney now.

The law is such a wonderful profession. There's no telling where my boy will wind up. Of course, the field is very crowded right now, but that won't make the slightest difference to our Buddy. He's so brilliant! Why, he was one of the best hockey players his college ever had!

I can just see Buddy now as a great judge, or mayor, or President, or something. From the very day of his birth I always knew he'd be a distinguished and brainy man. I knew immediately that he had all the traits of my family—instead of his father's.

And I was thankful! . . .

* * *

HIS SWEETHEART: Yes, indeed. Buddy and I are engaged. No, there's no set date for the wedding just yet. Buddy said he'd like to wait until he gets his first $25,000 fee so that we can take our honeymoon in the proper style.

I just know that ours will be a very successful marriage. We can't fail because both Buddy and I are so sensible about things. We've talked matters over very carefully and we know just what we're going to do.

You wouldn't believe it, but I'm going to be a very conservative person. I don't forget that Buddy will still be struggling during the first two years of our marriage, and I'm not going to demand too much. I wouldn't love him if I did.

Just a little apartment on Park avenue, the proper number of servants, a car or two—and I'll be perfectly satisfied.

* * *

HIS EX-FLAME: So he finally made it, did he? Well, I'll keep my eye on that bird and hop right on him when he begins to look prosperous.

I knew there was something wrong when he began to make all those silly excuses to me. Said his studies were taking most of his time. Humph! The only real studying that guy ever did was from the front row of the Follies.

I'm keeping every letter he ever wrote to me. Something tells me they'll be worth money some day. And what a pleasure it will be to call him up and ask him to recommend me to a good lawyer! . . .

* * *

A JUDGE: You have picked a difficult profession, my lad, a difficult profession. I knew your father well, and I am only too happy to give you the benefits of my advice.

I suppose your ambitions tend toward becoming a judge yourself some day. I have no doubt that you will succeed. But I must tell you that the game is not what it's cracked up to be. It calls for work, work, work—and then more work. You have no time for yourself, and your every effort must be expended for the public good. You are a servant of the people, and your life is not your own.

And now, my boy, I trust you will excuse me. I must adjourn court immediately and get out to my golf club . . .

* * *

BUDDY SMITH: I'm a lawyer now, but I don't know why. I always wanted to be a doctor!

Arliss Film Ends In Davis Today

"The House of Rothschild," starring George Arliss, with Loretta Young and Robert Young as the romantic principals, will close its second downtown week in the Davis tonight, which also will mark its final showing in that theater. The picture, one of the best of the season, is a dramatic illustration with the part played by the Rothschild family in the history of Europe in the time of Napoleon.

Pitt Offers Acts, Films

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

With the World Fair acts coming to the city piecemeal in revue form, Pittsburghers whose exposition interest is centered in its spots of amusement won't have to travel to Chicago to get a good look at this and that much publicized entertainer.

The Pitt, for one, goes to the fair for the personnel of its "Midway Nights," a stepping and peppy hour of amusement. Garnered from the various villages, Heidelberg, Old Mexico, the Streets of Paris, the artists offer the regular, though well presented, vaudeville arrangement of dance, song and comedy skits.

Singing Johnny Poat and versatile Dennis White alternate in providing the continuity, while Dave Lee, funster, joins them every so often with his Streets of Paris brand of comedy. Prosper and Maret exhibit marvelous acrobatic and body control in their well received performance.

Another popular act is that of the Andrini brothers whose extremely able dueting on banjos and guitars provides a restful interlude of music after Rosalie's fan dance. Yes, a fan dance there is in the show (there seems no getting away from them), a dance just like the many you've seen before.

Lyda Sue and Mona Leslie, whirlwind dancers, and the blue-singing Bonita Frede, present pleasing numbers.

On the screen it's a story of the social blue-blood falling in love with the chorus girl, presenting Colleen Moore in an ill-suited role as the third-from-the-left chorine in a Broadway revue. The title, "Social Register," gives an adequate idea of the plot.

Rescued Men On Screen

Dramatic pictures of the four survivors of the Nantucket lightship, rammed and sunk by the liner Olympic, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, with a description of the tragedy by The Globe Trotter. The lightship is shown as she appeared before the disaster and then the Olympic is seen coming into New York harbor. All four lightship survivors describe their harrowing experiences.

Little June Robles, 6-year-old victim of the cruelest kidnaping on record, is seen safely back at her home in Tucson, Ariz. Then follow scenes of William F. Gettle, back in his home in Los Angeles, who tells a dramatic story of his imprisonment. There are also pictures of the three abductors after their swift sentencing to life imprisonment.

The Emperor of Japan celebrates his thirty-third birthday by reviewing thousands of troops.

One of the greatest petitions in history circulated by Hearst newspapers and signed by 1,344,347 patriotic Americans, is presented by E. D. Coblentz, editor of the New York American and supervising editor of the Hearst morning newspapers, to Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. The petition urges the Senate to oppose the new effort to put the United States into the League of Nations by "back door" methods.

Uncle Sam's new $21,000,000 aircraft carrier, the Ranger, is seen making her first run off Rockland, Me.

Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs on time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst subjects of the above issue of Hearst theater.

Comedy Ends Season

By E. REEVES COCHRAN

The curtain fell on the twentieth season of the Stage and Play Society Thursday night when "Mr. Pim Passes By," A. A. Milne's charming comedy of a dozen years ago, was revived at the Twentieth Century Club. Amateur groups render a real service in keeping alive these delightful comedies of manners. They are nowadays too fragile, too mild to attract to the commercial theater a public saturated with the more violent drugs of Hollywood.

The Milne comedy is a dramatic definition of the phrase "a well-meaning old gentleman." Mr. Carraway Pim, wistful and garrulous, stops at the home of the Mardens to obtain a letter of introduction. He does not know them at all, but he promptly explodes a charge of dynamite under the peace of the household, nevertheless. With the most amiable and benevolent intentions in the world, he manages to create a tempest which, when it has subsided, is discovered to be due entirely to the slightly foggy condition of Mr. Pim's intellect.

Mrs. Thomas McC. Mabon carried the performance on her talented shoulders as Mrs. Marden, the lady who becomes a bigamist on Mr. Pim's arrival and returns to monogamy as his memory finally brightens. Mrs. Mabon acted with restraint and intelligence, displaying a sure sense of comedy values. Chester Story played the rather stodgy husband with spirit, and proved an excellent foil for Mrs. Mabon's dry style.

Harold Geoghegan, splendidly made up, was Mr. Pim to the life, and Mrs. C. F. C. Arensburg, as a female Britisher, brought sharp delineation to a slight part.

Two Films Showing In Regent

The double bill in the Regent includes "Where Sinners Meet," featuring Billie Burke, Diana Wynyard and Clive Brook, and "One Is Guilty," the cast of which is headed by Ralph Bellamy and Shirley Greay. "Where Sinners Meet" is based on the A. A. Milne comedy, "The Denver Road." It concerns the efforts of Clive Brook, a sufferer from marital mistakes, to make the path easiers for elopers. Billie Burke appears as an eloping wife. "One Is Guilty" revolves about the solution of a murder, the investigation of which results in a second killing. Ralph Bellamy plays a detective and Miss Grey is a chorus girl suspected of the initial crime.

GOVERNMENT STANDS FOR INDIVIDUAL

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The New Dealers as I pointed out yesterday are guided by an extremely idealistic philosophy and that leads them to impractical action. They don't see the world as it is.

One evidence of this is their collectivism. Their schemes may be classed as a sort of socialism.

This, again, means that they are revolutionists. Nothing seems to me more hypocritical than their frequent reference to our forefathers, the pioneers, our constitution, etc. To hear them prate about such things is unpleasant, because we now know they are working to overthrow what they stand for.

Now, I don't believe that our institutions are fixed for all time, nor that they are all good. My point is that this nation grew up under a system of individual initiative, and a Democratic form of government characterized by "checks and balances." Our government has been for the individual, not the individual for the government. It is, therefore, a fraud on the people to revolutionize these things without giving us a chance to vote on the principles involved.

If the executive is going to run the country and do our planning for us, and if our representatives are to become rubber stamps, why bother with elections? Why have any courts?

FUNDAMENTAL FACTORS

The basis of my special philosophy is the idea that you and I as individual persons are the fundamental factors in life. The individual is the one who feels, thinks, has wants, and experiences costs.

What we call "society" is merely an association of individual men and women. We individuals are bound together by common feelings, ideas, and interests. But society is real only to the extent that the individual members have such common interests.

We "cooperate" in society, but cooperation is unreal and a farce if we, as individuals, do not act voluntarily on the basis of common agreement. An army is not a truly cooperative organization.

Government is merely a social mechanism for preserving a society and making effective the common interests of the individual members.

Of course, my point is that government is logically maintained for the good of the individual citizens. But the idea of Fascism is that the citizen exists for the government, just as the soldier exists for the army. And the new deal has gone far toward setting up a sort of Fascism here. Under the guise of a "war on depression" we individuals are being herded into alphabetical regiments. A virtual dictator is making "plans" for us and spending our money.

There are two kinds of tyranny. One is the tyranny of the one individual over another. That is bad. The other is the tyranny of a dictatorial government over groups of individuals. When a government begins to control the economic life of the people and to levy heavy taxes for purposes not understood or approved by the taxpayers, it becomes tyrannical.

ONCE CALLED "TORIES"

Our forefathers called such a government "Tories."

And just what is "the government?" Is it not in practice a bunch of men who have seized or been given certain powers? When you appeal to Washington, do you not go to some other individual, no better or wiser than yourself? Does the political accident which puts some individual in office, immediately endow him with wisdom and intelligence?

In practice our government is just Franklyn Roosevelt, Henry Morgenthau, Henry Wallace, Rexford Tugwell, Hugh Johnson, and a few other men. Aside from any question as to what they have done to qualify them to run the nation's business, I ask, by what right do these few men force their collectivist ideals upon us? We did not elect them to revolutionize our institutions.

If all this trend toward dictatorships is just a "council of despair," and the New Dealers have been allowed to rise to power in order to preserve our society from "chaos," why should they therefore imagine that they are called upon to adopt the methods of socialism? Does "the emergency" require that we abandon the ship?

MATRICIDE CASE NEAR JURY

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 17.—(AP.)—The fate of John Richards, 28, Bloomfield Township man charged with the murder of his mother, will rest in the hands of a Crawford County jury before tonight. Arguments between counsel slowed the progress of the trial to a snail's ace yesterday as the defense sought to show that the man's mother, Mrs. Mary Richards, died of natural causes and not, as the commonwealth charges, from a beating at the hands of her son.

Two Meadville physicians disagreed with the findings of the doctor who performed the autopsy on the body of Mrs. Richards and asserted that it "was entirely possible that the woman died of a heart attack."

Foreign Markets Observe Holiday

LONDON, May 19.—(AP.)—In observance of the witsuntide holidays all Liverpool, London, Paris and Berlin markets will remain closed today and Monday, May 21, with the exception of the London bullion and money market which remain open today.

Does 'First Lady' Censor Letters To President?

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 19.—(AP.)—Does Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President, object to another woman writing to her husband? That is the problem confronting one South Carolina woman.

The woman wrote to the state superintendent of adult education, explaining that she had written to the President. The woman said:

"My husband says that Mr. Roosevelt's wife might object if a woman writes to him.

"So if he doesn't reply to my letter, I will know that Mrs. Roosevelt didn't like me writing to her husband. If he does answer, I will know that she didn't mind."

AUTO INDUSTRY TAKING LESS STEEL

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel requirements of the automobile industry have undergone a distinct decrease, in other large lines of consumption there is no change, and in various relatively small lines there are increases.

Production of steel ingots this week may be estimated at 59 per cent of capacity against 60 per cent last week and 58 per cent the week before. The peak of consumption has doubtless been passed until autumn, but a new peak in production may be reached, depending upon how freely buyers stock up to June 30 to take advantage of contracts made before last month's price advances.

Forecasts of the amount of stocking, originally quite rough, have been scaled down for two reasons, because scrutiny of incoming orders shows that not much steel is being ordered for stocking purposes and because it is observed that buyers after considering the matter are quite conservative. Against the nominal or gross saving they estimate the expense and risk. The automobile industry was expected to do the greatest amount of stocking, but it has become clear that it will stock to only an insignificant extent.

In ordinary times the peak of steel production always fell in March or early April. Due to buyers being more cautious the peak might come somewhat later in these times but it is a favorable showing as to general conditions that it should come so much later.

CAR SCHEDULES REDUCED

Given a certain consumption, the less stocking is done the better it is for the mills, for two reasons, because there is a steadier operation, with a mild peak some time before June 30, and a mild drop for July, and because with less stocking buyers will pay the advanced prices on a greater tonnage.

Production of automobiles has already had a distinct decrease and larger decreases are indicated by production schedules, lately revised downward, in some cases more than once. In addition, makers are liquidating stocks of certain parts, production of which had run ahead, and thus there is a double decrease in their steel requirements. Stocking of steel will be light and thus there is a striking reversal, for it had been predicted that automobile production would hold up well through June and it was expected there would be much stocking.

The automobile industry is now taking not much more than 15 per cent of all the steel made, a smaller proportion than usual for the time of year, and this speaks well for miscellaneous consumption of steel when so little is going into building and the railroads have merely been approaching their old proportion.

Many small lines of steel consumption are taking much larger tonnages than they did in the active period, the most conspicuous instance being that of the domestic electric refrigerator industry.

STRUCTURAL WORK GAINS

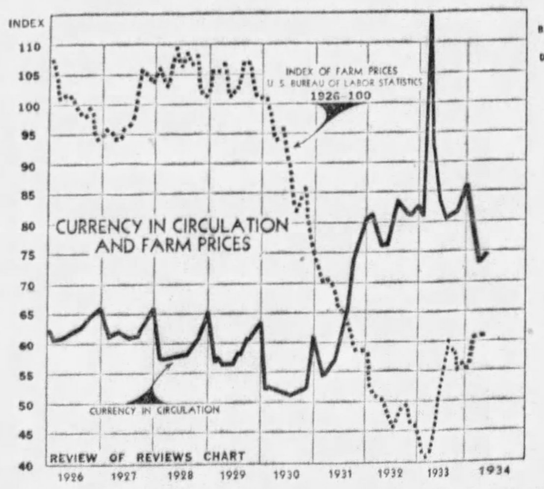
Fabricated structural steel work in the last two or three months has been running about 15 per cent more than in the last two years, when there was a steady but low rate, and the gain does not add much tonnage. The chief change from last year is that railroad and commercial work has come to amount to something.

The tin plate mills, after operating for nine weeks at about 80 per cent, have run at about 75 per cent in the last two weeks. Cumulative production since the first of the year is remarkably heavy, considering the stocks of tin plate and cans accumulated late in the old year and the fact that even consumers of cans have fallen quite short of emerging entirely from depression.

The scrap market has slipped farther, heavy melting being quoted at $12.50 to $13, representing 25 cents decline in a week and $1.50 in four weeks. The market has countered expectations. Consumption has increased as much as was counted upon but mills are liquidating stocks which dealers apparently did not know existed.

By a conservative estimate, steel ingot production in the 12 months through June 30 will total 30,500,000 tons, just two and one-half times the production in the lowest period, the 12 months through March, 1933.

Money in Circulation And Farm Price Index



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Review of Reviews.

This chart, showing the course of farm prices from 1926 to 1934 and the total currency in circulation during the same period, has a vital bearing upon the present effort of the inflationists to raise commodity prices.

As may be noted from the course of farm prices during the last six months, there has been no change in trend. In fact, for a few conspicuous items of political importance, such as wheat, there has been a definite weakening in price. To some extent, adverse weather conditions in the growing areas may reduce or entirely eliminate the surplus which seemed in prospect a month ago, and thus reverse this trend.

By and large, however, the group which wishes to aid in the recovery of prices is concentrating upon currency experiments. This group feels that anything which the government might do to increase the amount of currency in circulation would raise prices.

Much of the theorizing regarding a rise in prices through currency expansion is based upon American experiences under conditions which no longer prevail, and foreign experiences likewise under conditions which do not apply to this country. This is due to the fact that currency in the United States is a minor element in the total purchasing power which bears upon the price structure.

By all odds the most important is the total of deposits in our banks. Any inflation which takes place, in order to be effective, must operate upon bank credit rather than upon currency. It is precisely this kind of inflation which we had during the war and which, together with the decline in the supply of commodities, accounted for the rise in prices.

The chart shows the lack of causal relationship between commodity prices and currency in circulation. The rapid increase from the spring of 1931 to the peak point in 1933 took place at the very time that commodity prices were dropping to unprecedented depths.

Weekly Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP.)—While the aggregate of bank clearings was lower than last week, a level above the corresponding figures of 1933 was maintained. The total for this week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dunn & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,994,501,000, which was 15.2 per cent larger than that for the same week of last year. A week earlier the comparison revealed a gain of 19.6 per cent. Clearings at New York City were $3,357,878,000, a gain of 8.9 per cent, while the aggregate of $1,636,623,000 for all outside centers was higher by 30.8 per cent.

The increase in bank clearings outside of New York was again larger than was shown for New York City. This in part reflects conditions a year ago, when the restrictions in banking operations at many outside points continued quite severe. Furthermore, trading in the speculative markets this year, especially at this time, is very limited and this restricts bank clearings to some extent at New York and other large cities.

Gains this week over a year ago were quite heavy at Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and most points at the south. This week's clearings were less than those of the preceding week by $152,027,000 with the loss mainly at New York City, whereas a year ago there was an increase for the same two weeks of $31,470,000.

Figures for leading cities showing increases as compared with those of last year, are printed herewith; also daily bank clearings for the year to date:

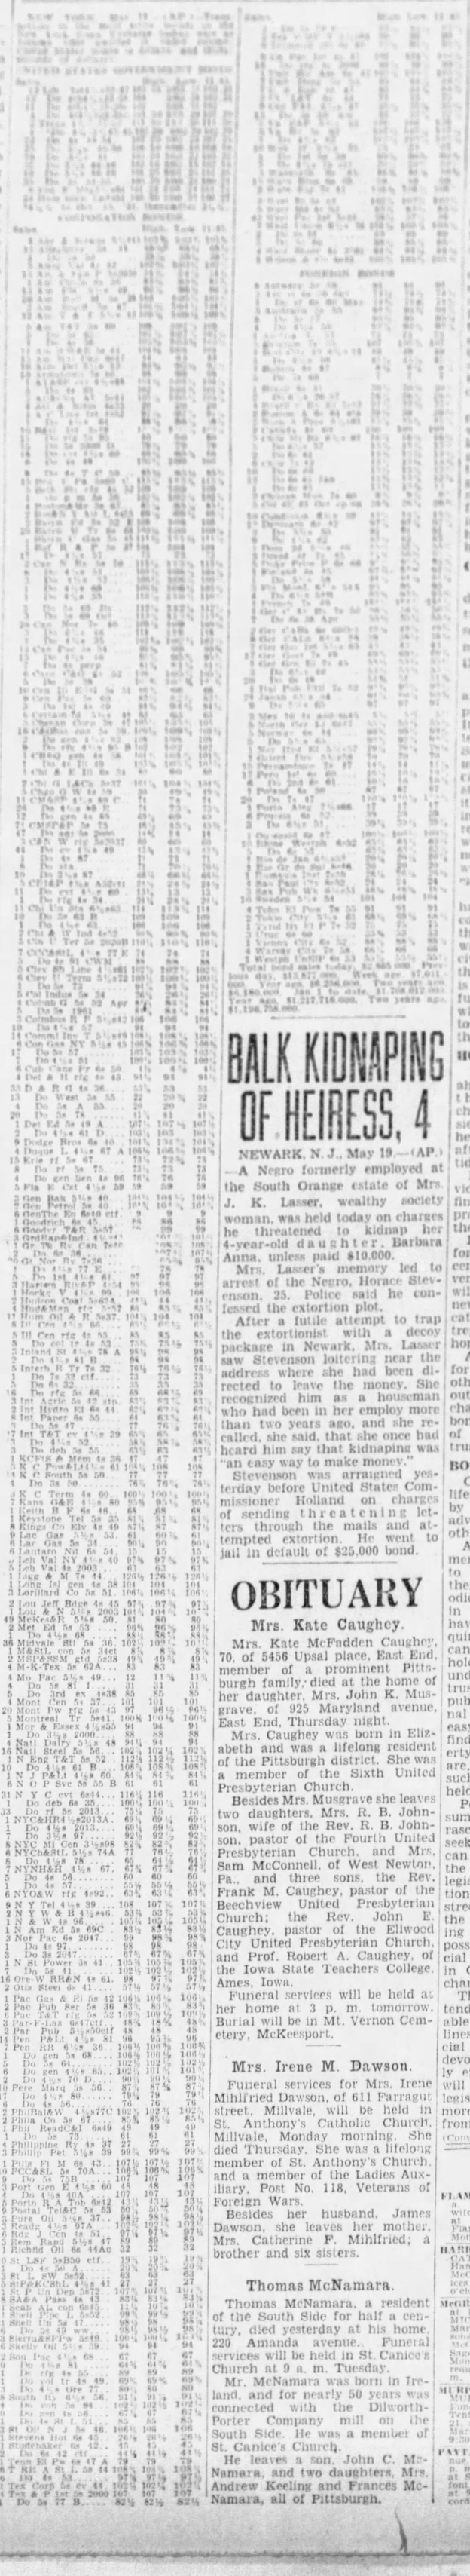
Savings Bankers Re-Elect Benson

NEW YORK, May 18.—Philip A. Benson, president of the Dime Savings Bank, of Brooklyn, New York, and for the past year head of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, has been re-elected president of the group for the ensuing year.

Canadian Freight Traffic Holds Gain

MONTREAL, May 19.—Canadian car loadings in the week ended May 12 totaled 43,960 cars, comparing with 43,453 in the previous week and 36,453 in the like week of 1933.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET



PUBLIC 'COMES OF AGE' IN FINANCE

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Financial writer.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The Stock Exchange control bill, which will doubtless soon become a law, is intended to change human behavior in regard to operations in securities.

One analytical corporation executive, who welcomes the reform, estimates that it will reduce the gambling aspect of security trading by 60 to 70 per cent.

If it does, the public doubtless will seek an outlet for their gambling impulses in other directions, including the racetracks and gambling rooms. Oddly enough, simultaneous with legislative efforts to reduce speculative activity, various state and local efforts here and in our dependencies have been made to legalize lotteries.

Mr. Rukeyser

COMES OF AGE

The dislocations caused by drastic legislation create opportunities for alert merchants of service, who can devise ways and means of compromising the New Deal with the habits of the past.

Until recently, it was commonly assumed that the American public was speculatively-minded. It was argued that the rapid tempo of growth in the United States invited financial commitments intended to give a participation in the fruits of the steady increment. Furthermore, it used to be said that migration in the old world to the new resulted in a natural selection, which made American preeminently a bold people unusually willing to accept the hazards incidental to progress.

On the other hand, reformers have indicated that America has come of age, and no longer needs the dazling tempo by which the wilderness was converted into civilized communities. They insist that the rate of population growth is slowing up, and that in the future our economic civilization will be more stable—less subject to the drastic ups and downs of the past.

HOPPE VS WISDOM

In seeking to forecast what lies ahead, it is well to keep in mind that human motivation will change more slowly than transient political shifts. The long headed will anticipate an ebbing after the present flowing of the tide of reform.

In one way or another, individuals will seek to adjust their financial affairs in the way which promises the greatest benefits to them.

If the House formula, providing for what amounts to an 81 per cent margin, goes into effect, conventional, shoe string speculation will be choked off. But a whole new industry will grow up in catering to the whims of those intrepid individuals in whose bosoms hope triumphs over experience.

A so-called "moral equivalent" for thin margins will be sought in other directions, such as in the outright purchase of stock purchase warrants, or of convertible bonds, or of the junior securities of highly pyramided investment trusts and holding companies.

BOOTLEGGING LOOMS

Other escapes from the good life will unquestionably be sought by the incorrigible in speculative adventures in Toronto and in other foreign bourses.

Already smart fiduciary salesmen are passing along the word to men of large affairs that, if they are reluctant to publish periodically their purchases and sales in corporations in which they have a dominant interest, as required in the proposed law, they can divest themselves of their holdings and operate in the future under the anonymity of living trusts. Others likewise see in the publicity aspect of the new internal revenue act, which makes it easy for local tax collectors to find out what the personal property holdings of their taxpayers are, an inducement for dumping such property into living trusts held by trust companies.

Perhaps it is irreverent to assume that elements of more or less rascality in human nature will seek legal loopholes by which they can free themselves from part of the shackles of the new reform legislation. Efforts will unquestionably be made to keep Wall street less sedate and austere than the reformers intend. Subtle seeking of legalistic alternatives will possibly be supplemented by financial bootlegging, as was the case in Germany after the stock exchange reform act of 1896.

These statements are not intended as criticism of the admirable intent to seek greater orderliness and stability in the financial markets—objectives which are devoutly to be desired. They merely express the belief that efforts will be made to circumvent the legislation intended to make it more difficult to separate a fool from his money.

BALK KIDNAPING OF HEIRESS, 4

NEWARK, N. J., May 19.—(AP.)—A Negro formerly employed at the South Orange estate of Mrs. J. K. Lasser, wealthy society woman, was held today on charges he threatened to kidnap her 4-year-old daughter, Barbara Anna, unless paid $10,000.

Mrs. Lasser's memory led to arrest of the Negro, Horace Stevenson, 25. Police said he confessed the extortion plot.

After a futile attempt to trap the extortionist with a decoy package in Newark, Mrs. Lasser saw Stevenson loitering near the address where she had been directed to leave the money. She recognized him as a houseman who had been in her employ more than two years ago, and she recalled, she said, that she once had heard him say that kidnaping was "an easy way to make money."

Stevenson was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Holland on charges of sending threatening letters through the mails and attempted extortion. He went to jail in default of $25,000 bond.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Kate Caughey.

Mrs. Kate McFadden Caughey, 70, of 5456 Upsal place, East End, member of a prominent Pittsburgh family, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John K. Musgrave, of 925 Maryland avenue, East End, Thursday night.

Mrs. Caughey was born in Elizabeth and was a lifelong resident of the Pittsburgh district. She was a member of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church.

Besides Mrs. Musgrave she leaves two daughters, Mrs. R. B. Johnson, wife of the Rev. R. B. Johnson, pastor of the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Sam McConnell, of West Newton, Pa., and three sons, the Rev. Frank M. Caughey, pastor of the Beechview United Presbyterian Church; the Rev. John E. Caughey, pastor of the Ellwood City United Presbyterian Church, and Prof. Robert A. Caughey, of the Iowa State Teachers College, Ames, Iowa.

Funeral services will be held at her home at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Mt. Vernon Cemetery, McKeesport.

Mrs. Irene M. Dawson.

Funeral services for Mrs. Irene Mihlfried Dawson, of 611 Farragut street, Millvale, will be held in St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Millvale, Monday morning. She died Thursday. She was a lifelong member of St. Anthony's Church, and a member of the Ladies Auxiliary, Post No. 118, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Besides her husband, James Dawson, she leaves her mother, Mrs. Catherine F. Mihlfried; a brother and six sisters.

Thomas McNamara.

Thomas McNamara, a resident of the South Side for half a century, died yesterday at his home, 220 Amanda avenue. Funeral services will be held in St. Canice's Church at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Mr. McNamara was born in Ireland, and for nearly 50 years was connected with the Dilworth-Porter Company mill on the South Side. He was a member of St. Canice's Church.

He leaves a son, John C. McNamara, and two daughters, Mrs. Andrew Keeling and Frances McNamara, all of Pittsburgh.

Housing Insurance Bill B. & L. Safeguard

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—Just as the nation's banks are brought under government supervision by the deposit guarantee, so the proposed housing insurance bill would tend to bring building and loan associations under even closer regulation.

The bill provides for the insurance of savings or investments in such associations. It limits those eligible to such insurance to associations in the federal home loan system, which are examined by the Home Loan Bank Board. Their loans come under certain restrictions not applicable to non-members.

Some eight to ten billions of savings, mostly of small investors, are contained in building and loan associations. About 2,400 of the existing 13,000 to 14,000 associations are already members of the Home Loan Bank system, and it is expected that passage of the guarantee would bring in thousands more.

A further incentive to membership, officials believe, would be in the insurance of loans for reconditioning of old or building of new homes. They say the restrictions on type of loans, now imposed on member banks, would eliminate much original investigation of loans that would be necessary in the case of a non-member association.

Members of the system may borrow money from the central home loan banks, in much the same manner in which commercial banks may borrow on their loans from the Federal Reserve banks. This serves to increase the liquidity of their securities.

Another incentive is the comparatively low interest rate available to member banks, and officials are working toward further reduction.

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP.)—The general stock market showed narrow changes in dull and listless early dealings today. Steadiness prevailed among utility and farm shares. Only a few specialties showed any especial heaviness.

Du Pont sold down more than a point while U. S. Smelting and Johns-Manville recorded similar losses. Armour of Illinois preferred lost 3. On the buying side of the market Brooklyn Manhattan Transit and Western Pacific preferred rose more than a point each. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Case, Deere, Public Service of New Jersey and United Aircraft were about even but Chrysler, General Motors, American Can, Western Union, New York Central, Santa Fe and Loew's were slightly lower.

In addition to the President's arms control message to Congress, the financial district read with much interest the results of a survey of industrial and trade conditions in April by the national industrial conference board.

The survey indicated there was a weakening of public purchasing power during the month and that production apparently was getting ahead of distribution in various lines. The report said:

"General distribution and trade declined more than seasonally in April, as compared with March, in both dollar value and physical value of turnover. Department store and chain store sales, as well as primary shipments by rail, declined in the month.

"Department store sales showed a decline of 1.4 per cent in value of turnover in April as compared with March and were at a level 5 per cent above a year ago. The decline in dollar value of sales ran counter to a normal seasonal rise of 7.1 per cent. Prices of department store items advanced again in April to 0.4 per cent over the March level. Prices have increased 1.1 per cent since the beginning of the year."

The dollar was slightly lower in early foreign exchange dealings. The British pound gained ⅛ of a cent at $5.11 and the French franc firmed .00¾ of a cent at 6.61¾.

WHEAT SCORES SHARP RALLY

CHICAGO, May 19.—Responsive to unfavorable crop reports from drought regions, grain values scored material upturns early today. For the time being, word of moisteur relief at various places was virtually ignored.

Opening ⅛ to 1 cent higher, July 88¼ to 88½, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to ¼ up and subsequently made a general advance.

SEA AIR ROUTE GETS LINDY O. K.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 19.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has reported to the governor of Greenland, it was announced today, that an air route for regular traffic between America and Europe is not infeasible.

It was understood here that more trial flights across Greenland, in addition to those which Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh made last year for Pan-American Airways, will be undertaken and that these tests will be made likewise during the winter before a final decision is made on the establishment of such a route.

Bank Acceptance Volume Declines

NEW YORK, May 19.—The outstanding volume of bankers' acceptances on April 30 was $613,129,137, against $685,154,155 at the end of March, the American Acceptance Council reported today. The decrease of $72,025,108 for the month, making a total reduction of $157,000,000 since the end of January, was attributed by the council to "the strong influence of excess bank reserves and low money rates."

Humble May Call Debenture Issue

NEW YORK, May 19.—Humble Oil and Refining Company is considering the possibility of calling its 5 per cent debentures which mature April 1, 1937, for payment October 1, next, according to reports in bond quarters. The issue totaled $18,950,000 at the close of last year, and comprises Humble's sole funded debt.

CANCELLATIONS AND CORRECTIONS:
Must be handed in to the Want Ad office immediately between the hours of 8:30 A. M. and 5:00 P. M. Such orders for cancellation or corrections are made over the telephone, confirmation should be sent promptly by letter to the Classified Advertising Manager.

A Cancellation Number is given to persons authorizing cancellation. This number should be used by advertiser as a record of the transaction, for use in case of dispute or verification, unless payment is made.

No responsibility for typographical errors must be given in time for correction before the second insertion. The Sun-Telegraph will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of advertisement.

BOX NUMBER REPLIES:
The Sun-Telegraph maintains a complete and efficient "Box Number" service for the accommodation of classified advertisers, without extra charge. The Box Number in lieu of advertiser's own address, counted as two words in Estimating cost of advertisements. Answers may be picked up at the Sun-Telegraph Main Office at Telegraph Square, or at the Fifth Ave. Branch Office, corner Market. If replies to box number advertisements are to be mailed, postage must be paid for by advertiser.

ORDERING YOUR WANT AD:
You may MAIL your ad to "Classified Advertising Manager, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania," or you may BRING it to the Sun-Telegraph Main Office at Telegraph Square (in the Accountants' Office, corner Fifth Ave. and Market St.); or you may PHONE your Want Ad and CHARGE it to Grant 5400 — "Just Ask for Classified." Use the method most convenient to you.

SPECIAL PERSONAL SERVICE:
If you have some special need for which you require personal counsel on copy at your home or office, just call the Classified Advertising Manager and ask to have representative call. No extra charge.

CONTRACT RATES:
The Sun-Telegraph will submit to any professional advertiser special schedule of rates on yearly basis.

CIRCULATION:
The Sunday Sun-Telegraph has, by many thousands, the largest circulation of readers of any newspaper in the State of Pennsylvania, assuring "ALL THE RESULTS YOU NEED" for your Want Ad problems.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXXIV.

Pippin sat quietly with her back against the tree. She watched the moon rising in tawny splendor. The sky was a clear deep blue except for a flurry of stars like a veil thrown out.

As the great burnished light floated over the black, towering peaks, Pippin saw the white cone which yet capped the head of rough-hewn Beckar.

Unbidden, there came into her mind the picture of another snowy peak where she had stood with Kevin. The mountains fell away beneath them—all snow, all white, all dreamlike unruffled silence. And he, so tall above her, looking down with his gray, beautiful eyes taking the light from her face so that she waited helpless, in longing and anguish until he kissed her lips.

She put the memory away, got up and stole swiftly to the cabin. She would not wait for another! She could NEVER wait for another.

Hidden against the dark, lofty Tamarack, Pippin looked back across the lighted waters. Her heart went fast; she held her mind tight and shut.

In distracted moments like this, she thought of writing to Kevin. She wanted to challenge him. How dared he say the things he had said, then coldly brush her aside? He owed her, at least, a courtesy. She wanted to fling insult in his face.

Recalls Kevin's Words

She recalled words he said—"Can I make it up to you for Gregg? Can I make it up to you for Bill?" Smiling, and drawing her gently to the joy of his arms—"Dear Martha, can I?"

She blinked hard to keep the tears locked in her eyes. She tried not to give way to fury. Kevin didn't want her. What of it! She lay awake hours and hours watching the lost stars shoot with swift, reckless beauty down the black walls of the mountains.

It was time to put Kevin Malone out of her thoughts. Surely time!

Yet she avoided trails she thought Dale Owens might take. He was interesting; he was attractive; she liked to find him swinging along at her side: liked his deep, throaty laugh and the merry wink of his black eyes.

But she wouldn't seek his company. This was because she yet hoped Kevin would return to her. She wanted no one else to have even a momentary claim on her thoughts. She was obsessed with her love and did not want to be diverted.

One night as she sat against the cold mountain bluff with the echoes of song gritting over the dreamlit waters, and tears in her eyes because she felt excluded from the beautiful laughter; one night as she sat there, she heard a step.

She knew it was Dale and wished she could steal silently away.

Watched for Her

He took a place at her side.

"You don't keep promises!"

"When I make them, I do!"

"Wasn't there a Tuesday night this week? Isn't this your crag and this your lonely tree? I waited several hours and several nights. This is the first time you've appeared."

"Nights have been a bit chilly."

"Plenty of sweaters in the world. I saw you diving from this rock the other day. It's 30 feet, isn't it? And to icy waters. That's a mad thing to do."

"I love it! Flinging into the unknown. There's always new excitement to it."

The reckless note in her voice made him look sharply at her features, outlined in pallor. In the clear moonlight he saw a shine on her lashes and guessed that she had cried. He came near and put an arm about her.

"You are too young to be so much alone."

"You're quite mistaken. I'm 21, and I like myself so very well, I and Me are good old friends."

"Where have you been for the last four days?"

"Right here."

"No, you haven't. And except for that one day you've not even been swimming or in your boat."

"I swim early in the morning."

"So that you can go into seclusion when the rest of the world wakes up? I've found out about you!"

She turned quickly and saw a merry, teasing light in his eyes.

"You're planning to enter a convent, aren't you? You think you'll forsake the world and its wicked delights?"

"I hadn't thought of that as a career. Now that you mention it, it sounds very appealing."

Discuss Kate

"But you have to get through with the storms and tumults first. Why do you envy Kate for her quiet? Isn't that a tragic state to reach?"

"On the contrary, I think it's a supreme state. Peaceful and master of yourself. No one else has any power over you. You're no longer the dupe of prejudice and emotion."

"The dead enjoy the same supremacy. Did you ever notice how blandly the old accept grief? Nothing matters very much."

She said suddenly: "Yes!" and recalled old Jonathan was puzzled that she wept for Bill. Jonathan said: "Why do you care so much? He's no relation to you!" and didn't like it that Pippin looked so sad.

"You don't want to be old, do you? Or finished with life just because of one pang?"

Her eyes widened and sought his in question. She did not want him to read her heart.

He went on casually: "When the storms rage fiercest, we are most alive! The more we feel, the richer we are. The capacity to experience sharply whether of pain or joy is the best of all equipment."

"I think pain is a great devastation. It empties you. It takes the color out of life." She said this and thought of Sherry with all the laughter gone.

"You can't take the color out of life. Of course if a person hugs on to a tragedy it scoops them clean. But that's a paltry weakness. The color and happiness remain. Up to you if you blindly refuse to take it!"

Still Keeps Hope

She thought over this; she lay awake and said to herself: "It's true. You can be a starveling and refuse to eat; you can close your eyes and deny that the sun shines!"

But she would not put away her hope. Dale met her the next morning as she came out of the chilly waters. He shivered.

"How do you manage to stay in so long? Aren't you afraid you'll never thaw out!"

She laughed flippantly: "The frozen lady—that's what I aim to be!"

"But you're never going to succeed. You know it, don't you?"

She colored and swept a long cape about her, then sat in the sun, pulling off her cape and shaking her hair free.

He said, settling beside her: "Did you mean it when you said I could use your picture?"

"I'd love it!"

"But you'll have to ask your mother."

"She'll never recognize me in those gorgeous girls of yours. They're no more like me than they're like Kate Stone."

"They ARE you."

"No one else seese me so enticing."

"How do you know? Will you drop over to my cabin and let me add a few details? Or shall I come here?"

"Oh, come here—then you can do Helena. Helena is my mother. You'll have a real model then."

"I've seen her."

She glanced at him indignantly: "She's VERY beautiful. A thousand times prettier than I!"

Wants Pippin as Model

He gave her a quick laugh: "Darling—she has my permission to be as beautiful as you want her to be! I think she IS beautiful. But she's not 18 and the story I'm illustrating calls for you. Will you ask her if I may use your face?"

"It's my face! I think it's enormously exciting to be drawn by an artist and to appear in magazines. I might get a job in the movies. Then I wouldn't know whether to enter the convent or become a star. You give me problems."

But she didn't make any appointment with Dale.

She said carelessly: "Next week some time."

She felt a little hot scorn for herself that she didn't and wouldn't cut away from a hope in Kevin—even a shining faith in him.

Every now and then a voice in her mind said: "You'll love me always, sweetheart dear?" and another voice answered: "He meant it! There's some mistake. Wait!"

One day she took the boat and went to the pier for the mail. When she looked over the letters, the blood flew in a panic warmly to her cheeks. She felt weak and leaned against the counter.

There was a letter in Kevin's writing to Helena.

As her boat cut homeward the mile and a half through the sparkling sapphire waters, she thought, fighting wild tears of joy: "At last—at last!"

Underneath a little terror crept. Why should Kevin write to her mother?

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party. Kevin disappoints Pippin, but saves a man's life. Bill arrives home and takes Pippin on airplane trip. They're forced to land in desolate country, but finally find a house and arrive back in town. Bill leaves. Gregg sails. Kevin goes East. Bill's plane crashes. Bill dies. Kevin's letters stop.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM McKINLEY—HIS CABINET

The "unlucky" years of President Cleveland were closed by a bitter presidential campaign (1896) in which William McKinley (1843-1901), Republican, won the presidency against William Jennings Bryan, Democrat, advocate of silver-backed money.

McKinley's first administration (1897-1901) is remembered chiefly for the Spanish-American War, the immediate cause of which was the blowing up of the U. S. Battleship Maine, February 15, 1898, on a friendly visit to Havana, Cuba.

This outrage, costing the lives of 266 American officers and men, was attributed to the Spaniards. Congress demanded (April 19, 1898) the withdrawal of Spain from Cuba, authorizing the President to carry out this resolution by arms. (U. S. History)

HALL PROCESS—ALUMINUM BY ELECTROLYSIS

Aluminum (Al) a soft, light metal, is, after O and Si, the most abundant element found in outer layer of the earth, mostly as silicates: feldspar, clay. C. M. Hall invented the process (1866) to produce nearly pure aluminum by electrolysing alumina (Al_2O_3) in fused cryolite ($AlNa_3F_6$) above.

The cell consists of an iron shell with fire brick lining, inside which is carbon lining as cathode. Anodes are graphite, made of petroleum coke. Alumina is prepared from bauxite (a mineral consisting of hydrated aluminum oxides mixed with hydrated iron oxides), by treating it with caustic soda, then with little aluminum hydroxide; hydroxide precipitates, is heated to form alumina.

Uses of aluminum are increasing for deoxidizer in steel making, thermit welding, light alloys for autos, airships, household machinery, electric conductors, utensils, furniture, structural work, etc.

THE ACCIDENT—LINDSAY RESCUES MYRTLE

The "Guardian Angel," the figure of Byles Gridley, the old scholar, is one of Oliver Wendell Holmes' most vital conceptions in the region of dramatic creation (Beers).

Myrtle Hazard, an orphaned impulsive beauty of 15, in boys' attire, escapes the dreary environment of her uncongenial aunt. Attempting to cross a river, at the rapids, her boat is upset; she—receiving a head injury and bruises—is rescued from drowning by young sculptor, Clement Lindsay and brought home by old Prof. Gridley. Hysteria remains from her injuries, though improving under medical care and beneficial influence of the master psychologist Gridley, her "Guardian Angel." He saves her from undesirable suitors, middle-aged doctor, married minister, fortune seeking Lawyer Bradshaw, who, when rejected, destroys secret evidence of her claim to great riches, which document had been discovered by the "Guardian Angel" however, in time to be substituted with a copy.

Gridley also arranges a meeting of Myrtle with her rescuer, Clement Lindsay, and great affection rises in the hearts of the young people. Clement joins the warring army, is promoted to colonel and marries Myrtle, who emerges from her work of mercy in hospitals as perfect character. Bradshaw, mortally wounded, is comforted by learning that he had not harmed Myrtle's future.

Painting by Anton von Werner.

CONGRESS AT BERLIN (1878)—REARRANGEMENT OF THE BALKANS

Representatives of European powers met after the Russo-Turkish War at Berlin to make a re-arrangement of the Balkans more suitable to their interests than that provided by the Treaty of San Stefano between victorious Russia and defeated Turkey. The Congress of Berlin voided this treaty, created several independent and tributary principalities from previous Ottoman provinces (Rumania, Servia, Montenegro; Bulgaria, a tributary), Cyprus was placed under British administration, Bosnia-Herzegovina under Austria-Hungary. Turkey was put under obligation to guarantee civil rights of non-Mohammedans. The work of the Congress at Berlin curtailing Russian influence on the Balkans embittered the Slavish people against Germany and Austria-Hungary, one of the causes of the World War.

LUTHER BURBANK, THE GREAT PLANT BREEDER (1849-1926)

He won international fame by skillful development of variations in plants by hybridization. From the hybrids he selected those which showed the desirable characteristics. Among his improved fruits, vegetables, ornamentals—some of great economic importance—are Burbank potato, white blackberry, edible spineless cactus, stoneless prunes and plums, violet-odored lilies, many flowers of great perfection and beauty. Was Jesse Ever Cornered?

Reader wants to know how the modern bandit compares with Jesse James.

Well, Jesse and his hoss wouldn't get far in Sunday traffic these days.

But he did pretty good considering his lack of traction. No state trooper would shoot a man because his hoss didn't have front and rear license plates.

Jesse went far afield. But there was no telephone to pick him up. There was no radio to chart his progress. He remained in mystery right up until the time he blew the works. Jesse would figure to arrive in town about dawn, spend five minutes calling the joint and then go to work.

Most of the time there was shooting. Plenty of Civil War veterans were around who liked a nice shindig from the front porch. He usually rode out of town with the day's receipts in the bag and a posse chasing him. No history has a record of a posse ever catching up. The boys never figured on that. Why should a posse add enthusiasm to civic righteousness?

As we figure it out all of Jesse's posses were more or less of a military escort. They stayed back out of pistol range and banged away with their own guns.

There might be plenty of action around the town bank while Jesse and his collegiates were packing away the money. But once the fight became a paper chase the posse cooled off. It would trail Jesse across a couple of states and then go back home to wait for a better offer.

Somebody may know of a posse that caught Jesse. But we don't. Catching in those days meant hanging. That wasn't Jesse's finish.

The Daltons were just as tough as Jesse. They were mopped up in a Kansas town when they tried to rob two banks on one ticket. The citizens put the pressure on in an age when anything was a weapon. The home towners went to the bat with guns, scythes and bows and arrows. They put so many feathers into one of the raiders that he went out of town doing an involuntary fan dance.

Jesse's boys might have been better riders or owned better hosses. Whatever the reason, they never had much trouble staying in front once the bugle sounded for the Kentucky Derby.

Don't forget there were brave men in that posse who had just exchanged bullets with the James gang. But a ride of 60 or 70 miles will frost any cake. Whether Jesse's courage was a temporary fit of mad genius or whether it was permanent might have been known if a posse had caught up.

The first thing a posse member learns is how to make pace.

ODD FACTS

The driest spot in the world is a desert of 300,000 square miles in Chinese Turkestan. It is so devoid of both atmospheric and subterranean moisture that no human being, bird, beast or plant can live within its boundaries.

Electric praying wheels are now used by Buddhist monks in Tibet. Previously the wheels were water-driven or worked by hand.

Britain has more radio listeners than any other European country; an official estimate of the number put it at more than 30,000,000.

Drivers of motor busses in Istambul, Turkey, have now to be married men and teetotallers, and they must not take drugs or play cards.

British automatic machines receive every year 2,500,000,000 pennies, 900,000,000 sixpences and 300,000,000 shillings. French pennies collected from them are shipped across the channel in return for British coins found in French machines.

Scraping the funnels of a first-class steamer, such as the Majestic, one of the world's largest liners, involves the removal of six tons of old paint.

Cyclists in Ulster must not ride more than two abreast by an order recently issued by the Ulster home office, under penalty of a fine.

Regarded as the oldest herring in the world, a specimen of this fish recently caught in the Firth of Forth is estimated to be 16 years of age.

Senate Hearing Refutes Sham Argument of League Court Advocates

IMPRESSIVE in the utmost degree was the hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of the opposition to the World Court.

The great room in the Senate Office Building set apart for the hearing was thronged. It was not only the numbers, however, who were in attendance to voice their protest against the Senate's ratification of the devious, doctored and patched-up protocols of adherence so-called, now referred to the committee for examination; it was the character, influence and public standing of the men and women who had come to the nation's Capitol on this patriotic mission of protest, which made the hearing eventful and stirring.

* * *

FORMER United States Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, who but yesterday was one of the Senate's outstanding figures, in a speech which opened the hearing, riddled the oft-heard contention that we are asked to join only the Court, but not the League of Nations.

He made it clear that the Court is the creature of the League of Nations, from which it derives all its powers, and whose mandates, wishes and directions it must necessarily reflect and execute.

Alluding to the past decisions of the Court, which admittedly have turned upon political, not judicial, considerations, former Senator Reed said, with telling effect:

"Do not be beguiled with the siren's song that 'you are entering a court of justice,' when in fact you are entering a political tribunal, controlled, created and governed by the political representatives of the political states of the world, all of them foreign to us and, I am sorry to say, all of them hating us."

* * *

ANOTHER effective speech was made by ex-Senator George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania. He supported by binding admissions and authoritative citations the indisputable fact that the World Court is tied up with the League of Nations.

"One of the very able judges of the court," said ex-Senator Pepper, "Judge de Monte, of Cuba, says 'Since the Court in its advisory capacity is an organ of the League, it has no right to refuse compliance with a request for its views, which emanated from the Council of the League."

The same point was made in the carefully considered argument of J. Reuben Clark, our former Ambassador to Mexico and ex-solicitor of the Department of State.

"A careful examination will demonstrate that, to some extent at least, we DO become members of the League by becoming members of the Court."

* * *

IT WAS convincingly and clearly shown that the so-called "Root formula," devised for our adherence to the court, is NOT the Root formula at all, but on the contrary, a World Court formula substituted by the League's committee of jurists for the unacceptable formula proposed by Mr. Root.

It was also made perfectly clear that the Senate's reservations, still in the minds of many the basis on which American ratification of the Court is sought, have been completely lost in the endless shuffle of proposals, counter-proposals, interpretations, revisions, substitutions and what not, that have ensued since the reservations were first made known.

Our right to veto the rendition of an advisory opinion by the Court on a matter in which we claim an interest is DENIED.

* * *

OUR RIGHT to withdraw from the Court whenever we see fit is DISPUTED. Not even the warmest advocates of our adherence to the Court claim that this right of withdrawal is conceded by the other signatories of the World Court statute.

The exemption from the Court's jurisdiction of regional understandings and such national policies as the Monroe Doctrine, as insisted upon in the Senate's reservations, has been DENIED.

It was clearly developed in the arguments at the hearing that if the United States joined the Court it would not be upon conditions of its own. Rather, as by a ring that it had suffered to be attached to its nose, it would be dragged in on the League's conditions, as embodied in the protocol of adhesion drawn up by the League's committee of jurists.

"After the dreadful experience we had when we were beguiled into the World War," said Justice Cohalan, "why should we again risk our ideals, our young men, our resources, by even taking a chance of getting mixed up in another Old World struggle?"

* * *

EQUALLY SWEEPING and uncompromising were the words of Commander Hayes.

"The American Legion," said he, "voted unanimously to go on record against American participation in the League of Nations or the League Court with or without reservations."

WITH OR WITHOUT RESERVATIONS! That should be the only and sufficient qualification of our rejection of the Court.

Let us hear no more of this pestilent propaganda that would involve us in the League of Nations.

Let the exploded sophistry of the World Court argument cease and be at an end!

* * *

THE PEOPLE have registered their judgment against both the League and the Court. Why should we be further harassed by their discussion?

Commenting on the hearing, Senator Hiram Johnson, who was in charge of the presentation of the evidence against adherence to the Court, declared as the hearing concluded that "it was a magnificent showing."

"The evidence was clear," said Senator Johnson, "and unanswerable. There can be no question of the determined opposition of the American people to any American participation in the League or its Court.

Oxcart Government Hit

The Election Is Favorable to Modernization. Comment on Local News.

Oxcart government was dealt a severe blow in the election of last Tuesday, for both the major parties' nominees for Governor are committed to modernization of our methods of transacting the public business. Attorney General William A. Schnader, the Republican candidate, has repeatedly declared for consolidation of excessive administrative units, and George H. Earle, the Democratic candidate, is bound by a pledge of similar tenor in the platform of the Democratic State Committee.

In Allegheny County nominations for the Legisla- ture have been obtained by a number of citizens who are opposed to oxcart government. On the other hand some of the political organizations which are opposed to any changes, such as consolidations, which will reduce the number of jobs, appear to have been successful in electing men upon whom they count to prevent changes. We have particularly in mind the magistrates' associations, which are fighting desperately for the retention of our antiquated minor judiciary system.

The Bureau of Municipal Research at Philadelphia publishes in the current issue of its periodical, Citizens' Business, a resume of a study made by Spencer Ervin of 90 men who held the office of magistrate in that city during a 24-year period. They were for the most part men of rather limited education. Eight had been real estate agents, seven salesmen, seven saloonkeepers or bartenders, five plumbers, and so on. Only three were attorneys.

No doubt a study of Pittsburgh's magistrates, or of the justices of the peace throughout the state generally, would present a somewhat similar picture. Men have been chosen to preside over the petty courts who had no legal training whatever. That may have been necessary a hundred years ago when conditions were rather primitive, but it is neither necessary nor desirable now.

The Board of Public Education has recently issued for study by high school pupils a pamphlet by R. O. Hughes, an authority on civics, which we would like to see in the hands of every citizen of Pittsburgh. It is called "Preserving American Democracy." It is very encouraging to find sound doctrines of government, such as are presented in this pamphlet, taught in the public schools. It is especially pleasing in view of the evidence that schools in New York City are honeycombed with teachers who disapprove of American democracy.

A testimonial to Better Business Bureaus, of which Pittsburgh has an efficient and active one, may be found in a report that has recently been issued on two nation-wide swindles. Although 40 per cent of the total population of the United States lives in cities and communities served by Better Business Bureaus, only 16 per cent of the victims of the swindles were residents of these cities. The swindlers found 84 per cent of their dupes in communities not thus protected.

The services at Waverly Presbyterian Church to- morrow will be notable because of the presence at the pulpit of a statuette of John Calvin, the great reformer and founder of Presbyterianism. The statuette is being taken to Cleveland, where there will be a celebration of Calvin's 425th anniversary during the sessions of the Presbyterian General Assembly. Not only Presbyterians but all other Pittsburghers who desire to be well informed about the great events in the world's history should take the trouble to learn something about Calvin.

George E. Evans, superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection, reports that 166 buildings have already been demolished in pursuance of the city's slum clearance project. It is gratifying to see houses that are unfit for human habitation demolished. But Mr. Evans' report would be more interesting if he told the public what became of the people who lived in the slum houses. Demolition should be accompanied by building.

Do you remember reading recently about a paint- ing, "The Fleet's In," which aroused the ire of Secretary Claude Swanson, of the Navy Department? He said it was a libel on the bluejackets. The picture is reproduced in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. With it are some other equally exciting pictures by the same artist, Paul Cadmus.

Human Side of the News

An Ominous Increase in the Homicide Rate—Life Is Much Safer in England Than Here

By Edwin C. Hill

IN the City of London the chances of a person being murdered are one in 330,000, whereas in these good old United States the chances simmer down to one in a mere 10,000. Such are not only the facts, but also they are the cold stark figures put before our eyes by Lord Trenchard, Commissioner of Metropolitan Police of England's capital, and by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, American statistician.

Coming down to a closer analysis, we have his lordship's official statement that last year in London there were 21 murders. The latest available figures for New York show in the year 1932 a figure of 580 homicides. And it must be noted, too, that New York is not the "killingest" city in the United States. She is outstripped, in ratio of murders to population, by a dozen other communities.

Dr. Hoffman, writing in the insurance magazine, The Spectator, reports that bloodlust on the part of countless numbers of men and women in the country is reaching unheard-of proportions. He finds that "an appalling number of capital crimes are committed by women, who are often as brutal in their method of murder as in the case of men."

* * *

Homicide Rate Doubled Since 1900

HIS records from 31 American cities, for which he has returns since 1900, show that the rate of homicides has more than doubled in those 33 years. Whereas in 1900 five persons out of every 100,000 in the United States each year met violent death at the hands of another, today the number is close to 11 per 100,000.

Dr. Hoffman deduces that "murder more than ever is becoming an ingenious art, if not a trade, in this country." For these conditions he blames the unrestricted sale of firearms, crime fiction, lurid criminal trials and, as he said in a previous report, the fact that "crime and punishment often lie apart, leaving no other conclusion than that our crime detecting agencies are inefficient, helpless or corrupt to a degree that should startle an apathetic public."

For my part, I will take the doctor's conclusion before his other reasons for this appalling state of affairs. Certainly our crime fiction is no more lurid than London's. In fact, the English writers of murder fiction have no equal anywhere in the world. Also the criminal trials of London are reported in the press, just as fully as are those of our cities, and I doubt that it is much more difficult to obtain firearms there than it is here.

The answer to the riddle may be read easily in Lord Trenchard's recapitulation of the record for London for 1933. It is: Murders, 21; unsolved, 1; suicides of murderers, 11; arrests, 10; acquittals, 1.

England has few murders, primarily because the hangman's noose is something more than a symbol. The murderer over there, be he peer of the realm or woman with child, knows well beforehand that the path leads straight to the gallows. On the other hand, over here it leads much too often only to a slick mouthpiece, to a criminal procedure which hamstrings Justice and to the vicious combination of machine politics, and the underworld.

* * *

Death Penalty Opposed by Many

MANY persons, including Dr. Hoffman, are opposed to the death penalty and, in support of their argument that it is not a deterrent, they point to the low percentage of homicides in Holland and Denmark, where the law is not a life for a life. But none, it seems, can dispute the fact that a wide gulf between crime and punishment in the United States is the chief reason for our high murder rate.

It does seem that at last we have awakened to the situation. Indeed, if it had not been for the activity of the federal government in the past year in the cases of Machine Gun Kelly, Verne Sankey, Bailey and Dillinger, we were sure to have had a popular outburst against both the present criminal statutes and the methods of enforcing them. Only the intervention of the Department of Justice has stayed the wrath of a once apathetic public.

Crime is on the spot and is not to be protected any longer by the niceties of constitutional interpretations or archaic legal structures. The states must prove that they can do the job, and if they cannot or will not, a federal force must do it. And it is consoling to know that we have the federal force which can and will. Our Uncle Sam is, customarily, a pretty easy-going old chap, indolent, casual, drifting with the tide, but when he does get his dander up, he's bad medicine—and more power to his honorable elbow!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Who's Responsible?

This Modern World gets your goat, doesn't it?

"This is the deuce of a place to live!" you say.

"No decency. No fair play. Everybody out to gyp everybody else. Nothing but selfishness, everywhere you turn. Greediness, and hate, and fear. What's the use of fighting to be square in a world like this? What's the use of believing in anything . . . trying to amount to something . . . with the whole works going to the dogs!"

Is that what you say? Yes. Then you fall to thinking—

"How'd we get this way? Probably it just happened. God made us like this. Just as He made beasts — rattle-snakes, wolves, tigers, hyenas—so He made men. Made 'em look different, but they aren't. Men . . . beasts . . . they're all the same, underneath. Lookit them—you can see it—men, women, with faces like pigs or foxes.

"Talk about the human soul—phooey! Lookit the things that happen! Horrible things! Fiend killings and tortures. Why, a dumb brute wouldn't do things as awful as some humans do.

"But if God made them like that, whose fault is it? And what's the use of trying—when the cards are stacked by God?"

Or perhaps you don't put the blame on God. Perhaps you think the Capitalists are to blame.

"Big Business and Wall Street—they're the jinx," you say. "What chance has a common fellow got against a racket like that? They're the ones who brought on this depression! They're responsible for all this unemployment . . . all these strikes and riots . . . all these awful crimes. The Big Shots—they're the ones!"

Or you may not hold either God or Big Business responsible. THE UNDERWORLD — that vague, mysterious hell-hole of crime and racketeering—that's what's spoiling everything. Respectable People haven't a chance against THE UNDERWORLD!

GOD . . . BIG BUSINESS . . . OR THE UNDERWORLD. One of them's to blame, according to YOU. But you're wrong!

Neither God, Big Business, nor The Underworld, is responsible for the mad-house of this modern world.

Then who IS responsible?

YOU!

YOU MAKE THIS WORLD WHAT IT IS TODAY!

By your secret thoughts and open acts . . . by the things you do or don't do—you make this world what it is today.

This world is the creation of your own mind . . . the result of your own character. And that goes for EVERYONE . . . ANYONE. Whether you're an arch criminal skulking in a hide-out . . . or a nice little lady sitting at a bridge table . . . or a respectable citizen working hard at a desk . . . or the most pious person who ever mumbled a creed—

YOU MAKE THE WORLD WHAT IT IS TODAY!

All that is evil in it, has its roots in YOU.

Every time you Hate—
Every time you Fear—
Every time you Envy—
Every time you plan to Get Even
YOU MAKE THIS WORLD WHAT IT IS TODAY.
Every time you loaf—
Every time you grab—
Every time you boast—
Every time you bully—
YOU MAKE THIS WORLD WHAT IT IS TODAY.
Every time you Lie—
Every time you Alibi—
Every time you Duck—
Every time you Double Cross—
YOU MAKE THIS WORLD WHAT IT IS TODAY.
Not God.
Not Big Business.
Not the Underworld.
But YOU—YOU—YOU.
YOU'RE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE WORLD AS IT IS TODAY.

This world isn't a Divine Blunder . . . nor is it a Human Crime. It's the ANSWER-TO-WHAT-YOU-ASKED-FOR.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR SOMETHING DIFFERENT—AND REALLY WANT IT, AND ARE WILLING TO WORK FOR IT—YOU'LL GET IT.

LOS ANGELES DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—There are three atrociously named Brown Derby restaurants in Los Angeles. One down town, one in Beverly and still another in Hollywood. The original is stuccoed in the shape and coloring from whence it acquired its absurd name. Imagine eating in a hat!

Yet much of the celebrity life of this extagrdinarily celebrity conscious community centers around the brown derbies. We dined at the one cater-cornered from our hotel Beverly-Wilshire last evening. Frou-frou waitresses, their russet dungaree skirts stiffly starched and flaring do the serving.

They are au courant to all famous in the brown-timbered room and drop bits of gossip between courses. Chaplin came in, sporting tweeds of sunset gold, squiring Miss Goddard. I might have known the fellow sticking out a derisive tongue at me across the room was Mickey Nielan.

One heard that our table, no less, was where Rudy Vallee in his love-lorn anguish crooned his miserere to a sympathetic waitress. She now has become a celebrity. Our dinner was pleasant because our party included Ed and Grace Nolan, the Harry Beaumonts, Harry and Sunny Brooks, beloved friends of many years.

On a bench at the corner of a leading boulevard, day after day, sits one of the richest American Indians. Across the street is his magnificent colonial home. He is very old and his mind clouded. Oil wells in his back yard transplanted him from his tepee to a grandeur he is too infirm to appreciate. So with thumb jerks he directs the flow of motor traffic, majestic with primitive disdain.

Los Angeles owes much of its smart look to Fate's witch bundle—the movie industry. As much as New York and more today than Paris it's the style center. Studios have commandeered the best of designers. No American city is more clothes conscious. The monocle is as much at home here as along London's Birdcage Walk.

* * *

Our rooms are a radiant burst of flowers. Blue and yellow iris from Genevieve Tobin, white roses from Ted Healy, yellow roses from Adolphe Menjou, larkspur from Doris Kenyon, sweet peas from Tullio Carmanati, lilacs from Nate Milnor, plants from Winnie Sheehan's garden, gladiolus and double poppy from Joan Bennett, tulips from Florence Ryerson and Colins Clement, pansies from—of all people—Tom Mix. Carnations, camellias, gardenias. They come on every delivery. Such hospitality has no significance. It is as casual as the sunshine, a symbol of California cheerio.

In the 18-karat residential areas walking is almost lost art. The streets are filled with traffic, but sidewalks bare of pedestrians. We ticked off 41 blocks where not a soul was seen on the pavements.

This is one of those gray, lustreless days of high fog. The sun cannot crack through. Los Angeles is in an attitude of abject apology, as though sensing an affront to the stranger. Death's head at the perennial feast. It will not be the same until the thin mist sifts and Old Sol is on the job again.

Sid Graumann, energetic San Francisco newsboy who became the Roxy of the West Coast, has grown hirsutely sedate since last visit. His wild top-knot once suggested an African bushman in sudden fright. Doves cooed longingly at such an idyllic haven as, hatless, he passed along. There are rumors he could not resist the offer of an eastern mattress factory and was delilahed. Anyway his crown, literally speaking, is now worn by Johnny Weismuller. The swimmer's extravagant locks are almost to his shoulders, giving him appearance of one of those barefoot apostles who come out of the canyons to Hollywood Boulevard to proclaim the newest apocalypse. Another tonsorial enthusiasm is expressed in the evanishment of the have-a-care-my-proud-beauty mustaches of the studio set. Menjou's appears the only one left.

No one as yet has rhapsodized over the California T-Bone steak. Served with a kiln-hot baked Idaho properly—and there's an art about this—buttered and paprikaed, the local version becomes a gastronomic gurgle. Every evening since I came to town I've whittled one right down to the quick, or rather to its derivative T. Last evening indeed, after a few furtive glances around the public dining room, I almost got my hands slapped for attempting a little behind-the-napkin bone-gnawing. Gr-r!

League Court Hearings Are Significant

By James T. Williams, Jr.

FROM an American point of view, the hearings just concluded upon the League Court protocols before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations have an importance and a value hard to exaggerate.

The importance of these hearings lies in the fact that they reveal on the part of "the great committee of the Senate" a highly creditable reluctance to act hastily upon legislative proposals which involve a radical departure from traditional American foreign policy.

The value of these hearings lies in the fact that they have adduced new evidence concerning the nature of these protocols and have thrown new light upon the intimate connection that exists between the League of Nations and the League Court.

* * *

Impossible to Reach A Decision Now

UNTIL the Committee on Foreign Relations can find the time to weigh this evidence and, in its light, subject these intricate protocols to the same scrutiny that a prudent father would examine the terms of a mortgage upon the home of his wife and children, it will not be able to report them to the Senate with any recommendation worthy of the Senate's respect.

In view of the approaching adjournment of Congress, it is obviously impossible for the members of this committee to conclude its study of these protocols and agree upon what recommendation should be made to the Senate concerning their final disposition.

As a result, opportunity will be afforded, when the Congress to be elected next November holds its first session, for the Senate to begin the painstaking and conscientious study of the vital question raised by these protocols. Such a study must precede exhaustive debate and a final judgment arrived at in the light of all the evidence that can be assembled.

Under the circumstances the wisdom of President Roosevelt in refusing to press for action upon the League Court protocols during the present session of Congress appears to be completely vindicated by the new evidence developed at the hearings which have just been concluded.

Contrary to the belief of many Senators, the proposal that the United States should now join the League Court is no longer defended on the ground that there is no connection between the court and the league. Some of the most prominent advocates of American entrance into the court now admit the connection between the two. They frankly favor the entrance of this country into the court as the first step toward American entrance into the League.

Contrary to the belief of many Senators, the Hoover protocols providing for American entrance into the court do not comply with the specific conditions fixed by the Senate on January 27, 1926, when it consented to American participation in the court, subject to five reservations.

* * *

Reservations Are Mostly Ignored

THESE reservations, as was shown by abundant evidence at the recent hearings, have been for the most part ignored in the European terms for American entrance into the court as set forth in the Hoover protocols.

Furthermore, the new evidence now before the Committee on Foreign Relations indicates that the court is subject to the jurisdiction of the League to a far greater extent than any senator hitherto had reason to suspect.

This question of jurisdiction was raised at the recent hearings by no less an authority on American diplomacy and international law than J. Reuben Clark, of Utah, formerly solicitor of the Department of State, later, under-secretary of state and the worthy successor of the late Dwight W. Morrow as American Ambassador to Mexico.

Permission was wisely given by the committee for Mr. Clark to file a brief covering the League Court protocols, which is destined to rank with his authoritative interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine. When this brief becomes available to the Senate it should be possible for any citizen to write to his Senator and obtain a complete and unbiased analysis, from an American point of view, of all the intricate provisions and implications of the League Court protocols.

It will serve the cause of truth if the Senate, which long ago printed as a public document Ambassador Clark's interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, will also make available to the average American in the same form his no less authoritative interpretation of the League Court protocols.

This is what the Senate will do without delay if a majority of its members are sincerely desirous of encouraging the plain people of this country "to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the evidence in the case which is now before the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

When you call on a person who is ill, make your visit short.

To engage such a person in conversation is tiring and may excite him to a harmful, nervous condition.

Rest periods should not be disturbed in any way.

Hospitals protect their patients against prolonged visits.

But in a home the family are reluctant about telling a caller that he should depart.

Your presence may have a cheering effect upon a patient, but it is easy to be too attentive.

When a person is seriously ill you should not expect to see him.

Even though you are quiet your presence may be harmful.

Too often neighbors and friends rush to the home of one who is ill or who has met with an accident.

The one who is suffering does not want anyone but his immediate family about him.

There are other ways of showing your interest and sympathy for a stricken one besides calling or telephoning to the home.

Why not write a note?

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Into Her Heart

Sometimes for years men tend one garden plot,
Breed beauty there in rare, exotic flowers,
Among the rocks carve out a fern-filled grot,
Plant purple hyacinths, trail ivied bowers.
With patient toil they make the rich earth bloom
And woo its treasures as a lover wooes
His darling's kiss. From dawn til twilight's gloom
They fill their garden's canva with fair hues.

But nature is more patient sti than they;
She knows each tireless gar dener must depart,
And when at time's command or turns away
She takes his garden back int her heart.
How soon the willful vines run rio there!
How soon each rose assumes wildwood air!
